THE TARIFF AND POETS.

This is what Rudyard Kipling wrote the London Times in the first burst of joy over the new Canadian tariff before he knew what it meant:—

A nation spoke to a nation,
A Queen sent word to a throne:
Daughter am I in my mother's house
But mistress in my own.
The gates are mine to open
As the gates are mine to close,
And I set my house in order,
Said the Lady of the Snows.

Neither with laughter nor weeping,
Fear or the child's amaze,
Soberly under the white man's law
My white men go their ways.
Nor for the gentle's clamor,
Insult or threat of blows,
Bow we the knee to Baal,
Said our Lady of the Snows.

My speech is calm and single,
I talk of common things,
Words of the wharf and market place
And the ware the merchant brings.
Favor to those I favor,
But a stumbling block for my eyes,
Many there be that hate us,
Said our Lady of the Snows.

I called my chiefs to council,
In the din of a troubled year.
For the sake of a sign ye would not see,
And a word ye would not hear.
This is our message and answer,
This is the path we choose,
For we be also a people,
Said our Lady of the Snows.

Carry the word to my sisters,
To the queens of the East and South,
I have proved faith in the heritage
By more than the word of the mouth.
They that are wise may follow,
Ere the world's war trumpet blows,
But I, I am the first in the battle,
Said our Lady of the Snows.

A nation spoke to a nation,
A queen sent word to a throne,
Daughter am I in my mother house,
But mistress in my own.
The gates are mine to open
As the gates are mine to close,
And I abide by my mother's house,
Said our Lady of the Snows.
