The Grand Division of S. T. met in Scott's Hall, at 3 o'clock, on Thursday afternoon.

REMEMBER the "Penny Readings" at St. Peter's School, tomorrow (Tuesday) evening.

MR. EASTY, the elocutionist, has returned from a successful tour in Newfoundland, and will read in Halifax this week.

ST. PAUL'S PENNY READINGS commence on Friday evening next and will be continued on the evening of every Friday fortnight.

TAS MERCHANTS' CHURCH at Little York, which has lately been remodelled and beautified at considerable expense, was reopened for Divine service yesterday.

THE RYKERT INVESTIGATION.—The charges of corruption lately brought against Mr. Rykert, Leader of the Local Opposition of Ontario, have not been substantiated.

LOST OVERBOARD.—It is reported that Capt. Ledwell, of the Schooner Ellen, from this port, was washed overboard and drowned off Cape George. One of the crew of the Ellen was also lost. No particulars.

A LIME COMPANY was recently formed at Little Sands. The following are the officers for the current year.—W. H. Shanks, Esq., President; A. Munro, Esq., Vice President and Treasurer, and Angus Smith, Secretary.

We beg to direct public attention to the advertisement in another column, of Mr. P. Kelly, Tailor. His is the oldest established Tailoring business in Charlottetown; and he imports his cloth and trimmings direct from the best houses in England and Canada.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement in another column of the Hope Manufacturing Co., of New York, they advertise what is the most wonderful invention of the age, a first class Sewing Machine, with Table and Treadle complete for Ten Dollars. Read their advertisement headed "Wonderful."

EXPLANATION.—The John Gillis, who is now in the Penitentiary, sentenced for stealing a horse at South Bay, is not Mr. John D. Gillis, son of Mr. Angus Gillis, shipbuilder, recently of P. E. Island. We can vouch for the correctness of the statement, as Mr. John D. Gillis called at our office to have this correction made.—St. John Telegraph.

SMALL POX.—The yellow flag has been flying on Market Square, during the past week. A seaman, from Montreal, arrived in the steamer Humbly, and was taken ill with small pox. The following is his statement:—

Copy of Statement made by William Daniels, Small Pox Patient, Dec. 2nd, 1874.

My name is William Daniels aged 25 years. Went on board the Humbly at Montreal. The Captain did not know I was on board till the next day. The Captain agreed to let me remain if I would work the cargo. I was well when I went on board and all the ship's crew are healthy. We arrived at Charlottetown at night. I was well when I landed. I had only a little cold in my head. I went on shore the next morning and went to a boarding house. Two days after that a rash came out on my face. When the rash came out on my face I felt it went to the druggist to get something for a sore throat. The following day I went with the man I boarded with to try and get into the Marine Hospital as a sick seaman. He then examined my face and turned me out of the house, and told me not to come again. He did not tell me what was the matter with me.

His name is WILLIAM J. DANIELS, mark.

A correct statement copied and read before me, M. M. LEON, Steward Hospital.

A correct statement taken before me, W. H. HOOKER.

Dec. 2nd, 1874.

This is a short story. Poor Daniels might easily have made it more elaborate. He might have told how, on the festival of St. Andrew, he spent hour after hour upon the streets of Charlottetown, cursing the terrible disease, from door to door seeking a physician, and finding none who would minister to him; seeking a hospital in which he could lie down and die—asking pitiously "am I to die like a dog in the street?"—and finding no place where he could lay his feverish head. He might have stated that, about nine o'clock in the evening, he went to Police Station; but even there he found no rest.

For as soon as the loathsome disease was discovered upon him, he was ordered away; He might have stated that he went out and lay upon the bare platform of the Market House till the city medical officer was sent for, and till some sort of accommodation—a mattress, a stove and other necessaries, provided by a kind City Councilor—were obtained and placed in a little unshingled, unplastered barn, in the midst of the city.

He might have related that, the day after, he was wheeled away in a handcart, by a person whom he might thought (or who might to his diseased imagination have appeared to be) the devil. He might have added that he was rowed across the harbor in an open boat and lodged in a so-called Quarantine Hospital, where there was little better accommodation than in a barrack.

But he did not. And he is dead. For the treatment the dying man received no one in particular is to blame. The whole community has another heavy sin to atone for; another deep stain of shame to wash away. A little more than a year ago a helpless infant was allowed to wall away a raw November day in an open garden; a little less than six months ago a lunatic woman was found wallowing in filth in an underground dungeon of one of our public institutions; and again, the other day, a fellow-man, afflicted with a loathsome and terrible disease was allowed to walk a whole day in our streets, and at last to die in a building little better than a barn. Can such "inhumanity to man" be forgiven? Can we make expiation?

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

QUACKS CONFOUNDED

Rheumatism and Gout have heretofore been considered by the ordinary practicing physicians as incurable diseases, and the cure had often been pronounced, of what benefit to the helpless sufferer is all their pretended science; and what doth long and unprofitably waste the patient's study—if they are obliged to acknowledge that all their resources are to no account when called upon to prescribe for a patient suffering from chronic rheumatism. The great trouble lies in well worn paths, or suffer disagree and uncomfortable from that highly respectable order of medical quacks, who, by their unscrupulous and unprincipled conduct, have been compelled to resort to the use of their own often genius has been curbed in its flights of investigation can easily be imagined. And often really grand and beneficial discoveries have been made under the ban of censure by those self-constituted censors for no reason whatever, but that they are innovations upon a stereotyped and unchangeable system. DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

For his high standing in the profession, and the learning and science of an able mind, quickly compelled the Censor to succumb, and now physicians generally over the world, where this medicine is introduced, admit of its wonderful efficacy, and often prescribe it for their patients. Of course the use and adoption of this medicine, without the aid of a physician, is a saving in fees to the sufferer, but the really conscientious physician should rejoice at this, to the relief of the general benefits arising to mankind from its use.
