IN MEMORIAM

NELSON STEAD
On June 1st, 1956, there passed peacefully away in his home at Wheatley River, Nelson Stead in his 86th year. He was born in the vicinity of Hunter River, and he lived practically all his life in the vicinity of Wheatley River and Hunter River.
He was a man of quiet integrity and industry and a successful farmer. Hospitable and kindly he enjoyed having visitors come to his home and was always ready to lend a helping hand to neighbour or stranger, when the occasion needed, and assist in all worthy causes for the betterment of the community in which he lived.
He shall be missed but it is in the home where the loss of a loving husband and father will be most keenly felt when loved ones "go for the touch of the vanished hand, and the sound of a voice which is stilled".
He leaves to cherish his memory his widow and five sons and three daughters. The sons are, Lloyd Stead living on the old Stead home, Wheatley River, Norman, Granville, Alta., Robert C. Wheatley River, Alfred Glasgow Road and Orville at home. The daughters are, Mrs. Lester Johnstone, Milton; Ada, Mrs. R.B. Smith, New Glasgow, P.E.I.; and five brothers, namely Richard at Rustico, Ernest, Hunter River; Robert Mayfield, P.E.I.; and Rufus, Calgary; and Edgar, B.C. The sisters are, Mrs. Charles Houston, Rustico; Mrs. Benjamin Matheson, Highfield, P.E.I.; and Mrs. Sara Seaman, Milton, P.E.I.; One sister, Mrs. Albert Crowsell predeceased him three years since. 15 grandchildren and one great grandchild also survive him.
The funeral which was largely attended took place on June 3rd, 1956, with a short service in the home thence to Wheatley River United Church. Rev. C.H. Moose conducted the services, speaking a message of comfort and inspiration. Hymns sung by the choir of Wheatley River assisted by Hunter River choir were "Nearer My God to Thee" and the 23rd Psalm favorites of the deceased.
Mr. Gordon Carey sang a solo, "Beyond The Sunset," accompanied by Mrs. Ivan Bowman at the organ. The pallbearers were his neighbours namely, Messrs James Wares, Reagh Barrett, Don Daye, Elsworth Waye, Rolland Warren and John Nicholson. Funeral director James Andrews. Foreign Policy Issue Is Coming To Fare In The U.S.

By GEORGE KITCHEN Canadian Press Staff Writer WASHINGTON (CP) — Foreign policy, the orphan issue in the early stages of the U.S. election campaign, is coming into its own as the race for the presidency approaches the home stretch.

It has been thrust to the top of the list of campaign issues by Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee who lived up to the election debate with his controversial and widely publicized call for an international ban on H-bomb tests.

Stevenson followed up his H-bomb proposal with a Cincinnati speech in which he made a slashing attack on Republican foreign policy as "erratic, naive, clumsy, sterile and timid." He is expected to broaden his attack in a major speech tonight in New York's Madison Square Garden.

The nation, meantime, awaited the release today of a government "white paper" on the H-bomb, ordered by President Eisenhower as the administration's answer to the Stevenson proposal. It also debated the political and international consequences of Eisenhower's angry weekend charge that Soviet Premier Bulganin had been guilty of meddling in internal U.S. political affairs when he wrote the president urging an end to tests of nuclear weapons.

The Republican campaign, as far as foreign policy is concerned, is being geared to "peace." The Republican argument boils down to this: That the United States has been at war under the last three Democratic presidents — Truman, Roosevelt and Wilson; that it has been at peace under the Eisenhower administration.

The president, seeking his second term, is being billed by Republican campaign strategists as "the Peacemaker," the man who single-handedly ended the Korean War, avoided war in Indochina, reached an "understanding" with the Soviet leaders at Geneva and now has "taken care of the situation" in the Suez.

Steel Industry Wants Protection

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's steel industry argued before the tariff board Monday that the way to overcome the Canadian steel shortage is to grant the industry higher tariff protection.

D. S. Holbrook, president of Algoma Steel Corporation, estimated that while Canadian steel production may rise this year to about 5,000,000 tons, consumption will be between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 tons.

The industry had invested some $400,000,000 in expansion in the last decade. But it was just not economic for the industry to produce some steel items because of the low tariff.

He delivered the industry's final summation of argument in favor of an overhaul of Canada's 50-year-old steel tariff. Proposals submitted by the industry would almost double the tariff on most steel items.

Various steel consumer bodies have delivered protests, arguing higher tariffs would lead to higher prices.

"Tariff increases would 'inevitably add to the burden of consumers,'" the Canadian Association of Consumers said in a written brief to the board.

