Business Spotlight

July 18 (-CP)- Something of a "price war" has entered into competition among Toronto motor-car dealers for the sale of low-priced English cars, price slashes reaching close to $500 a car. Virtually all the offers have centered around the British Ford Prefect model, with a Toronto price of $1,565, including taxes. One dealer advertised Prefects, together with license and 5,000 miles of free gas, and with new car warranty, for $1,195. A second firm "heading its advertisement "price war", offered them at $1,068, with license, and added: "We will not be undersold." Still another dealer offered for $1 a television set valued at $675 for each Prefect bought; and varying quotations have come from other firms. Though the rash of special offers centered around the Prefect, the slow-down in sales is felt by virtually all car makes, following increased taxes and credit restrictions calling for higher down-payments and higher installments. One dealer, explaining the Prefect cuts, said there had been heavy sales of this model last year, and orders had been placed in expectation of a similar business this year. Then, he added, along came the credit restrictions, and the Prefect was especially hit because most of its sales are to people in the moderate-income group. Now, the dealers need to turn the stocks into cash to take care of their financing committees, and to get their money into faster-moving lines. It is not thought that an actual loss is being taken at the lower prices. One dealer, at least, said he is making a profit, though operating on a narrow margin. For one thing, some of the cars were bought before the tax raises of the last budget. And, for another, each slash in basic car price brings a slash in tax, and thus a part of the lower price is at no cost to the dealer. Several dealers said they are getting good response at the lower prices.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S MINING CHANCES

In its current issue The Northern Miner reviews the mining opportunities in Canada's newest Province and pronounces them excellent. A first-hand inspection was made of all fields. The mine developer, the prospector, the mining investor, will find his horizon widened in this almost untouched district. It's an interesting and valuable story.
