

Doctors now agree that consumption is curable.

Three things, if taken together, will cure nearly every case in the first stages; the majority of cases more advanced; and a few of those far advanced.

The first is, fresh air; the second, proper food; the third, Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil with hypophosphites.

To be cured, you must not lose in weight, and, if thin, you must gain. Nothing equals Scott's Emulsion to keep you in good flesh.

A Little Space.

A little space—not too little—judiciously cultivated will yield better results in proportion to its cost than a ten-acre lot filled with empty utterances and printers' ingenuity.—Hardware Dealers' Magazine.

On the Isle of Man.

The climax of advertising enterprise is probably exhibited by the advertising Board of the Isle of Man. The body issues gratuitously to all who care to have it, an official guide, voluminous in bulk, comprehensive in scope and containing a map which is crowded with detail, and shows amongst other features, cycle routes over the island, marked at points where the riders should dismount and also indicating the places where one may continue to ride, but should put on the brake.—Bradford Observer.

In Pompeii.

The world began to advertise early in its civilized history, and disinterred Pompeii among its ashes gives many examples. The existence and locality of a school was denoted by a pleasing sign representing a boy undergoing a thrashing, a goat stood for the sign of a dairy, and a millstone or a sheaf of wheat for that of a baker. The symbols were made of stone or terra cotta set in pilasters at the sides of the buildings and more explicit announcements were given in tables affixed to pillars. In Rome the physician proclaimed himself by putting a cupping glass outside his door, the poulterer by a coop of fowls and the tavern keeper by a bush, which, from its omission by certain self-sufficient vintners, gave existence to the proverb, "good wine needs no bush."

Two Methods.

If you have anything that requires constant consumption a good way to advertise it is by small space attractively used in the same position in the paper constantly. It will make people soon become familiar with your goods. If you have anything that when sold completes all further business relations with the purchaser a good way to advertise it is by using large space to draw out of the publication you use quickly all that can be obtained from it.—Mail Order Journal.

Evidence Multiplies.

Evidence multiplies almost daily that so-called conservative men are conservative no longer. Old established houses who for years have scoffed at advertising are now coming out with up-to-date announcements, striving in every honorable way to retain their old-time prestige and gain as much new preference as possible.—Advertising Success.

A Characteristic of Great Men.

"So far as I have encountered them," said a citizen of the world, a characteristic of great men is that they have time. They are not in a hurry; their work doesn't boss them, but they boss their work. They don't act as if every minute you stayed was valuable time lost to them; they don't fret and fidget. What time they do devote to you appears to be time that they can spare and take things easy in, and be comfortable. The work seems to be inci-

Drugs are expensive. Sometimes they are more expensive than need be. And sometimes they are not so reliable as they ought to be.

There was a time when the prices of drugs were away up—too high altogether. That is not the case now. The Apothecaries Hall changed that some time ago.

You can get prescriptions from pure drugs at the proper prices—no fancy profits. You can get all my reliable special remedies; they've been tried and found effective.

The price—the main thing—will be found right in every case.
