Prizes Presented At Final "Parade" Program For Season

The final Schurmans School Parade broadcast for the season was held in the High School auditorium at Summerside on Friday evening, May 22, before a large and appreciative audience. This was the 112th program since the inception of the "Parade" four years ago, during which time over 6,000 students from various Prince Edward Island schools took an active part on programs with selections of their own choice in reading, public speaking, vocal solos, piano solos and group singing, as well as participating in the inter-scholastic spelling and quiz contest. The first place finalists very ably performed and were afterwards presented with a beautiful silver shield in the case of choral groups, and a silver medal in the case of individual performers. Presentation of a French bronze shield was made to representatives of choral groups placing second, and a French bronze medal to second place individual performers, while certificates were presented to the third place contestants. Presentations were also made to the winning team in the spelling division which included students from grades 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. In the 1 to 3 classroom division a representative from the Central Bedouque school team was presented with a silver shield for first place, while a representative from the Arlington school team received a French bronze shield for second place. In the 4 and over classroom division the first place silver shield was presented to a representative of the Summerside High School team, and the second place French bronze shield was presented to a representative of St. Eleanor's school team. Presentation of a silver shield was made to a team from Prince Street School, Charlottetown, through its representative Mr. Norman Stewart, emblematic of this team's first place standing in the quiz contest. This is the third consecutive year that this group has won this beautiful quiz shield, and by winning it three different times they have gained permanent possession. The programme was quite capably handled by Charles Linkletter, while Mrs. Harold B. Schurman made the presentation of awards assisted by the supervisor of the High School, Mr. Clarence Mercer. At the conclusion of the broadcast Mr. Richard Found of Ellerslie, on behalf of the parents of the participants, extended a vote of thanks to the sponsor of the "Parade" and also to Mr. Mercer, who Miss Maureen Forbes of the Summerside High School in a well prepared address, thanked the sponsor on behalf of the students who have had an opportunity to perform on School Parade programmes during the past year. Miss Roberta Shaw on behalf of the students who appeared on the broadcast presented a lovely basket of flowers to the M. F. Schurman Co. in appreciation of their School Parade, and expressed the wish that these flowers be given to Mrs. M.F. Schurman. Special mention should be made of the entertainment provided by a choral reading group from Grade 4 of the Air Marshal Johnson School. This group which was not among the contestants on the School Parade, made a special appearance and presented two delightful numbers which were much enjoyed.

Nurses' Graduation

Address To Graduates
Dr. Thomas Laidlaw in addressing the graduating class, noted that both he and the class had taken up their work in the hospital the same year—1950. He spoke of the long hours of work and study the nurses had put in and said they should be proud of themselves. He also offered congratulations to the parents who had sacrificed in order to give the graduates a career. He also offered special congratulations to the prize winners and the class valedictorian. Taking as his subject the responsibilities of the graduate nurse he spoke first of their relationship to the nursing school from which they were graduating. It was one of which they might be proud as its graduates had served in many corners of the world. He also spoke of the careful grounding they had received in their subjects due to the attention paid to it by those in charge at the hospital. Among them he mentioned Mrs. MacDonald, Miss Maier, Miss Tweedie, Mrs. Simpson, Mrs. MacEachern. He expressed the hope that an adequate number of the graduates would take their places on the permanent staff of the hospital. He said their profession offered steady employment, remuneration, a succession of tasks sufficiently varied to maintain interest, freedom from dictation or interference and a knowledge that the work was necessary and beneficial. Regarding the relationship to the community at large he thought the responsibility of the nurse went beyond the mere practicing of her profession. It includes active participation in the professional associations and in the maintenance of the standards imposed by professional journals and attendance at refresher courses. The relation to the medical profession he described as indispensable and noted the vast changes in the past 100 years. The responsibility for treatment and diagnosis is always that of the doctor, but the carrying out of orders is the nurse's part. Doctors and nurses are partners and there

Ornithologist Adds PEI Bird To National Museum

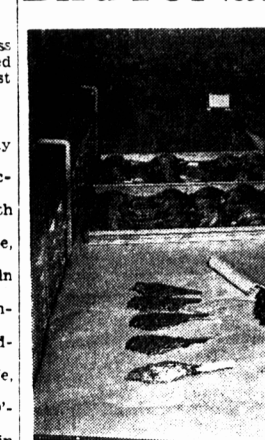

(Special to The Guardian) OTTAWA—The humble little grasshopper sparrow so excited the National Museum's Ornithologist, W. Earl Godfrey when he heard its "pi-tup zee-zee" on Prince Edward Island last summer that he chased it for two days before he caught up with it and added it to his National Museum's records for a "first" for the Island.

