Notes and Comments.

—What about that fence? The Dominion Government have attended to their part of the structure; but the Peters-McLean-Farquharson combination are not making any move towards completing the work Unfortunate Queen Square! Beautiful flowers, well-kept walks, a fountain with seals in the basin, and—but what a fence!

—Canada's egg trade with the United States last year, according to a bulletin just issued at Ottawa, was valued at $1,177,831, as compared with $2,095,437 in 1885. Since the McKinley bill went into operation Canadian eggs sought a market in England. For the six months ending September, 1890, the exports from Canada to Great Britain were only $1,208, but for the year ending September 30th last, the figures reached $240,000. The imports of eggs into Great Britain last year were valued at $17,000,000. The same bulletin also deals at considerable length with the possibility of the canned goods and poultry trade with Great Britain.

—What about a series of promenade concerts in Queen Square Gardens these fine summer evenings? Is any person moving in the matter? The Gardens are now looking exceedingly well, and there is a large attendance of people each evening. Then why not have the promenade concerts at once? At a public meeting of ratepayers of the town of Amherst a few evenings ago it was agreed almost unanimously to ask the City Council to expend $400 for music on the town square. The rate payers of Amherst are evidently a music-loving people—and know how to appreciate their band. We have several good bands in Charlottown and we should easily be able to have public promenade concerts at least twice a week.

—A farmer named Peebles, living in the State of Iowa, some years since gave a definition of the revenue tariff system, which is now being revived in American papers, as follows:

"A tariff for revenue only, if it means anything, implies the following effects:

"A general reduction of the existing duties on imports

"To be followed by a larger importation of foreign-made fabrics.

"To be followed by a falling off in the demand for those made at home.

"To be followed by the closing of American workshops

"To be followed by the relatively greater number of men engaged in agriculture.

"To be followed by an increase in the supply of farm products, with no corresponding increase in the demand.

"To be followed by a reduction of the farmer's profits.

"I, for one, do not like it."

—As the Maritime Medical Association which will meet in Halifax to-morrow is likely to attract public attention a sketch of it may be of interest. The Association was instituted in Moncton two years ago. Its first regular meeting was held in St. John one year ago. Its second annual meeting will be held in Halifax this week. The next will be held in Charlottetown during the summer of next year. All the registered practitioners of the three provinces are eligible to membership, but none become members until they signify their assent. It has a president, and a vice-president from each province, who are elected annually. The president is elected from each province in turn. Thus the first president was elected from New Brunswick, —the second from Nova Scotia, and on next Thursday a president and vice-president will be elected from P. E. Island. The choice of these will be limited to the members of the association who live in P. E. Island. These members are Drs. James McLeod, R McNeill, of Stanley (who are members of the longest standing), S. R. Jenkins and Harry Johnson. The doctors of the country have not as yet exhibited much interest in the association. The attendance on its meetings involves considerable expense and loss of time. The emoluments from medical practice in this country do not warrant extraordinary expenditure in extraneous medical affairs. However, as soon as it shall be demonstrated that the results of the operations of the association are likely to be commensurate with the sacrifices required, there is no doubt that the medical profession of this country will exhibit a becoming interest in its affairs.

THE GRAND LODGE MEETS IN ANNUAL SESSION.

The Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Good Templars, met in annual session in McLeod's Hall, in this city this forenoon. There was a good attendance of delegates. Grand Chief Templar, Louis U Fowler, presided, and the following officers of the Grand Lodge were present: Calvin McLure, Montague, Grand Vice; Adelia E Horton, Murray River, G S F J Templar; A D Fraser, Bedeque, Gr Sec; R C McRae, Vernon River, P G Chief.

The following officers were filled pro tem: G Com, Jas A Dalziel; G A Sec, R R Morson; G Guard, Wm Reid; G Sent, E G Giddings; G Marsh, S M Martin; D G M, Bella Robertson; G Mess, Ed Carson.

The following sessional committees were appointed:—

On Distribution—J C Underhay, M P P, Chairman, Mrs Charles Matheson and W A Peardon.

On State of the Order—Rev W A Mason, Jas A Dalziel, Charles Reilly.

On Finance — Neil McDonald, Allan Hunter, H Murchison.

On By-Laws—R C McRae, E G Giddings, Adelia E Horton.

On Juvenile Work—D D Hugh, S M Martin, Lavinie Bears.

There were eight new members initiated at the first session.

