A REAL PREFERENCE

What Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said For It.

A GREAT AND GOOD IDEA

He Pledged Himself in 1896 to Work For it As a Benefit to Canadian Producers.

The idea of mutual preferential trade within the Empire, which by its position taken in Parliament and the declarations of its parliamentary leader (Sir Charles Tupper) the Conservative party is pledged to work for, has been commended by the boards of trade of most Canadian cities. It has been praised by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, when he thought he could get votes by it. In the campaign of 1896, speaking in London, Ont., on June 4th, '96 as reported in the Toronto Globe, he said:—

"But I want to point out to you, my fellow countrymen, upon this occasion, that, in addition to the many reasons which we had up to the present time, there is now another reason, which must strongly appeal to the sense of the Canadian people at large—preferential trade. That is a new idea of having within the British Empire preferential trade with all parts of the Empire. Goods of English make would be admitted free to this country, and our goods would be admitted free to England as they are now, but in addition to that, we would have for our goods a preference that would not be given to the goods of another nation. Fifty years ago or so, the reformers of Upper Canada with the Reformers of Lower Canada—Baldwin and Lafontaine—fought for the principles of responsible government in the colonies. They asked that the colonies should be allowed the privilege of governing themselves in the same manner as the Motherland governed itself, that is to say, by means of a government responsible directly to the people. It was supposed at that time that if such a principle were granted it would have a most mischievous effect. I appeal to the old men I see before me. They know that in the struggles of that time the objection they had to meet was that if the colonies were given the right of self-government they would feel so satisfied with self-government that they would soon ask for more and that separation from the Motherland would be the consequence. But instead of having separation from the Motherland, the granting of self government to the colonies has made the colonial tie dearer to the people of the colonies. It is now a matter of history that as the hand of the Motherland became less and less felt upon the nation, the dearer became the hand of the old Motherland. Now, sir, we have reached that stage where we are to-day, practically, a semi-independent nation, keeping our allegiance to England, and ever intending to keep it, as long as the relations are as they are at the present time.

"Now, the statesmen of Great Britain have thought that the governments of the colonies have come to a time when a new step can be taken in their development. What is that? That there shall be a commercial agreement between England and the colonies. That practical statesman Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, has come to the conclusion that the time has come when it is possible to have within the bounds of the Empire a new step taken, which will give to the colonies and England a preference for their products over the products of other nations. What would be the possibilities of such a step if it were taken? We sell our goods in England. We send our wheat, our butter, our cheese, all our natural products, but there we have to compete with several products from the United States, from Russia and from other nations. Just see what a great advantage it would be to Canada if the wheat, cheese and butter, which we would send to England should be met in England with a preference over similar products of other nations. The possibilities are immense.

"Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the new and progressive secretary of the colonies, has declared that the time has come when it is possible to discuss that question. But, sir, if England is going to give us that preference, England would expect something from us in return. What is it she would expect? England would expect that we would come as close to her own system of free trade as it is possible for us to come. When it is possible we should take her own system of free trade, such as she has it; and before you, that the thing that English people would expect in return, instead of a principle of protection, we should adopt the revenue form of tariff, pure and simple. These are the conditions on which we can have that boon."

When, during the meeting of the colonial premiers at the Jubilee demonstration in 1897, Sir Wilfrid Laurier had an opportunity to advance at least the discussion of what he had thus so eloquently portrayed, he failed to take advantage of declaring himself a free trader and opposed to anything that savored so much of protection as a genuine mutually beneficial tariff preference by each member of the Imperial family in favor of all the others. He failed to keep his word in this, as in other items of his opposition policy.

Conservative public men when they make pledges try to keep them. They will try, when given the opportunity by the Canadian people, to realize for Canada the advantages Sir Wilfrid Laurier so eloquently pictured.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—What can be the reason that the work on and near the new bridge at Brighton has not been completed?

—The Montreal Gazette remarks that "the last half of November is a Liberal guess at the date of the election. The last half of October was accepted in the same circles a little while ago as a likely time. The change is evidence that the shivery feeling still affects the men who have the selection."

—Mr. Tarte's Patrie is not pleased with Hugh John Macdonald. La Patrie says: "It is more and more evident that Mr. Macdonald is a little man—an altogether little man. He is not the son of his father; he is more like the brother of Clarke Wallace." We have noticed that the New Liberals in office at Ottawa, and their official supporters, do not like Hugh John Macdonald.

DOG BISCUIT.

An Officer Tells the Truth About Devlin's Emergency Rations.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29.—Lt. Morrison of D. Battery, in another of his chatty letters to the Ottawa Citizen, thus talks about emergency rations:

"I see you have been having lots of fun over the "Emergency Ration" issued to us. When we unpacked the boxes containing ours, one-third of the tins were empty and the stuff which looks like fine oatmeal sifted through the others. The tins were so cheaply made that the lids would not keep on, if they were carried in a haversack. We thought it was some stunt that had been presented as a cheap advertising scheme to the troops. Our medical officer tried some of it, as did also Major Hurdman, but finding it of no apparent use, it was all left at the base. The joke of the thing is that the labels state that it is to be mixed with beef tea and a lot of other things when used. If a soldier in extremities had hot beef tea, soup and such things available, he would not be in need of emergency rations at all. A good emergency ration that night at Balmoral and on several other occasions would have prevented much suffering with us and subsequent illness."

Mistaken Identity.

Boston, Sept. 29.—Investigations made by the members of the family of Dr. Geo. E. Warren, of Newton, prompted by despatches from Halifax, N. S., that Dr. Warren had been there and had gone into the woods hunting, proved that the man thought to be the missing dentist was Roger S. Warner, of Cambridge. The man whom the Halifax police claimed to have identified as Dr. Warren, registered at the Lorne House. His signature looked very much like Warren's, but it appeared later that the hunter was a son of Mr. Warren, of Cambridge, who has been gunning in Nova Scotia for some time. The mistake caused considerable anxiety on the part of those interested in the case, as well as a small amount of trouble in running out the report.
