Wedding Of Local Interest Is Solemnized In Saint John

A pretty fall wedding was solemnized in St. Peter's Church, St. John, when Jane Elizabeth daughter of Mrs. Robert E. MacFarlane and the late Mr. MacFarlane, Saint John, became the bride of George Brian, son of Mrs. Leo B. Doyle and the late Mr. Doyle, Charlottetown, P.E.I. Rev. Leo Sexsmith, CSsR, officiated. White gladioli adorned the altar and the guest pews were marked with white satin bows and silver bells. Miss Ann Butler was organist and accompanied Mrs. Romeo Cyr, the soloist.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Patrick Williams, the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Diane MacFarlane, as maid of honor. Basil Doyle, the groom's brother, was groomsman, and the ushers were Gordon Tower and Dr. James Noonan.

The bride's full-length gown of silk taffeta was fashioned with bodice of Alencon lace and the skirt was slightly entraine. A pearl necklace and earrings, gift of the groom, were her only jewellery. She carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and a white orchid.

The maid of honor was gowned in peau de soie in forget-me-not blue, with matching rose headdress and she carried pink sweetheart roses.

The bride's mother chose brown jersey with corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. The mother of the groom was attired in green printed silk with corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. Capt. Wallace Covey proposed the toast to the bride. Miss Jane Ann Williams, the bride's niece, circulated the guest book. Mrs. Walter Peacock served the bride's table.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Doyle left on a honeymoon trip to Cape Cod and Prince Edward Island. For travelling the bride donned a forest green wool dress with matching coat and beige accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid. The couple will reside in Saint John.

The bride is a supervisor on the nursing staff of Saint John General Hospital. The groom is with the medical products department of Cyanamid of Canada Ltd.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Farm-Folk Deeply Aware Of Providence's Working

Fillets of cod was our main, and quite tasteful, supper-dish this evening, with James coming in to it, from his harvest-work at Rob's.

"Now, let me see. I can't seem to place rightly the members of your family Ellen. First ...who is James?" a visitor of the summer questioned.

And who would James be but the husband of this house, born and reared in it, the only (surviving) son of this farm, which has always belonged to his forbears. The head of the family, he is, it's patriarch, neither bewhiskered nor yet old, though he has given many years to the occupation he loves. Fields, herds and flocks are his joy. But not for a moment does he regard these above family and loved ones. And he is also ever mindful that all he values has come, and comes, in a direct gift from Heaven...

Folks on farms are deeply aware of providence's workings, because no day passes in which we do not see miracles of grace: in the rootlets and stems of the springtime's sowings and plantings, in the births which come to stall and to sty; the calves, and the lambkins, and piglets. And the engaging kids of the goats, the kittens, and all those younglings it is a farm's good fortune to welcome. In births, and in deaths too, we recognize that touch which is not of this world...

WORK AND PLAY

So we plan and work. And pray and return thanks, not always on bended knee, it is true, but nonetheless from the depths of our hearts. And oft-a-times our petitions seemingly disregarded at the time. We have seen answered through later years, and in roundabout ways.

A pair of sons — Rob and the younger farmer — the years gave us, to follow while still young, with James at the farming. What nice days the three had together! No sons, Island-wide, were busier or happier as they learned from him, the rules of its ways.

A pair of grandsons, Jamie and Gage came in time to Rob's farm in the road. The nearer house, across the lane, gave them four cousins: Granddaughter, Mack, Alex and Peter.

That gave us, at this house, six grandchildren in all, to be come an increasing interest to us through the years, and the best of company when alone or in a number they come to our door.

Jamie's pair too, he that is "Gordie" and Wendy, his sister, have their names written in fine script on the family-tree.

And when with James, we try to select from the lot, the one most dear, we find we are like Alex, when he would pick out the prettiest autumn tree. A selection is impossible. No one is above the other in our regard. Each has his or her own place in our affection and all are respected and dear.

"Well, be seeing you!" our genial vendor of fish, on his weekly call, offered with a friendly smile, when his smart truck drew away from the yard this afternoon.

And "Be seeing you!" we say, now.

Until tomorrow — — Diary— Good-night.....

She carried a lace covered prayer book, topped with a corsage of red roses. Miss Diane Arsenault, as bridesmaid, was gowned in a yellow lace over taffeta ballerina length, and she carried a nosegay of mixed flowers. Mr. Ernest Arsenault, brother of the bride, was best man. Mr. Edward Arsenault, brother of the bride, ushered the guests to their pews, which were marked with white satin bows. Mrs. Arsenault chose for her daughter's wedding a mauve dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother was attired in light brown with yellow accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The reception was held at the home of the bride. For the honeymoon trip the bride travelled in a beige suit with yellow and white accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations.
