Are You "In the Swim?"

It is said: "You may as well be out of the world as out of the fashion." In the West End of London, Eng., the fashionable quarter, it is not now considered "the proper thing" to wear RUBBER waterproofs. Among the "smart" set it is looked upon as "bad form," and as much out of place for a Man to wear a RUBBER waterproof as for a Woman to wear a bustle.

When a new article suddenly springs into favor and is almost universally adopted, you may be sure it must possess extraordinary merit. "MELISSA" COATS seem to meet every requirement of Health, Comfort and Fashion, and gratify every taste. They are produced in an infinite variety of textures, patterns and styles. To any intelligent person the mere mention of the many advantages of "MELISSA" RAINPROOF GARMENTS over the old Rubber article is sufficient.

No dampness, no chills, no odor, no pulling apart at the seams. A Rainproof and Overcoat combined, with all the advantages of both.

If You Wear a "Melissa" Coat You are "in it."

TEA!

OUR TEA TRADE IS BOOMING!

DURING the Months of November and December our Tea trade increased so much that we had to send an order to London for another supply, in order to keep us going till we receive our Spring stock. We attribute this large increase to the fact that we offered the best value in Teas on P. E. Island, and they gave them a fair trial and were convinced that what we stated was true.

We won't sell you any Tea that we cannot warrant!

Written for the Examiner:

My Helper

Let the cold, proud world roll on:
The sunshine of that purer sphere
Is enough for me whilst I journey here:
Let the cold, proud world roll on.

Let the friends of youth forget:
If but that Friend who ne'er doth hide
Tarry here with me, I am as listless,
Though the friends of youth forget.

Let the evil-minded scoff:
If only God is looking down
With an eye of favor, I dare not frown,
Though the evil-minded scoff.

Let the storms of life beat down:
If sent by Him who knows what's best
I can hope for a better and lasting rest
Though the storms of life beat down.

Though parents forget their child,
I need not care, since constantly
A Heavenly Father cares for me,
Though parents forget their child.

Let all in their strength oppose—
Friends, parents, yea! and Satan too—
His Love is able to bear me through,
Though all in their strength oppose.

An Affecting Letter.

HER MARENTY'S DEEP AFFECTION FOR THE LATE DUKE OF CLARENCE FEELINGLY EXPRESSED.

The London Gazette publishes the following in relation to the death of the Duke of Clarence:

I must again give expression to my deep sense of the loyalty and affectionate sympathy evinced by my subjects in every part of my empire on an occasion more sad and tragical than any but one which has befallen me and mine as well as the nation in the overwhelming misfortune of the death of my dearly beloved grandson, suddenly cut off in the flower of his age, full of promise for the future. That he was so amiable and gentle, and endearing himself to all, renders it hard for his sorely stricken parents, his dear young bride and fond grandmother to bow with submission to the inscrutable decrees of Providence.

The sympathy of millions, touching and visibly expressed, is deeply gratifying, and I wish in our own name and that of our children, to express from our hearts warm gratitude for all these testimonials of sympathy with us in appreciation of our dear grandson, whom I loved as a son, and whose devotion to me was as great as that of a son could be, in help and consolation to me and mine. My bereavements of the last thirty years of my reign have been, indeed, heavy; and though the labors, anxieties and responsibilities inseparable from my position have also been great, yet it is my earnest prayer that God will continue to give me health and strength, to work for the good and happiness of my dear country and empire whilst I live.

VICTORIA.

This utterance of the Queen is a subject of general comment everywhere and particularly the fact that, although she has lost two children, she counts the death of the Duke of Clarence as a bereavement second only to the death of the Prince Consort, thus confirming what has been said of Her Majesty's deep affection for her dead grandson. Interest in the Royal family naturally increased by the death of the Duke of Clarence, will be further heightened by this letter. A good deal of it is centered on Prince George, whose health is by no means thoroughly re-established. The Princess of Wales has, for his sake, taken the Villa Janssen, at St. Raphael, on the French Riviera, for the month of February, and will accompany him during his visit.

Charles Dickens' Prayer.

Mamie Dickens, in an article on "What My Father Taught Us" in the February Ladies' Home Journal, prints for the first time "the little prayer which my father wrote for us and which each one of us was taught to repeat night and morning as soon as we could speak:

"Pray God, who has made everything, and is so kind and merciful to everything He has made who tries to be good and deserve it."
"Pray God bless my dear papa, mamma, brothers and sisters and aunts, and all my relations and friends."
"Make me a good little boy. Let me never be naughty, or tell a lie, which is a mean and shameful thing. Make me kind to my nurses and servants, and to all poor people."
"Let me never be cruel to any dumb creature; for if I am cruel to anything, even to a poor little fly, Thou, who art so good, will never love me."
"Pray God to bless and to preserve us all this night, and for evermore, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen."

