NEW CHURCH AT LITTLE POND.

One of the Prettiest Little Churches in the Province.

The work on the interior of St. Francis de Sales Church, Little Pond, of which Rev. J. C. McLean is pastor, has been completed and the people of that parish can now boast of having one of the prettiest little churches on the Island. The interior is all finished in wood, Mr. James McEachern, of Souris, being the contractor, and Mr. Alex Steele, of the same place, superintended the job. They are both master-workmen, and did this work to the satisfaction of all.

The painting was done by Mr. Crossman, of Charlottetown, who is an adept at the brush. The blending of colors is most delicate, and the ensemble appears very artistic and pleasing to the eye. The ceiling is painted in pink-white, laid off in Gothic panels and German mouldings, with rosettes in gold. The walls are in light pale flesh color, panelled with stiles of light herron grey and fringed in gold. The columns are carved out in light emerald, the capitals of which are done in gold pattern. The doors leading from the vestry are grained in oak and burl maple. The wainscotting, which is very beautiful, is also done in oak and maple, with rosettes in gold and japan, shaded, and patterned between rosettes. On the crown panel over the sanctuary is a picture of a dove, painted by Mr. Crossman. The picture is surrounded by a Grecian border in gold and light blue. At the head is a chalice in gold. The dove is represented as descending from a cloud. The figure is very well executed and the shades in the background are artistically brought out. This picture alone proves that Mr. Crossman is an artist of no ordinary talent. The altar railing is in plain wood, and the pews and gallery front are grained to harmonize with the other work. The windows are stippled in light purple. The amount of gold leaf used on the work was 240 square feet. Mr. Crossman and his assistant, Mr. Brown, were six weeks at the job, which, considering the shortness of the days and the amount of work done, proves that they can not only do a beautiful job but do it in a short time. We hope to see Mr. Crossman wielding his brush and stencil in more of our Island churches. A new vestry has been built to the church this year, the most of the work being done by the parishioners.

The pastor and people of this small mission of about forty-five families are to be congratulated on the amount of improvement done within the last two years, which proves that they are animated with that spirit of faith which treats that nothing is too good for the House of God, that neither time, labor or money can be sufficiently expended in beautifying God's Temple.—Com.

THE BLACK KNIGHT.

All Should Unite and Work for the Overthrow of King Alcohol.

Ex-Councillor Crabbe presided at the temperance meeting in the Opera House last evening, and every portion of the spacious edifice was crowded. A number of the ladies of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, several clergymen, and representatives of the various temperance organizations occupied seats upon the stage. The lecture of the Black Knight occupied about an hour and three-quarters. It was listened to with the closest attention, and was frequently interrupted by laughter and applause.

Before proceeding with his lecture Rev. Mr. Hector made the announcement that owing to the proposed change in the railway time-table, and engagements which he had elsewhere, he would be unable to lecture on Friday afternoon, as announced. Instead he would lecture on Wednesday afternoon at half-past two in the First Methodist Church, and his discourse would deal with his early life, his conversion, and the escape from slavery of his parents.

The subject of his lecture, as had already been announced, was "The slavery that was and the slavery that is." The slaves of the South, said he, got up early in the morning at the sound of the horn; the slave of the liquor habit gets up early in the morning to get his horn. The slave of the South was cruelly marked about the person so that he might be more easily recognized; but every bloated, bleareyed wreck seen about the street corners bears a more repulsive mark than that which was borne by the slaves—the mark of King Alcohol.

The question of compensation to those in the liquor business in the event of the adoption of prohibition had been raised. He believed in compensating them along the same lines as Lincoln compensated Major Cheney. Major Cheney presented his bill for compensation and assured Lincoln it was all right. Lincoln told him to go and bring back every child he had separated from its mother, every husband he had separated from his wife, and to right several other wrongs he had done "If you cannot do this," said Lincoln, "God being my helper I shall not sign your bill." He would ask every man in the rum business—the men who expect compensation for the loss their business would sustain by the adoption of prohibition—if he could restore to their heart-broken mothers the boys whom he had destroyed? if he could restore to happiness the homes he had wrecked? if he could restore wrecked manhood to the victims of his traffic. "If he cannot do these things," said the lecturer, "then God helping me I shall never go for compensating him."

