His Honour, the Lieutenant Governor T. W. L. Prowse and Mrs. Prowse entertained Friday evening at a dance at Government House in honour of the three ships of the Royal Canadian Navy during their stay in port. These ships were the cruiser H.M.C.S. "Quebec", H.M.C.S. "Iroquois" and H.M.C.S. "Rurok".

Highlights of the Charlottetown Centennial Program for the coming week are:

- July 18-21 Maritime Fire Chiefs Convention.
- July 20 - Acadian celebration marking 200th Anniversary of Exclusion of Acadians.

In this Charlottetown Centennial year interesting reading is a Centennial speech called "What the Age Owe to America" by William Maxwell Everts. This speech was delivered in Philadelphia July 4, 1876 in the Centennial Exposition held in celebration of the 100th year of the Independence. William M. Everts was born in Boston, Mass., in 1818. He served as an Attorney General of the United States. He was Secretary of State in the Hayes Cabinet. His 1st public office was as Senator from New York. He died in 1901. Speaking of the original principles upon which the country was founded, Mr. Everts words in 1876 are as applicable to-day: "These principles have not lost their spring nor elasticity. They have sufficed for all the methods of government in the past; we feel no fear for their adequacy in the future."

The Past Presidents and Past Supervisors of Prince Edward Island's Institutes and the present Executive members held a dinner Wednesday evening at Villa Mary. Following the dinner there was an entertainment which featured a traveltogue by Miss Jeanette Orr, Lecturer at Franklin University, and sister of Mrs. Harold Laird. For her travelling costume the bride chose a turquoise-blue suit with white accessories. The newlyweds stayed in Lake Placid, New York, for their honeymoon.

New Summer Furniture Styled For Long Wear

By ELEANOR ROSS

Just fold up the house and pack it away for the summer. You can have everything you need for easy living right in the old backyard. This year, even the television set lives outdoors.

Summer furniture has become so gay and colorful, so appealing, so light to handle, so well styled, so easy to keep clean, that you no longer need walls and a roof in order to set up a gracious outdoor living room. What a far cry from the plain old rattan job!

Decorator Colors

But in spite of decorator colors and smart styling, the chief appeal of the newest summer furniture is its weather-resistance and easy cleaning. If you have to worry all the time over your outdoor living quarters, the attraction is gone, the fun is spoiled. So designers have devoted their attention to aluminum furniture, to sturdy rattan, to wrought iron, to redwood chairs and tables that literally invite, and can take, any kind of weather.

Weather-Proof

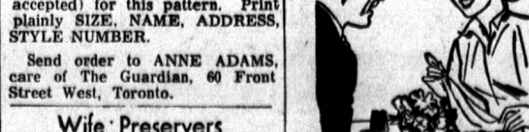

Synthetic upholstery fabrics guarantee you weather-proof comfort. Canvas seats that lace into furniture are sun-fast and washable. Foam rubber upholstery is just as reliable. New garden table umbrellas are plasticized to make them rain-proof. You can simply turn the hose onto your outdoor garden pieces to keep them clean as new.

A soapy sponge or scrub brush is all that's needed to remove dust.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

A coating of window wax spread on a silver dish or tray will keep the silver from tarnishing and can be easily washed off when the article is to be used.

DATE PINWHEELS

Mix 1/2 lb. dates, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1/2 cup water. Cook over low heat until thick. Fold in 1/2 cup chopped walnuts. Cool. Sift: four cups flour, 1 tsp. ground cinnamon, 1 tsp. baking soda, 1 tsp. salt, and 2 cups brown sugar. Add 3 eggs well beaten. Mix in flour mixture. Chill dough. Roll out on floured board. Spread with s'mixture. Roll up in 3/4 inch diameter. Cut into 1/2 inch slices. Bake in 3/4 x 9 x 1 1/2 inch pan.

Wife Preservers

Transparent book covers that protect bindings from wear, tear, water, and dirt are made of plastic. They are quickly fitted to each book by placing a closed pocket at one end of the book cover over the binding edge. They come in three book sizes, and are useful if you read while riding on bus, train or airplane.

