Red Delegate To U.N. Says U.S. Slandering Russia

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., (CP) Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin has charged the United States with slandering Russia in asking, during a United Nations disarmament debate, that Russia demonstrate it really wants peace.

Such questions as U.S. delegate Ernest Gross asked Wednesday about Russia's intentions were "artificial," Zorin said Thursday. Speaking in the UN's 60-country political committee, Zorin said Russia repeatedly demonstrated its desire for peace in the long talks on disarmament and atomic control.

No Break In Deadlock

Zorin's answers came within 24 hours of Gross' challenge that the Soviet Union show it is sincere in wanting peace. "The answers convince Western delegates there was no break in the deadlock despite the change in U.S. and U.S.S.R. leaders."

Gross asked the Soviet delegate two questions and said he wanted them answered after full consideration by the Soviet government.

Question 1: Is Russia now willing to discuss constructively the question of disarmament?

Zorin replied that Russia had repeatedly submitted proposals and they were all "designed to bring about a solution of that important problem."

Question 2: Does the Soviet government consider the UN the proper forum for such discussions?

Zorin replied that the discussions have been going on in the UN and should continue despite what he termed obstruction by the U. S. and other allies.

Other Speakers Zorin spoke after Sir Gladwyn Jebb, Britain's delegate, and Leslie Knox Munro of New Zealand, called on the Russians to show their sincerity for peace by acting now on the disarmament proposals.

Zorin spent most of his 90-minute speech going over every proposal on atomic control and disarmament that the Soviet Union has made since the UN first took up the subject in 1946.

Zorin introduced at the end of his speech a resolution which would ensure the disarmament commission for concentrating on its community.

In his opening remarks Mr. MacDonald said he was glad to see the Premier again. "He appears to be an evening institution," he added.

Premier Jones told the delegation that the Government was well aware of what was to be done regarding rural electrification and said that anything that can be done will be done.

The Premier remarked on the income received from liquor taxes and said if those who did not drink paid as much in taxes as the drinkers the Government could put in a land settlement plan.

Several members were heard to suggest "Then tax the prohibitionists."

There was a sharp verbal encounter between the Premier and Mr. Louis O'Connor, New London, regarding the cutting down by the Government of the grant given credit unions.

Mr. O'Connor reminded his hearers that the $4500 grant was the result of a "signed and sealed" agreement by the Government and maintained that the Credit Union had $1,500 coming from the Government. He asked if the Government intended to disown its obligation and when told by the Premier that the unions should pay their own supervising costs he said, "We have 15,000 members, just try to convince them of that."

Mr. Jones asked if that was a political threat.

He said the credit unions and co-operatives were so closely entwined their identities could not be clearly defined and since the co-operatives were now doing an $8 million business annually he suggested that the two be separated and then he asked what the Government would do for credit unions.

He said the Government here gave more per capita than did Nova Scotia where the credit unions originated.

Of the proposed public killing plant he told the Federation that their special committee had been told to approach the Government with a plan involving the investing in it by Federation members.

This was not done and the Government was asked to put up the necessary money.

Among other speakers were Mr. R. R. Bell, Leader of the Opposition, Mr. W. F. A. Stewart, Mr. Harvey Douglas, Hon' C. C. Baker, Mr. George Saville, Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan who recalled that there had been a good abattoir here 30 years ago but it was not supported.

matters he called designed more to help Western intelligence services than to cut armaments. It would also direct the commission to concentrate without delay on Soviet proposals for immediate prohibition of atomic weapons and for a one-third cut in the armed strength of the five big powers.

Inquest Held In Midgell Death

...That Maynard Sanderson, Midgell, came to his death on March 16th, as the result of an accidental blow on the side of the head which had caused cerebral hemorrhage resulting in his death.

The autopsy report showed that the deceased had received a blow on the right side of the head which had caused cerebral hemorrhage resulting in his death.

Witnesses heard were Eileen Sanderson, daughter of the deceased, who said that her father had been in good health that morning, and Mr. Osborne McEwen, who found the body. He described seeing the horses running, and after he had caught them had retraced the road where he found the body lying on the roadway. He informed Mrs. Sanderson, and the body was later removed to her home.