This month he leaves for southeastern British Columbia and the Queen Charlotte Islands for "new worlds to conquer" in the ornithology of Canada. Accompanying him will be John Crosby, the National Museum's official artist, and Technician Stanley Gorham, of Brown's Flats, N. B. Part of Mainland? Mr. Godfrey is also hoping to be able to prove a pet theory of his about Prince Edward Island—that it was connected with the mainland of Canada following the last period of glaciation. "There are many things which point to the fact that it was once part of the mainland," he said. "Such as the existence of grouse there that would be reluctant to cross the Northumberland Straits. There are also mammals, snails, etc., that bear out my theory, and you know, drowned forests have been found. The western end of the straits are shallow," he added, "and facts uncovered show submergence. Some day I think we may be able to prove my theory." As a boy in Wolfville, N. S., Mr. Godfrey and a pal used to try their prowess with a slingshot on birds until one day they were caught by R. W. Tufts, then chief federal migratory birds officer for the Maritime Provinces, who gave them a vocal thrashing and then invited them to see his collection of mounted birds. Young Godfrey became so interested in the little winged songsters that he threw away his slingshot and began their study.

Later Activities

Among his later activities was the collection, with another friend, of some 2,000 birds for the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, which collection he is at the present time negotiating to buy back for Canada's National Museum. After graduating from Acadia University with a Bachelor of Science degree and later attended Western Reserve University in Cleveland, he trained four years with Dr. Harry C. Oberholser, curator of ornithology at Cleveland's Museum of Natural History, whom he terms as "one of the greatest living ornithologists." In 1947 Mr. Godfrey came to Ottawa to join the staff of the National Museum. A big job he is scheduled to do is to revise the book "Birds of Canada," written some years ago by the then Dominion Ornithologist, the late P. A. Taverner. He has been gathering material for it and hopes to have it ready for printing in three or four years.

Committed For Trial On Jail Break Charge

Joseph Arthur Cannon, of Duver, charged with escaping from the Prince County Jail, was committed for trial yesterday at the conclusion of a preliminary hearing before Magistrate R. S. Hinton, Q.C., at Summerside.

Cannon is one of five prisoners to be charged with jail breaking in connection with recent breaks at Prince County Jail. It is understood that, in addition to jail breaking, other charges are pending against all five prisoners. Yesterday, an adjournment from last Friday, heard evidence from three witnesses. Claude McKenna, 18, who at the time of the breaks occupied a cell ward with four other prisoners on the main floor of the building, said he did not accompany the other four on the night of May 13th, and this statement concurred with evidence taken last Friday. He described the departure of the other four about 1:00 a.m., and with merchandise amounting to $100. Harold B. Milligan, deputy prothonotary of the Supreme Court and clerk of County Court for Prince County, was called to give evidence on a record of conviction of the accused, Joseph Arthur Cannon. Arthur Gallant, 18, one of the escapees, was the final witness. Before being sworn he said he wished to have the protection of the court under the Canada Evidence Act, and the request was granted subject to prosecution for perjury. He told of leaving the jail in the early morning of May 14th accompanied by Arthur Cannon, Enzor Perry and Gerald McKenna. He described this outing from the jail in which they broke into MacLean Motors at Summerside and stole a car. They then drove to O'Leary and broke into two stores, stealing cash and merchandise from the first, and cash from the second. They arrived back in Summerside about 4:00 a.m., and after leaving the car a short distance from the jail returned to their cell, divided the money and hid the stolen merchandise. He said it had become customary not to lock their cell door. He said their cell door had not been locked on the night in question, and that no one comes around to check up on the prisoners at night. Escape had been made by using a knife to open the latch on a door leading up a back stairs. They then went through the Supreme Court room, down the front stairs, and out the front door which was closed by a night latch on the inside. Before going out they altered the lock so that they could get back into jail when they returned. Mr. D. O. Stewart, Q.C., is representing the Crown in this case, and Mr. Lowell Allen appeared as counsel for the accused.—S.

Premier Macdonald No Surprise To Ottawa

OTTAWA, (CP)—The re-election of Premier Macdonald's Liberal government in Nova Scotia did not surprise political Ottawa Tuesday night.

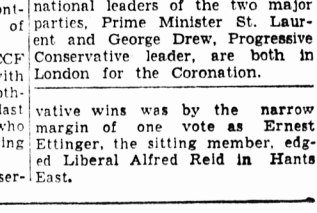

There had been little discussion of the campaign, and the return of the Liberal party had been generally expected. There was no official comment from anyone on the outcome. The national leaders of the two major parties, Prime Minister St. Laurent and George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, are both in London for the Coronation. A narrow margin of one vote as Ernest Ettinger, the sitting member, edged Liberal Alfred Reid in Hants East.
