Federal Aid In Education Is Suggested By Committee

Pointing out that the costs of education in the province have increased by 300 per cent since 1950 and that the cost outlook in the next decade indicates a continuance of the upward trend, the Legislature's select standing committee felt that some special assistance from federal sources should be sought, "without infringement upon our constitutional provincial rights."

The report of the committee was tabled in the Legislature Friday. Committee chairman was Robert Grindlay (PC-2nd Prince).

Reason for the committee feeling, as stated in the report, was that lack of employment opportunities in the province is responsible "for the abandonment of their birthplace by our young people for the more promising areas and as the committee feels that the cost of educating them is borne almost entirely by the province, some special assistance from federal sources should be sought."

The committee concurred with the view expressed by the P.E.I. Home and School Association that the province should adopt the national minimum standard for entrance into the teaching profession; that is, two years of professional and academic study following grade 13, senior matriculation.

Noting that the La Zerte report on education aims at a foundation plan to become effective by 1965, incorporating 11 regional high schools and the establishment of larger units of administration, with consolidation where transportation and other conditions permit, the report stated "the suggestion implied therein that policy planning, with an eye to future expanding school enrolment is imperative, is borne out by statistics which show that attendance, teaching staff and costs are increasing annually, all pointing to the need for policy planning to cover necessary accommodation, teacher training and financing."

French Paint Firm Considers Establishing Quebec Plant

HALIFAX (CP) — Officials of a French paint firm considering establishing plants in Canada met here with President Hans Klohn of Ocean Steel and Construction Ltd., of Saint John, N.B., on the possibility of building a $2,500,000 plant in New Brunswick.

J. C. Van Horne, head of a firm of project organizers and former Conservative member of Parliament for Restigouche-Madawaska, said in an interview the officials had considered Nova Scotia as a site for the plant but decided against it.

He said they had a "negative and unsatisfactory" meeting with Industrial Estates Limited, a Nova Scotia Crown company established in 1958 to foster secondary industry. He said the Crown company is "blocking" the establishment of new industries in the province. The French firm, Valentine Paints and Varnishes, had not sought financial assistance in their negotiations with Industrial Estates here Thursday.

He said the French officials could get "no information at all about markets; they were not encouraged to look for sites: it was a negative and unsatisfactory reception."

TERMED CORDIAL

Robert W. Manuge, general manager of Industrial Estates, said directors and officials of the organization had a "most cordial meeting" with officials of the French firm Thursday and another one Friday. He declined further comment.

Mr. Van Horne of Campbellton, N.B., said he and an associate in Van Horne and company Ltd., J. W. Arsenault, were meeting with the French officials as project organizers. Their duties might include arranging for contracts in the event a decision is made to establish in the Maritimes. Mr. Van Horne had met several times previously with the company in Paris.

Mr. Van Horne said no definite decision of establishment was likely at the meeting with the president of the Saint John firm. However, he said that once a decision is reached, construction is expected immediately.

The plant would produce paint, varnish and laminated products. If constructed, it likely would employ at least 300 or 400 people. The company uses by-products of oil refining and paper making, Mr. Van Horne said.

The former MP blasted New Brunswick along with Nova Scotia for lack of efforts to attract industry. He said that "it's our own cash-down fault" more industries do not come to the Maritimes.

"In the past seven years 175 German companies have located in Canada but not one has been contacted by either Nova Scotia or New Brunswick governments, let alone persuaded to locate here."

Timetable Is Upset

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Christine M. Juranek, 25, was granted a divorce here after she testified in circuit court that her husband beat her because her pregnancy upset his timetable for retirement at 25.

Mrs. Juranek told Judge John Pavlik that her husband, Frank, 25, a systems and procedure analyst, said he married her as a business investment and expected her to continue working.

Mrs. Juranek was awarded one-third of her husband's $7,000 in stocks and $150 a month support.

Mrs. Juranek who was married Sept. 16, 1961 charged cruelty. Juranek did not contest the divorce.

Opening lead—four or hearts.

Maintaining control over trumps is the key to many a hand played in a suit contract. Declarer has to watch his step when repeated ruffs weaken his trump position.

South is in four spades and West leads a heart. Declarer plays low from dummy and ruffs East's ten. He enters dummy with a diamond, leads a spade, finesses the queen, and loses to the king.

Back comes a heart and South ruffs again. He is now at the critical point of the hand, and, if he slips, he goes down.

It would seem natural to draw trumps at this stage, but if South did this, he would lose the hand. Having ruffed hearts twice and led a round of trump, if he now drew East's remaining spades, he would be left with only one trump.

South could then cash his diamonds and play a club, but the defense would win the club and lead a heart to force out the last trump. Another club play would prove fruitless, since the defenders would take it and cash a heart to defeat the contract.

This dead end is bound to be reached if South extracts trumps after ruffing the second heart lead. To avoid the impasse, he should play a low club instead at trick five. Assume East takes the ten and leads another heart. Declarer ruffs, reducing himself to two trumps, and plays another club.

West wins with the king, but can do nothing to break the contract. If he plays a club or a diamond, south wins, draws trumps, and claims the rest. And if West returns a heart instead, declarer ruffs in dummy with the carefully preserved trump, crosses to his hand, and takes the rest of the tricks.

It can be argued that this line of play subjects South to a club ruff if the suit is not divided 3-3. The answer is that South can not possibly make the hand if he loses control of trumps by drawing them prematurely, and he therefore has no choice but to play for a favorable club division.
