"12 O'CLOCK HIGH" A TRIUMPH OF SCREEN

Twentieth Century-Fox's "12 O'Clock High" is the "Wings" of the second World War, and now the top attraction at the Prince Edward Theatre. It is the definitive aviation picture of all time, and as such it will be of importance for generations to come. But in more immediate terms it is also a powerful entertainment that combines sweeping spectacle and intimate drama to create the most compelling, important and distinguished of all the air thrillers there have been.

Gregory Peck, in the starring role of Bomb Group Commander General Frank Savage, crowds into his catalogue of masterly characterizations his newest and finest portrait. Peck's portrayal leaves no doubt that he is the ranking male star to have emerged during the decade of the forties. Undoubtedly he will remain the top-rated film actor of the century.

Personally produced by Darryl F. Zanuck as his first individual production for 1950, the production scope of "12 O'Clock High" is as vast in scale as it is eloquent in speech. The script was written by Sy Bartlett and Beirne Lay, Jr. Under Henry King's sensitive, knowing direction, both the personal drama and the spectacular side of combat aviation are given sharp, vital focus. Himself an aviator, King has known how to make shrewd use of stunt-flying crack-ups as well as the actual combat footage that provides the film with many of its most exciting sequences.

A delectable lunch in which strawberries and cream were featured, was served by the hostess.

The closing social of St. David's United Church Y. P. U. was held in the Church Hall on Thursday and was a happy occasion. The group was pleased to welcome a number of guests. With the singing of Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King, and the repeating of the Mizpah Benediction the society adjourned to meet in the fall.

Principal's Report

"Mr. Chairman, Miss Arsenault, Citizens and Pupils: "Another school year has ended and once again we welcome you to our annual closing. On several occasions in the past you sat, with interest, to witness a performance such as you will see today—your children—playing the leading role in our programme. I think you will agree, that as we grow older, the highlights of our tender years seem to fade; the Certificate—becomes a piece of paper, something to show that Mary has graded. The Prize—"a little gift" Johnnie received for leading his class. So as we watch the presentations today, let us all pretend to be children and try to experience with them that feeling of satisfaction, happiness and success—attached to the certificate and prize, which so thrills the mind of a child. On the other hand, let us not overlook the student who studies, works faithfully, but who in the eyes of the public seems to have failed. For this type of student there is a special treatment, understanding and encouragement.

With the mention of "student" a rather confused, and perhaps incorrect conception comes to the mind of most individuals. What is "student"? I might say that there are two unmistakable signs by which a student may be recognized: (1) A desire to know the truth; (2) An open, honest heart, free from deceit, suspicion and jealousy. This again may be divided into four groups:—(1) Those who do not choose to seek knowledge. They glance over the assignments, just once of course, leaving out the fine print, that boring, unimportant matter. They are the ones who in class seem bent on disturbing the progress of the other members and who because of their narrow outlook will become a millstone around the neck of progress.

(2) The second group, a more pleasing sight and yet a more pitiable one—those who study but not wisely—"Plodders", so to speak. They read assignments, discuss them in class, pay rapt attention to teachers, yet miss the forest for their several knowledges together, the outlook of this student being in no way developed.

(3) Leaving the plodders, let us pass on to the third group, the "parrots". They are the boys and girls of the memory examination paper. The fault with this method is often in the fact that what has been learned is often not clearly understood and consequently soon forgotten.

(4) And now we come to the last member, the true student, those who gradually acquire a certain independence of teachers and books. These are they who use what is offered to them in the most advantageous manner. They employ books and teachers of course—but they will be merely an aid to them in the overcoming of any obstacles in their path of reason. These students seek and think for themselves, the method for proper study, during school years.

Thus briefly we have looked at the different groups of students; all are represented in our school, and unfortunately the majority of our senior pupils in Grades 8, 9 and 10 fall into group one, those who do not study, rather than into the group of true students who seek and reason for themselves. Too often they do not realize this fact till the moment of final examinations arrives—then it is too late.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR HORNSBY'S BREAD

"THE SUNLIGHT LOAF"

Another important question here might be, why are the greater number of our pupils not in that group who seek and reason for themselves? My answer is that they haven't the time.

The Rev. Dr. MacKenzie, S.D.U., sums it up very nicely in saying: "too much constant amusements and entertainments." We all know entertainments are fine and necessary, but for boys and girls of school age they must be handled with care, and until a definite system of limits or restrictions of attendance can be planned between our citizens and our teachers, the greater number of our boys and girls will continue to lose the art of study.

May I suggest, for the welfare of children, that a deeper interest be taken by the citizens in the Home and School meetings, and for the coming year try to work out a system whereby the pupils may have their outside entertainments at definite periods, and still have time for study. If such an arrangement were possible, and I think it is, then our professors from the different colleges would not be in a position to say, that many of the first year students think it strange when they are expected to study.

We, as teachers, firmly believe recreation in the form of athletics, is an all-important subject in the life of a student. Hockey and softball take the lead with our boys and girls. During the past few years keen interest has been aroused in both sports due to the fact that outside competition came into the picture. For a number of years visiting school teams could not be encouraged here, because of the smallness of the rink.

During this past winter the situation was directly opposite; we were able to accommodate school teams from different parts of the Island and by so doing our teams, in turn, were able to travel from place to place. For this great step of improvement our deepest appreciation goes out to Mayor Boudreault and his Council, and the Community Welfare League, in the erection of the new Recreational Center. This school season began on Sept. 7th of last year with an enrolment of 188 pupils. The enrolment in the various departments was as follows:—

Principal's Dept.	26
Vice-Principal's Dept.	31
Dept. 5 & 6 Grades	32
Dept. 4 & 5 Grades	35
Dept. 2 & 3 Grades	34
Dept. 1 & 2 Grades	34

For the first time in a number of years the problem of overcrowding in the primary departments did not occur. We extend our gratitude to the Board of Trustees and the ratepayers who showed their interest by the opening of a sixth room in our school. As in the past, several pupils die continued before the close of the term, accepting work in factories and elsewhere, leaving the total enrolment at the end of June, 181 pupils.

(1) The total days attendance for the year in all departments, 32,186

(2) The average daily attendance for the year in all departments 164.

(3) The percentage of attendance for the year in all departments is 87.

The number of certificates being awarded today is 175

The number of Grade VIII Leaving Certificates being awarded is 9.

We wish to congratulate those who have merited certificates and prizes and our kindest wish for you, is continued success. We extend our thanks to all, who in any way helped in making the past year a successful one. Personally I wish to thank the members of the staff, who were so faithful to their duties and who co-operated so well in the work which they were called upon to do; and to the boys and girls of all departments. I have reserved a special "thank you" for your thoughtfulness, kindness and whole-hearted co-operation, to me in the past two years. This was noticeable at all times, but it was outstanding especially during the hockey seasons and during the preparation of our Christmas concert. Those of you who are old enough to understand, realize that it is your co-operation that "counts". This year there were 15 pupils in the Grade X class; ten wrote the Entrance Examinations at Montague.

The Principal concluded his address with wishes of success for the graduates.