He advised the christian people to settle the prohibition question themselves. Don't trust the politicians. They face both ways.

One of the saddest sights he ever witnessed was the agonized colored mother kissing her only boy, the pride of her heart, farewell, when by the knock of the auctioneer's hammer he was sold to some cruel master. How many children are there in the land to-day, who, owing to drink, are without their parents? The liquor traffic is worse than slavery, because slavery oppressed only one race. We should unite and wipe out the traffic.

There are two kinds of wine, said the lecturer. The Scripture teaches so. The wine of the Scripture is wine, not alcohol. If Jesus had made fermented wine he would have violated the Jewish law, and He came to fulfil the law not to break it. Alcohol is the product of decayed vegetable matter. Jesus made the wine of pure water, and water does not contain sufficient vegetable matter to make alcohol.

In the old days of slavery, said the lecturer, when the slaves were sick they could go to the hospital where they would be cared for. But where has the liquor dealer erected a place for his victims?

During the time that the Scott Act has been in force in this city, less than two years, there has been collected in fines the sum of $3981.10. Of this sum there has been spent for the enforcement of the Act $1506.86. This leaves a balance of $2474 24 unexpended. The law says the money collected in fines shall be used for the enforcement of the Act. Has this been done? Have the City Council done their duty in this matter? If they have not then it is for the good christian people to line up and "bust" them. Let this money be taken and used to wipe out all the rum-holes in the city. Civic politics and the temperance question should be disassociated from Federal and Provincial politics. Everyone should organize and work in the public interests regardless of party politics.

Regarding the question of revenue in the event of the adoption of prohibition, he thought it was poor policy to pay out seven dollars to catch one. When he was a clergyman in Haverstraw he was treated to a surprise party. A crowd of people gathered at his house one night and had a good time. They said they had brought everything with them and all they wanted was the use of his house. After they had gone Mrs. Hector and himself busied around to see what they had made out of their visit. They found, however, that their visitors had not only eaten everything they brought with them but they had also disposed of everything eatable in the Hector household. All their visitors left was a pile of highly-polished chicken bones and a quantity of dirty dishes. So it is with the license system. You will lose more than you gain by it. Whiskey never brought a blessing to the world. No drunkard ever enters the kingdom of Heaven. What doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his soul. Wipe out the rum curse, irrespective of the dollars. Take a stand on the side of righteousness and truth.

The rev. lecturer, in conclusion, urged his hearers not to lose courage. Do not falter in the fight, said he. The battle is with ballots, not bullets. God is with you in the struggle for the overthrow of King Alcohol. Wipe out the rum curse and free its slaves. "I yearn for the day of prohibition," said he, "when England's flag shall never again wave over a brewery or any description of place where the rum traffic is enthroned."

After three hearty cheers for the lecturer the large audience dispersed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

AN ACCOMPLISHED VIOLINIST.

SIR,—I enclose this compliment to C. L. Chisholm, taken from the Advocate, Pictou. I read a prayer of one of the Evangelists last week in your paper, that the right arm of the fiddlers, as he called those who played for a dance, might be paralyzed, and I wondered when I read it what manner of man, if man at all, could pray in that strain. The C. L. Chisholm referred to is a brother of our artist, Miss Chisholm, and nephew to Mrs. J. J. Davies, of this city.

A READER OF THE EXAMINER.

A COMPLIMENT TO C. L. CHISHOLM.

C. L. Chisholm, instructor of the violin and of elementary and advanced harmony and of musical forms in the Mount Allison conservatory, is to be congratulated on the success of a thesis written on the work of Dr. Percy Goetschius, entitled "The material used in musical composition." This work is generally conceded by European and American authorities to be the most scientific and exhaustive treatise ever written on the above subject, containing every known element in modern harmony and counterpoint. Mr. Chisholm's paper sent for criticism to the distinguished author, brought a personal reply from Dr. Goetschius, in which he says: "It is a matter of great satisfaction to me to observe what a complete grasp you have obtained of the 'material' of musical composition; it only remains for you to put your knowledge to practical use," etc. Mr. C. L. Chisholm is a brother of Mr. G. R. Chisholm, of the Merchants Bank, Pictou.

At the W. C. T. U. coffee rooms on Grafton Street lunches are served from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., Sunday excepted. Also oysters. tf
