Free After 19 Years In Prison, Gets Life Pension

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—A man who went through 19 years of hurt and humiliation in Minnesota prisons will within a few weeks earn the final reward of a plodding justice.

Slender Leonard Hankins of Dawson Springs, Ky., will accept the first of $300 monthly pension cheques, Minnesota's payment for the years of suffering it inflicted on an innocent man.

Hankins will accept it with gratitude, some disappointment and no bitterness.

"It's enough to live on," the 59-year-old southerner said in a resonant drawl that carried no anger.

A bill providing Hankins with $300 a month for the rest of his life has been passed by both houses of the Minnesota legislature. When a number of other unrelated claims are settled by a conference committee, the bill goes to the governor. Hankins' payments would be retroactive to Jan. 1.

WANTS TO FORGET

"I thank God that the legislature did as much for me as it did," Hankins said. "The only thing for me to do now is to put all of those terrible years behind me. I don't want to think of them.

Hankins was pardoned in 1951, years after members of the Barker-Karpis gang which held up a bank in Minneapolis and killed two policemen in 1932, had confessed Hankins had no part in the bank robbery.

Hankins, because shaky circumstances pointed to him, was convicted Feb. 6, 1933, and sentenced to life imprisonment.

In 1935 mobster Jesse Doyle, a member of the Barker gang, cleared Hankins. A long chain of hearings followed. Several times Hankins was promised his freedom.

Hankins won his release largely through the efforts of his sister, Mrs. Delia Lowery, Jack MacKay, St. Paul correspondent for The Associated Press, and Sig Couch, a former Minneapolis detective. Mrs. Lowery was granted $10,000 by the legislators as partial recompense for the money spent in gaining her brother's release.

A travelling salesman or any one else looking for a farmer, would have difficulty these days in finding one, as most farmers, who happen to be fortunate enough to have any potatoes remaining spend most of their spare time in the cellars counting the "gold nuggets," for which they have been offered a record high price for this time of the year.

Austrians Are Confident Occupation Nearing End

VIENNA (AP)—Chancellor Julius Raab returned triumphantly from Moscow Friday with Russian promises that Austria may be free of occupation no later than the end of this year.

Raab leader of 7.000,000 people, indicated he was confident the Russians meant what they told him in Moscow

"We will be free after 10 years of hope and struggle," he told a cheering crowd of welcomers.

The Russians promised, in three days of talks, to agree that their 44,000 troops, together with 23,000 of the United States, Britain and France, be withdrawn as soon as a treaty of independence is signed, and in any case not later than Dec. 31, 1955. They also promised big economic concessions.

Western diplomats appeared confident a meeting of the Big Four ambassadors would take place soon in the Austrian capital in an effort to reach agreement on the treaty.

During the last 10 years the Big Four have had almost 300 meetings on the treaty without agreement.

Almost the entire Russian and Western diplomatic corps was on hand at the Russian's Bad Voeslau airfield, 22 miles south of Vienna, to meet and cheer the chancellor, Vice-Chancellor Adolf Schaerf, and Foreign Minister Leopold Figl. They arrived in two Soviet military planes.

Raab was cheered by flag-waving thousands. School children, given the afternoon off, threw flowers at the smiling 64-year-old Roman Catholic premier.

The news Raab brought had been announced a few hours previously in a joint Austrian-Russian declaration. A communique said:

THE BARGAIN

A communique said:

1. The Russians agreed to pull their troops out by Dec. 31, 1955 or sooner if a state treaty is signed.

2. They will allow the Austrians to "buy back" with goods, instead of cash, 300 industrial enterprises which the Soviets have controlled in their zone since 1945. The Soviets valued them at $150,000,000.

3. The Russians will return to Austria the big Zistersdorf oilfields and refineries they have been exploiting under the contention they are former "German assets." The Russians said they would give them back "in exchange for the delivery of crude oil in an amount to be agreed on between the two states."

4. The Russians said they would return to Austria the properties of the Danube Shipping Company including ships and river-port installations, for a sum yet to be agreed upon.

5. The Kremlin agreed that the Praesidium of the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) also would consider favorably the return home of 384 prisoners of war, 450 civilian internees and 300 ethnic Germans with relatives in Austria.

As for the Austrians, they agreed not to join any military alliances or to permit military bases on Austrian soil.