The G. C. Templar and G. Secretary read their reports, which show a substantial increase of members during the year, and the finances to be in a very prosperous condition.

The first session closed at 12 30 to open at 2 o'clock. Sessions will be held this evening, opening at 7 and also on to-morrow.

THE BEST SELLER.—The druggists and dealers throughout the Island say that Everybody's Pills are among the best-selling medicines, and give perfect satisfaction. ....

"A Thing of Beauty."

Within the past few weeks rapid progress has been made towards the ultimate completion of the beautiful chapel erected in memory of the late Rev. George W. Hodgson, first Priest Incumbent of St. Peter's Cathedral Church, Charlottetown. All passers by notice the beauty of the little red sandstone structure, but it is not until the visitor enters the Chapel that an adequate idea may be formed of the unusual beauty of the sacred place. It consists of nave and chancel separated from each other by a Gothic red sandstone arch, of which the pillars are treated by the sculptor in a conventional design suggestive of the stem markings of fossil trees. From the richly carved capitals rises the arch, consisting of a carved facia between superior and inferior mouldings of a bold and effective section. The chancel, with its altar, reredos and credence table, all literally encased in walnut, embellished with graceful carving, is a memorial to the late Mrs. Edward Hodgson, wife of the Honorable the Master of the Rolls of P. E. Island, brother of the late Priest Incumbent. The work may be divided into three sections—panels, niches and groined roof—each separated from the other by heavy bands of mouldings. In the three panels of the roof on the eastern, northern and southern walls, are large circles for pictures, one of which is supplied by a beautiful painting by Mr. Robert Harris, R. C. A., representing our Lord seated in glory, extending His hands in blessing upon the mysteries and the faithful below. The beautifully-blended colouring of this altar-piece is brought out most effectively by the strong contrast of the rich dark walnut. The eastern wall, above the arch and beside the pillars, is painted a dull flat green, and adds to the striking contrast between the red sandstone arch and the harmony of colors in the shadowed chancel behind. The building is lighted by a large window over the western door, throwing into high relief all the lines of rafter, arch and pillar, and all irritating cross-lights are avoided by the admission of light from one side only. From this side, too, the artificial lighting (from gas) is thrown in similar manner, whereby an harmonious result is obtained. Of the three windows, two are fitted with stained glass, by Kemp, of London, G. B., one in memory of Mrs. Edward Hodgson, the second in that of Frank Carvell, second son of His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor. It is intended to finish the walls of the nave in panels up to the windows, between which, and on the opposite wall (where there is grand opportunity for effective decoration) will be placed paintings; the uppermost part of the walls, to be in tiles, with terra cotta medalions at intervals. One picture is already in position, from the brush of Mr. Harris, and in memory of Mrs. Mackay and her daughters. It represents St. Augustine of Hippo, vested in full Episcopal attire of cope, mitre, etc., meditating upon the contents of a book as he paces the shore of an Eastern coast The figure is the expression of Mr. Harris' ideal after perusal of the Saint's works and narratives of his life, and study of old paintings of the subject. In the treatment of the picture the flat decorative effect of the old time frescoes is reproduced in a clear, bright surface of softly harmonizing tones without any deep masses of strongly contrasting colours, and is agreeable as regards lighting, as viewed from any stand point in the chapel. The roof calls for our last notice. From solid walnut pillars resting on the floor and surmounted by boldly carved capitals, rise Gothic arches of ash, which wood is also used for all rafters and sheathing The angles of the principal rafters are finished with circular mouldings, their triangular panels filled with perforated fret work. There is a very handsome cornice carried around the chapel, consisting of upper and lower mouldings of ash, and a broad belt of walnut richly carved in a bold pattern of conventional leaf, bud and flower. Above the cornice is a broad panel of ash pierced with quatre foils, the deep shadows of which are heightened by the black on the wall surface behind. The various parts of the woodwork of the roof are tinted in warm tones, and indeed throughout all the details, Mr. W. C. Harris, the talented architect, has displayed perfect taste and great resources, which have in this case produced a perfect harmony of rich factors, and for the chapel a quiet, restful, devotional atmosphere. When the decoration is completed, the Hodgson Memorial Chapel will be, for its size, one of the handsomest sacred edifices upon the continent. The chapel should be in a certain degree a centre of interest and congratulation for all Islanders, for the architect (Mr. W. C. Harris), the builders (Messrs. Lowe Brothers), the artist (Mr. Robert Harris, R. C. A.), the sculptor (Mr. Purdie), the wood carvers (Mr. W. P. Doull and Messrs. Lowe Bros.) are all natives of Prince Edward Island, and the fabric is built of the beautiful red sandstone of this Province.

