Montague Town Council Considers Paving Project

A special meeting of the Montague Town Council was held in the council room last evening to consider questions respecting the street paving project in Montague. His Worship, Mayor B. H. Yeo, presided. Present were Councillors Hession, MacGowan, Nicholson, Jamieson, and Reynolds. The Town Clerk presented the bill of Poole and Beer Construction Company for graveling and labour on all the streets of the town totalling $4000.40. The council was well pleased with the work which has been undertaken, and was of the opinion that all residents would benefit greatly from the improved condition of the streets and drains of the town. It is planned to call estimates on the actual paving work on certain streets from several Island firms, and the clerk was instructed to write each company setting out the plan and requesting estimates. The project calls for 1-4 miles of paving to be completed this year. Councillor MacGowan was appointed chairman of the street committee to replace Councillor MacLeod, who is ill, and Councillor Jamieson was appointed as chairman of the police committee.

His Worship informed the council that it was possible that the dock east of the Stephens Wharf in Montague might be dredged this year to form a small boat harbour for the use of those operating boats.

The council was informed that a bulldozer would be required to push back and level the dump so that a new dumping area might be made. The chairman of the street committee was appointed to investigate this matter.

General discussion followed respecting the installation of culverts, and it was decided that another culvert was required on the new road to complete the present work.

After a short discussion on traffic laws within the town limits, during which it was pointed out that cars must not be parked so as to obstruct two-way traffic, the meeting adjourned.

of Montague United Church, conducted the service. Hymns sung were "The Lord is My Shepherd", and "Nearer My God To Thee." The "Old Rugged Cross", was beautifully rendered by the choir. Pallbearers were Messrs. Russell Hicken, W. D. Fraser, Herbert MacFarlane, Freeman Millar, Robert Campbell, Arthur MacDonald. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Dragger Operations To Commence Early In June

The growing fleet of fishing draggers which has Souris as a home port is expected to commence operations early in June. The boats will sail for the haddock fishing grounds somewhere around June 10th.

If they meet with success, the company in Souris, which handles the catch, will employ about seventy girls and a considerable number of men for several months.

Normally the company reduces the number of its employees after the lobster season ends on July 1st, but with the introduction of draggers the number of factory workers is increased rather than reduced. After being landed in Souris, the haddock are filleted and thereafter kept under modern refrigeration until they reach the retail markets. Last year three to four draggers were based at Souris for a good part of the season and this year new boats are expected to join the fleet.

Difficulties were experienced hitherto in security expert filleters, and a number of men were given training in this type of work. It is hoped this year that sufficient filleters can be recruited to fill the company's needs. This expansion of the fishing industry in the eastern part of the province will bring new money to the province and provide employment for many people who would otherwise be idle.

People in close touch with the fishing industry believe that the present forward steps being taken to process haddock in Souris may lead to the establishment of the town as one of the bigger maritime fishing centres in the coming years.

It is understood that a market for the fillets exists in New England, as well as on this side of the border, one of the biggest problems is to make sure that the fish reach the consumer fresh and with their full flavour retained. This obstacle is overcome by quick-freezing and then keeping the fillets in the proper refrigerator temperature until placed on sale.

The operations of the dragger fleet and the disposal of the fish to outside markets will be closely followed by the Government officials and all connected with the fishing industry in this province.

EXPECT DIESELS

He said one of the new conditions respecting competitive rates will mean that the railways must be able to establish that competition exists.

"This might well mean the railways would actually have to lose business to other modes of transportation before they could establish a competitive rate to meet such competition. We would not be able, as we are able today, to forestall losing traffic by meeting 'potential' competition of unregulated carriers."

New Spirit In Britain

Richard Fry, financial editor of the Manchester Guardian, told the manufacturers "there is a new spirit in British industry—one that has hardly yet been recognized in our own country, let alone abroad. 'Until a few years ago a large proportion of British industrial executives were by training salesmen or accountants. They came in 25 years ago with the slump, and many of them rose to the top. 'The typical British executive today has been trained in science or engineering, or at any rate has some grounding in mathematics and what is called scientific management. 'With that goes a gradual change in the British attitude towards mass-production methods.' Mr. Fry said Britain is beginning to feel German competition in machinery and chemicals. 'But this is an age of rapid industrialization, and if the channels of world trade remain reasonably open, there should be sufficient room for both British and German capital-goods exports. 'The keenest rivalry will probably come in drugs, but the British drug industry has made amazing progress.'"

RIOTING TIMED

Continued from page 1 on rumors that West Berlin and its 2,200,000 people would be given up to the Russians without a fight. Saying the rumors were "circulated for political purpose to cause unrest," the government added in a statement they are totally without foundation.

Reds Tighten Screws
