Week's End Fades Away In Starlight At Alderlea

"Why do the Friday's come?" Peter queried this morning. Children must absorb a great amount of learning during the early years. And how can they learn better than by asking questions? So to find the reason for this or that. Someone has said, "Among the unpleasant kinds of persons to have around, are those who insist on knowing the reasons you did something for which there was no reason." This may apply to adults, but not to inquiring young'uns puzzling over some item in mind. The children at the house across the line are, we would say, especially blessed this way. In that no young question put to

Silver Rose Bowl Presented At Anniversary Celebration

Relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Errol Stetson recently on the occasion of the couple's silver wedding anniversary. Rev. David Hamilton, chairman, spoke on the many roles of there, of their work in months past. Mack talked of it this evening in that peace which attends the week's close. How still it was then all about. The eyes and lambskins had been taken by truck up to summer at the other farm. Near fields were silent. Last chirpings were gone from the trees. We saw a bat fly out from an eave. By the stream a frog sang forlornly of another lost spring. "I never saw a year go so fast—a school year, that is!" Mack said. "In August, looking ahead from the Old Home Week, why, I thought it would be endless! But the fall was a tation and Thanksgiving, came and went, and the next thing we were getting ready for Christmas! Back to class again, and soon it was Easter, and Spring. And there's no last to the spring's days. A little tedious June's are. Then "he grinned "You wish there never was a lesson or a book!" "Or a schoolroom!" we said, having known the fret for the open of the June-time.

"Or a schoolroom!" he nodded. "Just the sun on an open field!" he smiled. "Blow this!" Alex said, holding up the white head of a dandelion today. "Get me!" Peter begged. "He pursued a young mouth and blew happily. "Now where did they go?" he questioned. Like so many lost things, it came to mind; lost words, idle minutes, wasted pennies—or a last day, as is this one which goes out now in the starlight. "Until tomorrow — Diary— Good-night....."

many individual gifts and congratulatory messages were received. Mrs. Stetson is the former Lobe Ramsay, O'Leary, and is a nurse at the Community Hospital. Mr. Stetson is chairman of the hospital board. The couple have two children, Joan, Mrs. E. MacLean, Charlottetown, and Keith, stationed with the RCAF at Summerside. Miss Elizabeth MacLean entertained with a solo "Old Log Cabin For Sale". LARGE-SCALE CRIBBING CARLETON P.L.A.C.E., Ont. (CP)—An unidentified Grade 9 student has been suspended from high school here after allegedly finding the original stencil of a French exam and selling copies of the test to several classmates. Principal C. M. Dawson said students were required to rewrite the exam after the plot was uncovered. He declined comment on the number of students who had purchased copies. STEEL TOUGHER A ton of modern low alloy steel will today do a job that once required 2,200 pounds of carbon steel.