Suggested at the Tournament.

That it would be well to prevent carriages and teams monopolizing the space between the grand stand and the race track, thereby interfering with the view from a large portion of the seats paid for by visitors.

Those who prefer being seated or standing in their carriages should be ordered to take their positions around the grounds, and not in front of the Grand Stand. Future management should take a note of this.

The Marshall's express conveyance for the "lock up" was happily not in requisition, as good orded prevailed.

At one time in the afternoon, the City Marshal, than whom no better officer could wear the uniform, ordered a man under the influence of intoxicants to quit the grounds quick. The order was obeyed. But in the meantime an unwarranted impression that there was trouble, caused a rush from the grand stand to the main gate. But scarcely had the crowd reached the gate when the announcement was made that "Marshal Cameron had settled the business."

Irresponsible parties should not be allowed to interfere in any way with the management of a gathering in the hands of the proper officers, especially when under the command of Marshal Cameron.

The Functions of Universities.

SIR,—Your issue of June 29th, has, under this caption, a brief and pungent letter, signed "F. P. T.," an evidently intelligent and progressive correspondent, who takes exception to what he understood to be the statement of President Allison, of Mt Allison University, regarding the design and compass of university work, in his address to the Conference here on the 27th ult. Your correspondent seems to have gathered from the utterances of President Allison that he holds, "it is not the duty of universities to convey learning which may be termed practical; but it is their duty to convey knowledge which will form the basis of a practical and technical education." In listening to the learned President of the Sackville Institution, I beg to say I did not quite so understand him, especially if the ordinary conception of the term "gentleman" in the quotation is set over against the ordinary conception of the term "practical man." Such expressions may be easily misunderstood, or so used as to excite a prejudice, under whose shadow, no man reaches a just conclusion. The impression made upon my mind by his argument, was that President Allison did not by any means exclude or disparage practical and technical education, or remove it outside the compass of university work; but simply insisted, that even with the enlarged idea of modern universities, it is not their first and principal duty to convey learning which may be termed practical; but rather their first and principal duty to convey the knowledge which will form the basis of a practical and technical education. What is a university is not to be a black smith shop or a saw-mill; but it may and must teach something of coal and calorie; of power and pulleys; or in other words, of geology, mechanics and physics. And with this view your able correspondent will, no doubt, readily agree. As he well says, "the great aim of every seat of learning should be distinctly and directly practical." Precisely that; but if we are going to take aim effectively and bring down the game, we must look out for the gunner and the gun as well as for the bird. The man, and the instruments he makes and learns to use are as much a part of the practical as the other man on whom he operates, or the forests he converts into cities If we are to have sound and effective, practical and technical education, we must look out for the scientific basis of that practical education, as well also for the character of the man in whom the scientific basis inheres, and who builds upon it. Pre-eminently that scientific basis is the University work. Then found your schools and faculties upon it fast as possible. For fruitful, practical work you must have disciplined minds So I understood President Allison. No doubt much time has been wasted in Universities as well as in professions, and pursuits outside of them. Yet in the modern haste for the palpably and immediately "practical," there is danger that the slower, less showy and less observed, but by no means less important processes and products of mental discipline and personal culture may be overlooked. All universities should guard against this danger, or they have no right to exist. The most important factor inside the university or outside of it is the man himself; and the highest type of the practical is his enoblement. Without this, the aim, the bond and strength, are gone, and the bottom soon tumbles out of the technical and practical altogether. Around this central and vital idea modern universities are gathering many and various technical schools and departments. I understood this to be President Allison's position and policy, and I know this is what they are aiming at heart and soul and all their cash in Sackville. Wherefore, I am persuaded it is our present, positive and perpetual duty, in the interests both of Church and country to help them all we can. And their success by our aid would be one of the grandest practical achievements of these Maritime Provinces.

After the meeting the brethern were invited to Bro. W. F. Carter's for refreshments by Noble Grand Small and Vice Grand Seller.

ONE of the sights of the city of Hamilton is the factory in which the celebrated "Myrtle Navy" tobacco is made. Some people may suppose that putting up plugs of tobacco must be a very simple matter, but a walk amidst the ponderous and complicated machinery of the establishment would speedily undeceive them. Here are hydraulic presses, screw presses, iron frames, all of enormous strength, besides a steam engine and many other pieces of machinery.

