Reveal Sordid Living Conditions in Vancouver School For Delinquent Girls

VANCOUVER (CP)—A school in the east end for delinquent girls between the ages of eight and 18 has hit the headlines as a breeding place for vice and crime.

It is the girls' industrial school, 40-year-old institution for those considered too young for Kingston penitentiary and other prisons. Editorials and letters to the editor began appearing in Vancouver newspapers following the release of a government report on the school.

The report by a committee of four men and a woman to Eric Martin, provincial health minister, told of teen-aged girls confined in concrete, dungeon-like cells, sleeping on mattresses and blankets tossed on damp floors of the sub-basement.

There was no change in personnel suggested but the report urged strongly that a more modern building be constructed. It noted there is no chance for segregation and that all prisoners are lumped together "from the wayward child to the prostitute, drug addict, alcoholic or mentally ill."

There are no toilet facilities in the dormitories and the girls must call until someone hears them so that they may be taken to the bathroom.

The committee first visited the school Dec. 22, 1953, shortly after a fire and riot.

Jean Howarth, Vancouver Province columnist who once did a series of articles on the women's prison at Kingston, described the industrial school detention cells in a series of stories after visiting the premises.

EBENEZER W.I.

Mrs. Leonard Roberts entertained the Ebenezer Women's Institute on Nov. 10th, for the annual meeting. The meeting opened with the Creed. Roll call was answered by eleven members paying dues. There were three visitors present. The minutes of the last annual meeting and regular monthly meeting were read and approved.

The sick committee gave their report and a new committee of Mrs. Bill Scott and Mrs. Lincoln MacRae was appointed for the next three months. The secretary gave a report of the year's work which showed a balance of $37.12. Plans were made for scrubbing the school on Thursday. The secretary was asked to write to two firms about sponsoring a Shurgain Show.

With the election of officers for the coming year, Mrs. Leonard Roberts was appointed president, with Mrs. Lincoln MacRae as Vice-President. The Sec'y-Treas, Mrs. Oatway, was re-elected. The directors are: Mrs. Norman MacRae, Mrs. West MacDonald and Mrs. Allison MacLeod, Auditors, Mrs. Emerson MacLeod and Mrs. Dan MacLeod.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. West MacDonald with Mrs. Dan MacLeod to assist with the lunch. After the meeting was adjourned, Mrs. Norman MacRae gave another lesson in the Home Nursing Course, after which lunch was served by the hostess and committee.

STEADY JOB

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) William Banks, local sheriff, has been re-elected for his 35th term as treasurer of Branch 35 of the Canadian Legion. He has held the post since the branch started in 1919.

WRITERS' PROTEST

Letters to the editor followed: One, from Oyama, B. C., said: "The every thing which brave soldier broke some of our brave soldier prisoners was just this very punishment."

The provincial government, while silent on plans for the school, took a definite course of action on the boys' industrial school in Coquitlam, B. C.

WORSE THAN KINGSTON

"In the girls' industrial school, there are half a dozen 'holes.' They are much worse than the Kingston cells, being not only barren concrete rooms furnished with only a thin mattress and blankets, but dirty, dilapidated and open, through their grilles, glassless windows, to the frosty night."

Miss Howarth said the cheeriest rooms in the place are on a fire-trap top floor "where new, sick or homosexual girls are isolated."

"Our girls' industrial school," makes Kingston's prison for women look like a luxury hotel."

Religion and Life

By Very Rev. George C. Pidgeon, D.D., LL.D. First Moderator of the United Church of Canada

NEW SIGNIFICANCE IN HIS WRITINGS

Years ago Dr. R. P. Mackay was looking over the treasures of an old book-store when he found some copies of the autobiography of Asa Mahan. He bought them and gave a number of them to friends interested in the deeper religious life. I heard him quote from it in an address to students and he favored me with a copy. It contains a record of extraordinary spiritual experience.

What gives the book new significance now is the present awakening interest in religious revival in America. In answer to a question from a newspaper reporter, the Archbishop of Canterbury paid a generous tribute to the quality and effectiveness of Billy Graham's work, and a number of church bodies have invited him to return.

Other evangelists of the same type are engaged in the same work in North America, and are meeting wide acceptance by the churches. What we need to keep in mind is that Evangelism of this character has marked American life from the first, and that the writings of some of its leaders have a vividness and depth that give them permanent value.

Asa Mahan was an early pioneer in this field. He was one of the founders of Oberlin College, and there, as elsewhere, was a fellow-worker with Charles G. Finney. He took part in a number of the spiritual movements of his time.

In the course of these religious activities he became deeply dissatisfied with his own spiritual state and with conditions in the church. Why was his own religious experience unsteady, now on fire with enthusiasm and again dim and low?

How was it that St. Paul could always feel "the love of Christ constraining him" while his heart was often so cold?

THEIR CONFLICT

Then he found the members
