

When the children are hungry, what do you give them? Food.

When thirsty? Water.

Now use the same good common sense, and what would you give them when they are too thin? The best fat-forming food, of course.

Somehow you think of Scott's Emulsion at once.

For a quarter of a century it has been making thin children, plump; weak children, strong; sick children, healthy.

THE KING'S ROSE DIAMOND

By GEORGE GRIFFITH.

They traveled home by the same mailboat which carried their letter, and on the morning following its delivery they paid a visit to the millionaire at his west end mansion. The interview was not exactly a friendly one. Mr. Muratti blustered, and his visitors quietly, but firmly, doubled their already exorbitant demands.

The man of millions threatened to have them put into the street, and broadly hinted at the advisability of giving them into custody as blackmailers. That brought matters to a head in a somewhat dramatic fashion. The exporter took out his pocketbook and produced from it a half sheet of note paper, on which was pasted a short newspaper cutting. He handed it to the millionaire and said:

"That's from The Cape Times, Mr. Muratti. Do you think you could throw any light on the subject? I have an idea that you could, especially with our assistance. De Beers would give a good deal to know how that stone got away. I believe they would even accept me as queen's evidence to get the mystery cleared up. What do you think?"

With slowly widening eyes and sinking heart, the man of many millions, and more ambitions, read the cutting. It ran thus:

"The king of the Belgians has just indulged in his well known taste for gems by the addition to his already priceless collection of a magnificent rose colored diamond, weighing nearly 30 carats in its cut state. His majesty is rumored to have paid the enormous price of £1,000 a carat to the Amsterdam merchant of whom he bought it. In color and water it is the exact counterpart of the famous rose diamond in the De Beers collection, but it is much larger.

"Its origin is involved in some little mystery. The merchants from whom his majesty purchased it affirm that the dealer from whom they bought it declared that it was an ancient eastern gem recut in Amsterdam, but experts who have seen it state with equal positiveness that it is a Kimberley stone.

"A rumor reaches us from Diamond-opolis that a certain Kaffir, who has since disappeared, boasted one night in his cups, just after he had been discharged from the Kimberley compound, that he had found the biggest rooi-klippe (red stone) that ever was found on the fields. If this is true, the stone never reached the diamond room at De Beers'. It is just possible that some of the I. D. B. fraternity could throw some light on the subsequent wanderings of the 'mooi rooi-klippe' of which the vanished Kaffir boasted."

Frank Ridley and Joshua Mosenstein watched the millionaire's changing face narrowly as he read. When he saw that he had finished, Ridley said quietly: "I can find that Kaffir if necessary, Mr. Muratti. Of course the diamond law does not hold good in this country, but the laws as to conspiracy and dealing in stolen goods do. If De Beers prosecuted, they would find my evidence worth buying. Josses here has done his time and could make a clean breast of it without fear, and so the only one who could be touched would be—

"Oh, that'll do!" exclaimed the millionaire in a last burst of despairing anger. "What do you want?"

"I want a half million down and another half in approved securities, preferably De Beers," replied Ridley, "and as a matter of principle I must have that check in favor of Miss Ransome duly honored. A millionaire's wife should be above suspicion."

"And I want a million, too," chimed in Mr. Mosenstein. "same way as Frank wants his. And, what's more, Mickey Muratti," he went on, shaking his finger in his face, "as you disgraced me by sending me to the breakwater for your crime, you must restore my credit in the eyes of the society that I shall go into now by making your wife let me marry that pretty little sister Rebecca of hers that I have loved all my life. She was always fond of me and will have me when I am a millionaire. I dare say you can spare her a decent marriage portion."

They were big terms, but Mr. Muratti did not yet despair of being introduced to the Prince of Wales, and so in the end he yielded. A few weeks later two new made South African millionaires, one English and one Hebrew, blossomed forth, each in his congenial sphere of London society. A little later on there were two splendid weddings, and until those lines appear in print the mystery of the king's rose diamond will remain unsolved.

FERTILIZER FACTS

The value of all Fertilizers consist in the amount of soluble Phos. Acid, Nitrogen, and Potash they contain, and the brand which shows the greatest value in these is the one to buy, on the same principle that milk testing 4 per cent. butter fat is more valuable than 3 per cent. milk ENGLISH MANURES costing the same price, contain 20 per cent. to 25 per cent. more Phos. Acid, Nitrogen and Potash than any other complete Fertilizer on the market.

Or in other words the Plant Food contained in a ton of other Fertilizer costing, say $35, can be purchased from us for about $28. All fertilizers are sold under a guaranteed analysis enabling any who may, to verify the above, and the superior quality of these Manures is being shown by actual test year after year by the really wonderful results produced wherever used.
