Jesuit Priests Live With And Like Hindus

POONA (AP) — Two Jesuit priests are in India pioneering a movement within their church —they are living like Hindus.

Rev. G. A. Deleury of Paris and Rev. Matthew Lederle of Munich, West Germany, spend much of their time sitting cross-legged on the floor, talking with Hindus and learning as much as possible about the Hindu religion and way of life.

Father Lederle is writing part of his thesis for his doctorate at Poona University.

"You could call this ecumenical work, an attempt to try to dispel prejudices between Christians and Hindus" he said.

The Christian church has been in India for nearly 2,000 years, since the days of St. Thomas the Apostle, the Doubting Thomas of the gospels. Yet the progress of Christianity has been slow. Christians make up about 2½ per cent of India's 450,000,000 population.

Because of this, the church has decided to use different ways to get across its message. Priests living with and like Hindus is one of these.

LIVE WITH BRAHMINS

Both Father Lederle, 37, and Father Deleury, 42, have permission of their Jesuit superior and the bishop here to live in this manner. Their simple, three-room apartment is in an area of Poona called the Brahmin section. The Brahmins, who number about 150,000 here in this section of Poona, are the highest caste of the Hindus.

Father Deleury, who has let his hair grow down around his neck like a Hindu holy man, is a recognized authority on Hinduism. He has written several books on Hinduism and has translated a book on Hinduism into French for the United Nations.

Father Lederle has written a book in Marathi, the local language, entitled The History of the Catholic Church.

Recently, the two priests were invited to a seminar held by influential members of the Hindu community. Most of the questions about Hinduism, from Hindus, were answered by the two priests, indicating their stature among educated Hindus.

Lakes Level Conference Is Called

TORONTO (CP) — An international conference on the problem of Great Lakes water levels will be held in Toronto June 29-30, Premier John Robarts of Ontario announced.

Mr. Robarts said invitations have been extended to Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec and the governors of eight U.S. states—Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Ontario is taking the initiative because its borders stretch the full length of the northern shores of the Great Lakes, the premier said in a letter to the governors.

The eight states and the two provinces should pool their ideas to see what action can be taken to counteract the low water level "both now and for the future," Mr. Robarts said.

IN MEMORIAM

BECK: In loving memory of our father, Kenneth Beck, who passed away May 23, 1963.

We little knew when we woke that morn
The sorrow the day would bring;
For the call was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear.

Always remembered by son and daughters.