Trampled in the Dust.

A CANADIAN CLERGYMAN DISPLAYS THE STARS AND STRIPES.

On the morning of Dominion Day the citizens of Wiarton, Ontario, were surprised to see the stars and stripes high over the Union Jack on the premises of Rev. G. A. Yeomans, Presbyterian minister at that place. The American flag was a big one, while the British flag was the size of a pocket handkerchief. Indignation was intense. Leading citizens called the attention of the authorities to the flag. Reeve Jermyn notified a constable to attend to the matter. Councillor Parker asked the minister to lower the flag or at least place the flags on equal terms, but Mr. Yeomans refused to do so when Parker informed him the people would take it down. Mr. Yeomans defied the people to do so. Then thirty or forty leading citizens marched to his house. Constable West lowered the flag and it was torn to fragments by hundreds of people who had collected, and afterwards trampled in the dirt. A band played God Save the Queen and thousands of people joined in the chorus. "Hearts of Oak" and "Red, White and Blue" were sung by the multitude, who dispersed, after giving three cheers for Her Majesty. Mr. Yeomans is an avowed annexationist and a grit in politics.

MR JUSTICE HENSLEY PRESIDING.

The Queen vs Thomas McTaque—This was an indictment for perjury alleged to have been committed on the trial before the Stipendiary Magistrate of the city of Charlottetown of one James Hennessey for a breach of the Lord's Day Act. Mr. Stewart for the prisoner moved that the indictment be quashed on four or five grounds, but the presiding Judge refused the motion and reserved the questions for the consideration of the full court. The trial of the indictment then proceeded and in the end the prisoner was found guilty.

Death to the Potato Bug.

Farmers, do not despair, but rather exert yourselves, save your crops—rid the pest and fertilize your land. The following remedy is available to all: Get common, small roach lime; slack for twenty-four hours, suitable to sift through the hand as in broadcast sowing, and sow over the plant in the morning before the dew is off. One barrel lime is sufficient for one acre. The information is gratuitous; the lime I can supply at seventy-five cents per barrel.

RUBBING IT IN.—The Halifax Chronicle says: The firemen returned on Saturday evening from Charlottetown, being very well pleased with their excursion and bearing their blushing honors with becoming modesty. They were received with the utmost enthusiasm by their comrades and were the recipients of hearty compliments upon their brilliant achievements in the several competitions.

BEARS KILLED.—Some ten days ago the farmers of West River, Lot 47, were gratified to learn that Mr. John Robertson, of Munn's Road, with Mr Freeman Stewart had killed two half grown bears near their settlement. On the evening of the 30th June Mr. Robertson, accompanied by Mr. Merrill Stewart, entered the woods at Bothwell and in a few minutes shot a large he bear. Following up their good luck they went to the same spot Friday night, 1st July, and as quickly laid another large fellow low. And they expect to bag more yet. Mr. Robertson is worthy of all praise for his prowess and perseverance. Pity it is that the Government does not pay for such good work.

The Unparalleled Tea!

Cheap Railway Fares.

THE grandest tea of the season will take place at Head St. Peter's Bay on WEDNESDAY, JULY 6th, in aid of the Presbyterian Church at that place.

The large and active committee appointed to take charge is a sufficient guarantee that it will honorably bear the name of "The Unparalleled Tea."

Tourists who have visited St. Peter's Bay bear testimony to the superiority of the scenery, its enchanting and exhilarating air The beautiful fields, clothed in the richest green, fronting on the lovely Bay, whose waters are dancing merrily in the sunbeams, make it impossible for man to conceive that nature could be brought to a more exquisite degree of perfection.

On the grounds there will be a large and well stocked saloon, consisting of all kinds of temperance drinks, confectionery and fruit of every description that is procurable.

For the amusement of those who favor us with their presence, we have engaged Bicyclists to give an exhibition of speed and show a system of modern travel.

There shall also be erected a large bower, where sweet music will be discanted by some of the most distinguished voices from the city. This, along with the best band that can be procured, together with football matches, swings, etc., cannot fail to make the day but one of solid enjoyment.

The trains will run as follows:

A special train will leave Summerside at 6.30 a. m., (local time) connecting at Royalty Junction with a special leaving Charlottetown at 8 30, (local) arriving at St. Peters at 10.40. Returning will leave at 6 o'clock (local).
