

MR. AND MRS. J. J. SHIRLEY AND ATTENDANTS

Wed At The Basilica Live In Kamloops, B. C.

St. Dunstan's Basilica, Charlottetown, was the scene of a lovely autumn wedding, on Sept. 29th, 1956, at 9 a.m. when Mary Rita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Shanahan, Charlottetown, P.E.I., and James Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Shirley, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Monsignor Patrick McMahon performed the ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. The altar was artistically decorated with pink and white gladioli, and potted green ferns. The guest pews were marked with white satin bows. Mrs. Joseph Dougan, church organist, played the nuptial music. The beautiful Schubert's "Ave Maria" and "Pania Angelicus" were sung by guest soloist Miss Joan Murnaghan, while appropriate hymns were also sung by Saint Dunstan's Basilica Ladies' Choir.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a floor length model gown of nylon tulle and lace. Featuring a boat neckline trimmed with iridescent sequins and seeded pearls. The long sleeves tapered to points over the hands. The gown was fashioned on princess lines, with lace panel front and back. The side panels of nylon tulle were gathered over the hip lines, forming a short train. The veil was chapel length with a crown of iridescent sequins and seeded pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white feathered carnations.

The bride was attended by her sisters, Mrs. Dennis Dowling, matron of honour, Miss Mary Shanahan, bridesmaid, who wore identical floor length strapless gowns of shrimp crystal over shrimp taffeta, with matching capes and picture hats. They carried cascades of white and rose carnations.

Little Miss Diana Dowling, niece of the bride, as flower girl wore a street length sleeveless dress of blue crystal over blue taffeta, with scalloped collar and centered by a large bow. She wore matching head band and carried a tiny cascade of white mums and pink sweetheart roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. Lloyd Hinchberger. The guests were ushered by Mr. James Murray and Mr. Dennis Dowling.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held at the Queen Hotel where seventy five guests partook of a delicious wedding breakfast. The bridal table was attractively decorated and centered with a three tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. Francis Corcoran, and was fittingly responded to by the groom. During the reception piano selections were rendered by Mr. Al Blanchard. Mrs. Reg MacMillan was in charge of the guest book.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding, a dress of dusty rose, with navy accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses. Mrs. L. A. MacDonald, proxy, mother of the groom, wore brown tweed suit with fur neckpiece. Her accessories were pink and brown, with a corsage of yellow roses.

Following the reception the bride and groom left on a motor trip to New York. For travelling the bride wore a blush rose wool boucle suit with dark brown accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

Previous to her marriage the bride was a popular employee of Holman's Ladies Wear, Charlottetown, and was tendered a supper party in the Blue Room of Old Spain by her fellow employees. She was also entertained at a personal shower by Miss Doris Walsh. A linen shower was given by Mrs. Gerald Bowness and Mrs. Stewart Jenkins. Mrs. Temple Hooper and Miss Phyllis Brown, Mrs. W. G. MacKenzie and Mrs. Eric Wilson, entertained at three individual supper parties.

Congratulatory telegrams were received from Mr. and Mrs. J. Shirley and family, Saskatoon; Mr. and Mrs. J. Greif, Alberta; Mr. and Mrs. Hinchberger, Trout Creek, Ontario; Rev. Father Corbett, Saskatchewan; Mr. and Mrs. M. Christaen, Saskatchewan.

Out of town guests included Miss Lois Burke, Proxy, mother, Montreal; Mrs. Reg MacMillan, Halifax; Mr. Lloyd Hinchberger, Trout Creek, Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. George MacCormack, Mt. Stewart.

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley will reside in Kamloops, B.C., for the winter months and will later make their home in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. Photo by Hambly.

MARY HAWORTH Husband Makes Bad Situation

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL
Dear Mary Haworth: I've debated a long time before writing to see if you can help with my problem, which seems unique to me.

My husband began taking me to doctors about two years ago, and finally, about two years ago, he had me committed to the state hospital for the mentally ill. Five months later he got me out, but when I refused to live with him as his wife, he sent me back in less than a year. I couldn't feel towards him as I had before he began forcing me to go to doctors, and I didn't feel like pretending.

George, I'll call him, follows construction work and makes good money, but he never would buy a home, or put his money into anything secure or stable, so I've never had any sense of security since I married him 18 years ago.

Constant migration, moving from one dirty little apartment to another, in one strange city after another, never having any permanent friends or anything that a normal woman needs and desires, finally was more than I could endure, and my physical health began to break. And I wasn't in a mood to oblige his insatiable sex demands. At that point he had me committed to the mental hospital.

I stayed three months the second time, then was rescued by some friends, when they learned that he planned to leave me there for life. But my friends can't keep me forever, and George sends me very little money, and may stop payments altogether, any day, so I still have no sense of security.

I am able to work, but the only experience I've had was in cafe work, over 18 years ago; and now I am 42, overweight and not as attractive as I was then. So jobs aren't easily found; and I have no people to give me a hand. I need help, so I am appealing to you. P.C.

PAIR FAILED
Dear P.C.: No doubt there are two sides to the story—George's and yours. And I despatch that an honest case could be made for each side; and that neither of us was able to meet the other's needs in marriage.

I am not siding against you, when I suggest that George probably always has felt that you were pretty much of a child on his hands—helpless, and complaining, and disorganized, lacking initiative, objectivity, etc., in dealing with circumstances. But still, adequately satisfactory as a sex partner (hence tolerable), until a few years ago, when your general health began to break.

This break probably coincided with, and was caused by, a fierce unconscious conflict in you—an emotional deadlock between wanting (1) to be wholly dependent on George (or somebody) and (2) feeling unwilling and unable to go on paying his price for support. Caught in this "two-way rough," you became sickly and tense and difficult—a problem wife, unable either to understand your decline, or to discuss it to George.

RESOLUTION
You be dragged you on a round of the merry-go-round with a bunch

that he was somehow involved in your illness, that you were on strike against him, or the marriage, etc.—and the upshot was, you went to a mental hospital. Well, maybe you needed this respite, this retreat into a special environment, at the time—to clarify your problem, and achieve some resolution.

When you emerged months later you knew at least that you could not abide George on his terms, and had outgrown a pretense, but evidently you still hadn't mustered strength to stand alone, in rebuilding your life; so back to the hospital you went. And maybe this was prudent, just then, while you were still working to achieve individual ballast.

Now, once again you are tentatively testing your readiness to take the road that leads, uphill, toward maturity. And my advice is: Stop blaming George for your past dismay. Link up with a psychiatric self-help group, such as Recovery, Inc., to learn, in a supervised fellowship, the techniques of being a friendly, constructive, self-disciplined woman.

REAL COOL CHEWS
...no baking!

Here's a real cool sweet to delight your family with. There's no baking! The "surprise" ingredient—crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran—gives a wonderful flavor and texture.

RECIPE
HONEY FRUIT CHEWS
1 cup dried figs 1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
1 cup seedless raisins 1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup honey

Put figs and raisins through food chopper. Crush All-Bran into medium fine crumbs. Mix 1/2 of the All-Bran, salt and honey with figs and raisins. Form into balls about 1 inch in diameter. Roll in remaining All-Bran. Dust with powdered sugar, if desired. Yield: 2 dozen balls, 1 inch in diameter.