Dr. Arnold Burden, St. Peter's, was coroner.

Members of the jury were Aldis MacKenzie, foreman; Harold Webster, Marshall Peters, Everett Webster, George Bowler, Daniel Dingwell, and Gordon Hooper.

Paterson and Mr. Alexander MacLeod was explained by Premier Jones, the promoter. He said that when Mr. Paterson was induced to come here to teach by the late Dr. Samuel Robertson he had been promised that his teaching experience in other Provinces would be given consideration towards his pension here. He accepted on that understanding.

Premier Jones told of the educational attainments and the long experience in Eastern and Western Canada. He got no objections to the proposal with Dr. MacMillan agreeing that it was the right thing to do.

Hon. A. W. Matheson explained that in 1923 when the Professor came here it was difficult to obtain mathematics teachers for the College and this promise was an inducement held out to him.

Dr. MacMillan recalled that he was Minister of Education at the time and knew of the promise.

Civic Debentures

The City of Charlottetown was given authority to issue debentures in the amount of $450,000 in order to fund capital expenditures for permanent works last year.

Much of yesterday's time was taken up by the lengthy Act to incorporate Amalgamated Dairies Limited providing for the concentration in Summerside of all dairy activities of the several small dairies which are uniting. Mr. Bell expressed surprise that the several small communities involved were willing to see the business moved.

Hon. E. Cullen drew attention of members to the wording which provides that where boards of directors received authority to be deemed that they always had such authority to enter into contracts to carry out the amalgamation. The speaker said that this clause was the "meat" of the whole thing and he thought greater safeguards should be provided as this would wipe out the protection small shareholders had under other acts of incorporation. He thought that the decision to amalgamate was not unanimous with one group saying the voting to amalgamate was not properly handled and threatening to start a suit in the Supreme Court.

He did not favor legislating a person's property away and was afraid the clause might have the effect of whitewashing actions of the directors.

There was some minor discussion on the methods of stock distribution before the bill finally passed through the committee.

Announcement was made of intention to introduce amendments to the Village Service Act, Work-

Rev. J.M. Fraser Addresses Men's Club In Montague

...Rev. J. M. Fraser, pastor of Trinity United Church, Montague, was guest speaker at the Men's Club supper meeting on Monday evening, March 16th.

Mr. Fraser's address was on the recent census and an interesting conclusion resulted from his comparison of the population of the town of Montague with that of all other incorporated towns in the Maritimes with a population of less than 1500; that is, that Montague had the largest population increase of any of those towns—proving that Montague is the fastest growing small towns in the Maritime Provinces.

It was also related by Mr. Fraser that Montague was found to have had the largest increase in population, for the past ten years, of any town in Prince Edward Island—approximately 30%.

After a delicious hot dinner, served by the ladies of the church, a short business meeting was held at which the president, Mr. Gordon Coffin, presided. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

A sing song led by Mr. Coffin and accompanied on the piano by Mrs. J. M. Fraser was then enjoyed.

It was decided that the white elephant sale and chicken supper would be held next month.

The speaker of the evening was introduced by Mr. C. A. Shaw and at the close of the address Mr. Ethan Stewart tendered the thanks of the members to Rev. Mr. Fraser.

Following the meeting the men's choir, under the direction of Mr. Frank Johnson, held a practice for the forthcoming music festival.

NAMED IN PROBE — Michael F. Allore, manager of the Saskatchewan government insurance office, has denied charges that he received alleged "kickbacks" in commissions from an insurance firm. A provincial government legislative crown corporations committee is investigating allegations that officials of the Saskatchewan CCF government received a share of sums paid by an insurance firm, Financial Agencies, Ltd. An affidavit, signed by J. O. Rawluk, a former agent for the government insurance office, charged Dr. M. C. Shumliacher, a former secretary of Financial Agencies, arranged the alleged kickbacks. Dr. Shumliacher denied the charge. (CP PHOTO)