Marinated Shish-Kabobs: Combine 1 1/2 tsp. mixed pickling spices, 1/4 tsp. poultry seasoning, 1/4 tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp. monosodium glutamate, 1/4 tsp. grated lemon rind, 1/4 tsp. fresh lemon juice, 1 slice small peeled onion, 1 beef bouillon cube and 1 c. boiling water. Heat but do not boil.

Cut 1 1/2 lbs. lean lamb in 2" cubes. Place in a 2 qt. bowl or jar. Pour in the spiced mixture. Cool, cover, and refrigerate 24 hrs.

When ready to cook, alternate the lamb on skewers with a slice of onion and green pepper between each piece. Broil over charcoal grill 30 min., or until well browned. Turn occasionally to cook uniformly.

Cut a firm tomato into 4 wedges, and place on the skewers 10 min. before the shish-kabobs will be done.

Fresh Corn-on-Cob Baked in Foil: Husk the corn; place each ear on a square of aluminum foil. Sprinkle with salt, monosodium glutamate and ground black pepper. Top with a thin slice of butter. Wrap securely by making a double lengthwise fold over the top. Turn the ends up and fold smoothly against the corn. Bake 20-25 min. over the grill; turn twice to cook uniformly. Serve with the foil tucked back.

"Every occasion is delightful, but all of them copy the others. So, Tom and I decided to repay our social obligations with various types of garden parties, from late April through September, using as a setting the section of our garden loveliest at the time.

"In April we gave a daffodil brunch, with a ham 'n' eggs cooked in a sunny spot where the daffodils are yellowest. In May, I gave a Japanese garden tea for my club near the flower beds where the iris were in bloom. Next, came a cocktail party against a backdrop of the lilac hedge.

Sunday Buffet

"When the June roses bloomed, we had an outdoor Sunday buffet for just-married friends. This week we're giving a cook-out dinner featuring our own home-grown vegetables. Everybody has fun, including us."

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

Because this week of days proved to be ideal for that work, the weeding of the roots—the mangels and turnips the farmers here like to grow in some supply, was completed this evening. But not without the added help of a schoolmate of Jamie's who hoed his rows with the rest throughout recent days.

So hoes were put away and then in a singular coincidence, a year to the day of its commencement last year, the team was hitched to the mower and our haying began.

"Do you hear it—the mower?" Mack came in unsmiling to ask. "Isn't it too bad the hay must be cut and the clover now so pretty in bloom? I said it's too early yet to start the hay but," with a shrug, "there's Granddad mowing the field across the creek."

At Alderlea the summer had reached its fullness. Lovely still it will be but the heart-beat will now not be so buoyant since the youthful vigor of it is up and away.

After a sunset which let Old Sol slip down round and red "for heat", we came with the children to the laneway-bridge to fish, and incidentally be nearer to the scene of the mowing. In vanquished ranks the fresh green swaths fell before the cutting blades as the mower made successive rounds of the field. From an alder, a goldfinch trilled a run of notes for us, but somehow they were not so light and gay as they had been of late.

"The machine cuts well" Mack commented listening to its tune. "I'll order her well... At the same time", he added, "I'm sorry to see the hay fall."

Granddaughter cast her line in the placid water and smiled: "Well, if that isn't silly! What are we going to feed to the cattle and horses this winter?" and the sheep, if we have no hay? It has to be mowed, you know Mack or else the stock will starve."

"But it could have stayed as it was for a few days yet, I'm sure, he returned

"No, it's time now, Mack, Nanna's birthday is almost here—and she was born in the haying-time. They found her in a wind-blasted nest, didn't Grandfather tell her?" she laughed. "I came in cherry-blossom time and you in harvest-time... There! I had a bite. Oh dear, he's gone! Do you suppose he'll come back again?"

Not again will this July day, to us who would have it, return or again this night wrapped delicately now in the woven silver magic of moonlight, very sweet to remember.

"If ever Heaven bends close to the earth, Surely it would be on a summer night

When earth is wrapped in liveliness and peace

And every blade of grass is tipped with light;

And, as in Eden's garden long ago,

God walks again where tall white lilies blow."
