CLARK GABLE STARS
AT THE CAPITOL

The valiant legend of America's 19th century fur trappers, who blazed the wilderness trails to the West to open a new nation, is unfolded with validity and rousing dramatic excitement in "Across the Wide Missouri," which brings Clark Gable and an impressive co-starring cast to the Capitol Theatre today. Filmed entirely on location against spectacular Technicolor backgrounds of the valleys, forests and mountain ranges of Colorado, this is M-G-M's new drama of the country's fabulous buckskinned plongers, mountain men and Indian fighters.

Gable brings the cumulative experience of his long and varied acting career of the role of Flint Mitchell, intrepid trapper. From the picture's very opening scene, in which Flint receives an arrow in his back from the bow of Iron-shirt, the Blackfeet brave who hates the white interlopers, the plot moves forward with a sustained and compelling excitement.
The story reaches a thunderous climax with an attack by Iron-shirt and his warriors upon the white men, a fight in which Kamlah loses her life. But the little son of Flint and Kamlah is to grow up among his own people and the day is to come when the Indians will accept Flint, too, as one of their own.

Wedding
-A very pretty wedding took place in Trinity United Church, Summerside, on Monday, October 13th, at two-thirty o'clock, when Dorothy Marie, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry S. Allen, Summerside, was united in marriage with Wendell MacMurdo, son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Profitt, Kensington.

The church was decorated with baskets of white chrysanthemums and gladioli. The guest pews were marked with bows of white ribbon and waxed berries.

The officiating clergyman was Rev. C. D. Matheson, pastor of the church. The wedding music was played by Mr. Robert Crooks, A.
Mus., R.M.T., who also accompasang "O Promise Me" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a street-length dress of midnight blue pure silk taffeta, an imported New York model with long torso waistline accenting hip fullness. The strapless bodice was covered by a short mess jacket.
She wore a hat of cameo pink jewel-trimmed velour, matching gloves, and carried a nosegay of Starlight roses and white baby 'mums.

Her sister, Miss Kathleen Allen, as bridesmaid, was becomingly attired in a teal blue taffeta dress with deep flame accessories. She carried a nosegay of Talisman roses and white baby 'mums.

The groomsmen were Mr. Rowan Profitt, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Mr. W. E. Mc-