Prince Applauds Russian Show

LONDON (AP)—Prince Charles saw the Bolshoi Ballet's nearest equivalent to a wild west show Saturday and clapped so hard he afterwards held his hands in mock pain.

The seven-year-old prince, accompanied by the Queen Mother, stood on the stage between acts while a group of savage-looking dancers from The Fountain of Bakhchisarai cracked their whips around him and invited him to have a try.

But Prince Charles declined to attempt to equal their pistol-like cracking which was puzzling the waiting audience the other side of the dropped curtain.

The Russian dancers formed a friendly ring around the prince while he asked to see the colorful production of the story of the Tartars and their folklore.

Anderson said afterwards: "I have never heard a young child ask such intelligent questions. He wanted to know how we got the gold effect with the curtain and many other things."

BLUE RAIN FALLS

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuters)—Blue rain fell last Sunday at the small hamlet of Yardea, 300 miles from the atomic testing range at Maralinga, it was reported Saturday. The explosion was heard at Yardea and was followed by a heavy thunderstorm.

over as director 3 1/2 years ago, said the importance of Canada's export trade is obvious.

Without it, many Canadian manufacturers couldn't produce at sufficient volume to keep prices competitive. The Canadian market isn't big enough yet to absorb such large quantities of production.

To promote Canada's vital foreign trade, he said, "we look for men who can sell Canada abroad." It is often very competitive. In selling wheat, for example, Canadian trade commissioners sometimes find themselves promoting a grain that sells for a higher price than their competitors' product.

In that case, they have to use salesmanship. They stress the higher protein content, the highly-efficient grading system in Canada.

The service has grown considerably since the end of the Second World War. In 1946 it had 31 of- fices abroad, compared to the present 55. There were 82 commissioners; now there are some 120.

Mr. English, a native of Edmonton, insists that his men meet high qualifications. Last year about 175 persons, many of them holding university degrees in economics, business administration, accounting or international trade, applied for appointments. Only 35 passed the stiff written and oral examinations and only the top 11 of these were selected.

The next batch of recruits will be looked over this winter and the top ones will go through the examinations next spring. The best of them will then take their place in Canada's growing corps of international travelling salesmen.

Canada's Foreign Trade Service Is Growing Fast

By DON PEACOCK Canadian Press Staff Writer OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's foreign trade service will soon be recruiting more men for a sales promotion job in the distant market places of the world that grows in importance as this country's international trade deficit increases.

Every winter applicants are sought for about a dozen openings in this 70-year-old corps of international travelling salesmen working for the trade department. They take a year's intensive training in Ottawa and top it off with at least two months spent travelling from coast to coast to learn all they can about what Canada has to sell.

Then they go abroad to sell everything from Canadian codfish, wheat, machinery, minerals and oil to stout, films, lumber and baby food. Their biggest job, however, says service chief John H. English, is to sell Canada as such.

GROWTH OF IMPORTS The job has never been bigger. By the end of August, Canada's 1956 international trade deficit—excess of imports over exports—was running at a record $643,900,000 rate, more than triple the $204,200,000 in 1955.

The trade service officers don't carry order books. Their job is to get Canadian sellers together with foreign buyers. Their primary function is to promote Canada's export trade.

Mr. English estimated that last year his men had a part in the sale of $8,000,000 worth of Canadian goods abroad.

The service has 55 offices outside Canada. That covers most of the vital trading areas in the world. The office opened most recently is in Hamburg, Germany, and Mr. English said there are also plans to send trade officers to Colombo, Los Angeles and Tehran.

The 54-year-old service chief, who served as a trade commissioner in Dublin, New York, London, Johannesburg and Washington before returning here to take

War Office Explains There Is A Communist In The Coy

LONDON (Reuters) — The war office took the unusual step Thursday night of naming a soldier as an "active Communist" and saying he tried to organize a mass protest among troops coming home on leave.

The war office statement followed an incident earlier today when the 22,445-ton troopship Asturias docked at Southampton with 1,500 reservists returning home from Germany on a week's leave.

When the troopship tied up, a letter was thrown to waiting porters.

The letter, on ship's writing paper, was stated to represent the views of No. 120 Company of the Royal Army Service Corps.

NO INVASION It said the men realized, as paid reservists, that they could not complain if recalled in an emergency. It Britain is endangered, there will be "no hesitation on our part," it said.

The letter added: "But we feel that to invade Egypt would not only lose us what we are trying to keep—Middle East oil—but would also lead to a third world war."

The letter asked the public to press the government to support the United Nations and not use
