

LORD TWEEDSMUIR IN LONDON

Lord Tweedsmuir in the uniform of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of the Canadian Army, leaves his residence in Tufton Court in London yesterday en route to the House of Lords. Lord Tweedsmuir moved that the House vote an address of thanks to Queen Elizabeth II for her speech before Parliament when it opened yesterday. Lord Tweedsmuir served in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment from 1930 to 1945 and commanded the same unit in Sicily and Italy in 1943. (AP Wirephoto)

Remembrance Day Features Presentation Of New Flag

A Remembrance Day service which was held at the cenotaph in Wheatley River and concluded in the hall was attended by a large gathering who came to pay their homage to those who gave their lives in the two world wars.

Major D.A. Macdonald presided. The speakers were Rev. A.E. Pierrey of St. John's Church, Wilton, and Rev. Peter Ruddle of Brookfield Presbyterian Church. The choir was under the direction of Harold Chandler. Mrs. Chandler was organist.

One minute silence was observed, followed by a prayer by Mr. Pierrey. Mr. Ruddle read the names on the monument.

A presentation was made by Major Macdonald when he called upon Mrs. Gordon Andrews, president, and Mrs. Harold Chandler, secretary of the Women's Institute, to accept a Canadian flag. As the two ladies raised the flag to the masthead, Mr. Chandler and his choir sang "O Canada".

Wreaths were placed at the foot of the cenotaph by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cochrane, in memory of their son Cpl. Lorne; Mrs. Foster Skerry, secretary, read a letter from Mrs. E. G. Travers asking the association to send some information on the work carried on to help in the preparing of a newsletter.

Frank Sampson, social worker with the association addressed the meeting explaining some statistics of the intelligence rating of the world. He listed seven categories that different people fit into, and showed a film on the retarded child, and how through special training they can be helped.

Mr. Sampson also spoke of the importance of a strong, active membership.

Other speakers were Rev. Floyd McLaugh, Wilson Shea and Gregory McInnis.
