The Punctuation Points.

Six little marks from school are we, Very important, all agree, Filled to the brim with mystery— Six little marks from school.

One little mark is round and small, But where it stands the voice must fall; At the close of a sentence, all Place this little mark from school.

One little mark, with gown a-trailing, Holds up the voice, never failing; Tells you not to pause when hailing This little mark from school.

If out of breath, you chance to meet Two little dots both round and neat, Pause and these tiny guardsmen greet— These little marks from school.

When shorter pauses are your pleasure, One trails his sword—takes half the measure— Then speeds you on to seek new treasure— This little mark from school.

One little mark ear shaped implies, "Keep up the voice, await replies;" To gather information tries This little mark from school.

One little mark, with an exclamation, Presents itself to your observation, And leaves the voice at an elevation— This little mark from school.

Six little marks be sure to heed us, Carefully study, write, and read us For you can never cease to need us— Six little marks from school.

Three Brave Boys.

In a corner of an English museum stands a hollow gourd containing some curious wooden type. They are curious because they are double-faced. They were sent out from England for use in the mission press at Uganda, in Central Africa; but the resident missionary, Alexander Mackay, finding them unsuitable, cut other letters upon them, so that they might be used reversed.

The press in which they were used had been in existence several years, under the somewhat uncertain patronage of King Mtesa; but when this monarch died, in October, 1884, heavy clouds soon gathered round the native converts and their heroic teacher, Mr. Mackay. The new king, Mwanga, was bitterly opposed to the missionaries for he supposed that they had ulterior designs upon his kingdom. As soon, therefore, as he came to the throne, the Christians knew that their lives were in imminent peril.

A tale was spread that the missionary was in communication with the king's enemies, and he was promptly seized together with the boys employed at the mission press. Mackay got off; but all his efforts failed to save the lives of some of his native boys.

Here is his own brief account of the awful tragedy: They were taken, with Kakumba and Mr. Ashe's boy, and also Serwanga, a tall fine fellow, who had been baptised. These three were then tortured, their arms were cut off, and they were bound alive to a scaffolding under which a fire was made, and so they were slowly burned to death. Our hearts are breaking!

While they thus endured the slow agony of roasting, the executioner and his men stood by, laughing and challenging them to pray now to Isa Masiya (Jesus Christ), and asking if they thought he could save them.

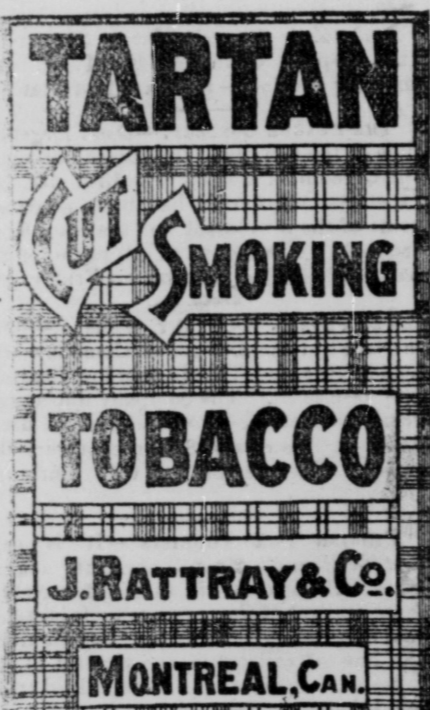

Then those brave martyr-boys lifted up their heads, and looked up through the smoke to the cloudless sky above, and started singing praises to Him who loved them and gave Himself for them until their dry and shrivelled mouths could no longer utter a sound.

In the whole history of missions there is not a more pathetic scene than that of three black boys, singing hymns of praise while being slowly roasted to death. It is not surprising to hear that the conduct of these martyrs made a deep impression upon the bystanders, and one of the executioners came forward and begged to be taught the Christian religion.—Exchange.

Mr. Cole Discovers the Power of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Windsor, Feb. 20.—The following statement, which Mr. F. H. Cole of this place requests us to publish, is worthy of attention from every victim of Rheumatism in Canada.

Mr. Cole's experience fully warrants him in making this statement.

"Words cannot describe how I suffered from Rheumatism and Kidney Complaint. I tried every cure that was recommended but got no benefit until I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Thank God I did use Dodd's Kidney Pills, for they cured me—made me sound and well, in every joint and limb."

Those who suffer the agonies of Rheumatism or Lumbago need do so no longer. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure them.