The word "auntie" was not in the original prayer I added it for myself. I was quite a tiny child, when she, a very young girl, first came to live with us. And, as I do not remember any part of my life without her, it seemed only natural to me to put her name among those specially mentioned in our evening supplications.

MAKES FLESH AND BLOOD.—When the system is all run down and there seems to be no hope of obtaining nourishment for the body by the ordinary process of food supply and digestion, when the body is sinking fast, then is the time to use Miller's Emulsion of Pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil. It always works wonders, because it is a flesh and blood maker and contains all the constituents for nourishment found in wheat in fact, Miller's Emulsion is a perfect "staff of life," and has saved and cured thousands. In big bottles 50c, and $1 at Charlottetown drug stores.

What to Teach a Daughter.

Teach her that not only must she love her father and mother, but honor them in word and deed, says a writer in the February Ladies' Home Journal.

That work is worthy always when it is well done.

That the value of money is just the good it will do in life, but that she ought to know and appreciate this value.

That the man who wishes to marry her is the man who tells her so and is willing to work for her, and not the man who whispers silly love speeches and forgets that men cease to be men when they have no object in life.

That her best confidant is always her mother, and that no one sympathizes with her in her pleasures and joys as you do.

That unless she shows courtesy to others she need never expect it from them, and that the best answer to rudeness is being blind to it.

That when God made her body he intended that it should be clothed properly and modestly, and when she neglects herself she is insulting Him who made her.

Teach her to think well before she says no or yes, but to mean it when she does.

Teach her that her own room is her nest, and that to make it sweet and attractive is a duty as well as a pleasure.

Teach her that if she can sing or read or draw, or give pleasure in any way by her accomplishments, she is selfish and unkind if she does not do this gladly.

Teach her to be a woman—self-respecting, honest, loving and kind, and then you will have a daughter who will be a pleasure to you always, and whose days will be long and joyous in the land which the Lord hath given her.

Horse Notes.

An ideal horse is one with a good constitution, a good stomach, a brave heart, good limbs and a pretty level head, and of course a right way of going. The more brain he has the more endurance he is likely to have. It enables him more readily to conform to circumstances and understand what is wanted of him, and to take advantage of opportunities and make the most of everything. By educating the brain it increases in size, fineness (or quality) if he is treated badly he is more or less useless.

Judgment is necessary in making up a ration for a horse, as there is great difference in requirements and powers of assimilation. Those with large bones and loose-looking joints generally require more food in proportion to their weight than short, closely-knit, snug-looking horses. The ration should be increased or decreased as may be necessary to keep the animal in good working condition. When idle the horse requires and will be satisfied with much less food than when there is a large daily expenditure of energy in work. If it can be foreseen that increased exertion will be demanded, increase the food as regards quality, and work moderately, as being the best preparation for it. As preparation for increased work it is common to keep the animal in the stable several days, and stuff with as much food as it will eat, as though strength and endurance could be bottled up, and the stomach was a kind of tender to the engine, from which reserves of fuel or condensed energy could be drawn during the trip. The horse treated in this one that does the journey in the most unsatisfactory manner, or breaks down under an extra demand on strength.—Truth.

News Notes.

The 300 young women of the Baltimore Normal School have emancipated themselves from the bonds of corsets and garters. Miss Helen M. Cole, the teacher of physical culture there, is credited with this overwhelming conversion. Miss Cole ordained that no young woman student should come to her classes wearing corsets and garters. The young women obeyed and found themselves thereby so much freer and more comfortable that this year they have of their own accord discarded the corset and the garter as any part of the home, school or promenade costume.

A despatch from Johannesburg, Transvaal, states that great excitement has been caused by an action of the editor of an English paper published in that place. In an article on the death of the Duke of Clarence, the editor took occasion to make an attack on the character of the Duke.

The man was driven out of a theatre by the angry people, and was compelled to flee for his life. The newspaper building was stoned, and all the windows broken.

Twenty years ago the Japanese Government sent five girls to the United States to be educated. Now Japanese young men and women are attending American schools and colleges in large numbers. A fund of $10,000 has been this year raised in Philadelphia for the education of young Japanese women. A Japanese student recently won the honor of representing the Harvard Divinity School on Commencement Day. His brother is president of the largest Christian college in Japan, that at Kuoinoto. The last twenty years have wrought wonderful changes in the habits of thought and life in Japan. The end of another twenty years may find it largely Westernized and Christianized.

What to Teach a Daughter.
