Russian Settlements Reassuring To west

By JACK BERT
MOSCOW (CP)—Initial anxieties about a possible anti-Western lurch in Soviet foreign policy as a result of the sacking of Premier Nikita Khrushchev have all but disappeared. It was still too early to discern the full ramifications of the leadership switch but Western observers were reassured by the first policy statements of the new regime headed by Leonid Brezhnev and Alexei Kosygin.

The newspaper Pravda called for strengthened friendship and co-operation among the peoples of Britain, the United States, France and the Soviet Union. Russia. The appeal was contained in a list of 110 slogans published in connection with the coming anniversary of the new leadership.

Brezhnev is the party first secretary and Kosygin is the chairman of the council of ministers of premier.

SLOGAN PUBLISHED
Another slogan published by Pravda called for an all-encompassing ban on nuclear tests.

This appeared at least in part as a response to the first detonation of a nuclear device by China. China has refused to sign a nuclear test-ban treaty negotiated last year by Britain, France and the United States and Russia on the ground that it does not cover underground blasts. The West has insisted effective inspection and control procedures be negotiated before it will agree to a ban on underground test explosions.

The Pravda call appeared on the surface to be a gesture towards the Chinese though there have been reports Russia may be getting ready for serious negotiations with the West on controlled abolition of all nuclear tests.

APPEARS IN CONTROL
Meanwhile the new leadership appeared to be in full control, having gathered in the power systematically and with the little outward sign of struggle.

Moscow was in a festive mood Sunday as preparations continued for the triumphant entry into the capital of Russia's three new comrades. Flags, banners and overhead lights bedecked streets in many parts of the city.

There is speculation Brezhnev or some other high official will use the occasion to deliver a statement on the policies of the new administration and perhaps fill in some of the back ground of Khrushchev's sudden ouster.

KHRUSHCHEV STILL UP ON RED WALL

Communist East Germany army pioneers work under the portrait eyes of ousted Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and East German party boss Walter Ulbricht at the border village of Moedlaruth dividing East and West Germany in Bavaria. The pioneers are diverting waters of a stream in order to make way for a Communist wall to replace a barbed wire fence dividing the village. Work started Tuesday but the portraits have been up for months and nobody has done anything about taking that of Khrushchev down.

Outdoor Writers May Be Invited To 1967 Events

LE DOMAINE, Que (CP)—Outdoor writers from around the world may be invited as a group to take part in Confederation's centennial celebration. The project is a tentative one of the Outdoor Writers of Canada, holding their 10th annual convention in this provincial government resort area 260 miles northwest of Montreal.

Reg Fife of Montreal, chairman of the committee to propose an OWC project for the confederation's centenary, outlined steps taken so far.

House Flag Committee Said Facing Deadlock

TORONTO (CP)—The Star says the seven Liberal committee members, as well as representatives of the three minor parties, are understood to have agreed to accept Prime Minister Pearson's favorite design of three red maple leaves on a white background between two vertical blue bars. But it adds they are united in insisting that the maple leaf be the central motif if the design is to be distinctively Canadian.

The Star says at least four of the five Progressive Conservative members of the 15-member committee "have made it abundantly clear that they will not accept a design which does not display the Union Jack in a position of prominence."

Canada To Seek Relaxation Of U.S. Lead, Zinc Quotas

By ARCH MacKENZIE
WASHINGTON (CP)—Canada is ready to seek the relaxation or removal of quotas imposed since 1958 on exports to the United States of lead and zinc. The time is propitious. The U.S. needs more zinc than it can produce and zinc prices, along with those for copper and tin, are going up.

The Canadian strategy seems to be to move quickly enough—once the Nov. 3 election has passed — to get action before high prices bring too many U.S. mines back into production. These "marginal" mines operate only when prices are high.

An investigation of the lead-zinc situation has been made by the United States tariff commission on an application earlier this year to increase the quotas. The commission's decision is probably not to be announced until after Nov. 3.

The U.S. maintains a lead-zinc stockpile of about 1,500,000 tons and only a little zinc has been released so far.

ZINC BENEFITS
Zinc is the main Canadian metal benefiting from current price increases. Informants here say, although copper also has gone up. There has been less demand for lead and Canadian tin output is small.

I.Q. Tests Criticized

OTTAWA (CP)—Intelligence tests may not be a valid way to detect mental retardation in children, a Montreal psychologist said here.

Speaking on the opening day of a four-day federal provincial conference on mental retardation, Dr. Sam Rabinovitch, senior research psychologist at the Montreal Children's Hospital, sharply criticized established I.Q. intelligence quotient tests now used to evaluate the extent to which a child is mentally retarded.

"The notion that a child's I.Q. remains constant is widely prevalent. We also have the idea that the I.Q. is related to a thing. Instead, we have to start thinking of human beings as a constellation of abilities. Naturally these abilities come in different amounts in different persons."

The meeting, bringing together more than 250 representatives of the federal and provincial departments of health, education and welfare, was officially opened by Health Minister Judy LaMarsh who said that the Canadian Mental Health Association and other voluntary organizations for their work with the retarded.
