AUGUST 19, 1892.

English Opinions.

In the Chambers of Commerce Congress after Sir Charles Tupper had proposed his amendment and several Canadians had spoken, Mr. Hibbert, of the Blackburn chamber of Commerce, said that he thought Lunashire should have a chance, adding by way of reason, "inasmuch as we were the first in the field with regard to free trade, and owing to the action of Birmingham and Lancashire men free trade became an absolute fact," for which, said Mr. Hibbert, "I am very sorry." Referring to the objection that preferential duties or a return to the protective system would be disastrous, Mr. Hibbert pointed out that the protectionist United States and protectionist Germany had increased their exports much more than Great Britain with free trade. Proceeding, he declared that the growth which had taken place in England was due not to free trade but in part to mechanical inventions, and to a greater extent to the possession of India and the colonies, "without which," he said, "I do not hesitate to say, as a Lancashire man, our cotton mills of Lancashire might have closed their doors." Mr. Hibbert continued:—
 "Now foreign countries do, and we do not, recognize the fact that it is the duty of a nation to look after the employment of its people, that its greatest trade is its home trade, that it is being able to import goods which we ourselves can manufacture at a cheaper rate, simply because they are cheap, does not in the least enable us to compete in the neutral markets of the world."
 After showing the advantages of trade with the colonies over trade with foreign countries, Mr. Hibbert argued that the adoption of the German or United States system in Britain would do more good than it had done in those countries in the way of building up the industries of the country. The nation occupied a strong position:
 "We have the colonies. We can produce everything. We can get cotton, wheat, and rice from India. We can obtain wheat, cotton and wool from Australia. We can get agricultural products of every kind from Canada, tea and coffee from Ceylon, and all kinds of fruit from Jamaica. In fact we can grow everything in profusion. Why should we be frightened by the bogey of protection when free trade will be as extinct as the dodo in another twenty-five years. Let us give and accept preferential treatment to and from the colonies; let us give to our people whether in Kent or Jamaica, Lancashire or at the Cape. Mr. Hibbert added a word of prophecy from his own observation:
 "I have had considerable experience of working men in my own country, and I do not hesitate to tell you that the time is fast approaching when they will take this question into their own hands, and when they do so the statesman who aspires to lead them and who first gets down from the sail on which the most of them are sitting will be returned to the house of commons by one of the largest majorities which has ever been recorded."
 In the course of his speech Mr. Stieble, President of the Nottingham Chamber of Commerce, went into the history of recent negotiations to show how Great Britain is unable to make commercial treaties because she has nothing to offer in the way of concessions, having already conceded everything. "Every manufacturer in France," said this speaker, "has had a license to gratify himself at our expense as much as he likes." In very plain English Mr. Stieble continued:—
 "I said if we find ourselves ill-used, as we are; if we find English commerce and English labor and English machinery driven out of the country as it is being driven out of the country at present—I know very large plants of machinery which are being removed to another country—if we find that, and if we find responsible statesmen like Lord Salisbury putting it as a plain fact before the country, why should we decline about the eternal principle of free trade? Lord bless you, they are not the ten commandments.
 Towards the close of a vigorous speech, the Nottingham representative declared:
 "You may be quite sure of one thing if once the day comes when England says we will not be kicked upon any longer by these foreign duties, but we will exact blood for blood, they will think it over twenty times because the French and other continental powers want this market, and cannot afford to lose it. We are simply in the humiliating position that we are in our manufacturing towns of Nottingham, Bradford and Manchester see foreign goods filling the shops. We see our own workmen unemployed while the foreign article is sold in preference to the English. I would certainly say if means can be found to make the connection with our colonies closer by levying a preferential duty, let it be done by all means."

 A desperate battle has been fought between the rival factions in Venezuela, in which the Government was defeated on each side.
 GRATIFYING TO ALL.—The high position attained and the universal acceptance and approval of the pleasant liquid fruit remedy, Syrup of Figs, as the most excellent laxative known, illustrates the value of the qualities on which its success is based, and are abundantly gratifying to the California Fig Syrup Company.
 The number of upper province people who spend their summer holidays in the Maritime Provinces is increasing each year. They are just beginning to find out that the best summer seaside resort in America is to be found in their own country.

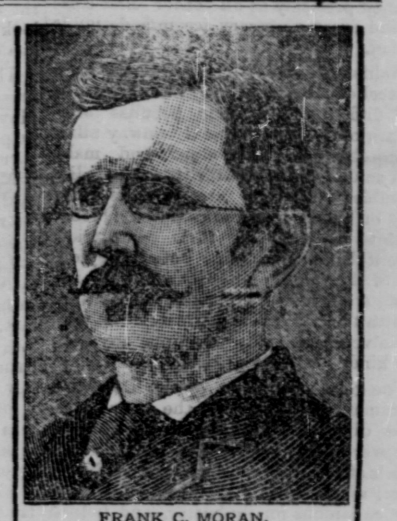

The Reward.

BY JOHN G. WHITTIER.

Who, looking backward from his manhood's prime,
 Sees not the spectre of his mis-spent time?
 And through the shade
 Of funeral cypress planted thick behind,
 Hears no reproachful whispers on the wind
 From his loved dead?
 Who bears no trace of passion's evil force,
 Who shuns thy sting, Oh terrible Remorse?
 Who does not cast
 On the thronged pages of his memory's book
 At times a sad and half-reluctant look,
 Regretful of the past?
 Alas! The evil which we fain would shun
 We do, and leave the wished-for good undone.
 Our strength to day
 Is but to-morrow's weakness, prone to fall,
 Poor, blind, unprofitable servants all
 Are we alway.
 Yet who thus looking backward o'er his years
 Feels not his eyelids wet with grateful tears
 If he hath bent
 Permitted, weak and sinful as he was,
 To cheer and aid in some unobscured cause
 His fellow-men?
 If he hath hidden the outcast, or let in
 A ray of sunshine in the cell of sin;
 If he hath lent
 Strength to the weak, or in his hour of need,
 Over the suffering, mindless of his creed
 Or home, hath bent,
 He hath not lived in vain. And while he gives
 The praise to Him in whom he moves and lives
 With thankful heart,
 He gazes backward, and with hope before,
 Knowing that from his works he nevermore
 Can thenceforth part.

 Terrible suffering is existing again in Mexico from famine.
 A correspondent of the London Times on board the warship Arctura, lying off Belfast, Ireland, says (Aug. 14): While the Arctura was towing a torpedo boat there were suddenly heard shouts of "Stop ship!" coming from the torpedo boat. It was found that the boat had got under the Arctura's stern and had been struck by her propeller. The boat was then water-logged and sinking and two men were overboard. The boys were lowered and the men were rescued. The torpedo boat was afterwards hoisted in.
