

THE DAILY EXAMINER

APRIL 15, 1895.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

We are glad to note that Mr. D. A. McKinnon, the representative of Murray Harbor in the Legislative Assembly, is assisting in the agitation now being carried on in Murray Harbor and Belfast for the construction of a railway. Every man who, in any way, helps forward this enterprise, is doing something to advance the interests of the country.

Resolved Further, That in the opinion of this House the people of the parts of the Island residing in the Murray Harbor district, in King's County, and in Belfast and Fort Augustus districts, in Queen's County, are entitled to the same railway facilities that have, under the Railway Act, and the common expense of themselves and the rest of their fellow colonists been afforded to and are enjoyed by the people residing in those parts of the Island now traversed by the said railway and its extension.

Resolved Further, That in the opinion of this House the Parliament of Canada, should in view of the facts above set forth, construct a branch railway through the aforesaid districts.

It is hardly possible that the Parliament of Canada will resist the passage of this resolution; and if not, it will have a good effect as showing that the entire Province is in sympathy with the movement in which the people of Belfast and Murray Harbor are particularly interested.

The Guardian remarks that "Mr. McKinnon's earnestness remains to be seen"; that "that gentleman understands, of course, that the Legislature has not the money to give"; and that "it is of little avail to press the matter there (in the Legislature) than in Edin'."

But it will influence no one, either here or at Ottawa.

CUTTING DOWN EXPENSES.

It is reported from Ottawa that Hon. Mr. Foster is preparing his estimates for next year with a due regard for economy. Rumors are afloat that the Finance Minister has carried the point raised by him some months ago with respect to reductions in civil Government, and that after the first of July next there will be a very material reduction in the number of extra clerks employed, and sharp cutting down of everything in the way of contingencies.

The Montreal Gazette's Ottawa correspondent states that it is rumored that the report of the Civil Service Commission, made some three years ago, will be carried out, and that a very sweeping change will take place in the service, and a general reduction of salaries be made to the extent of five per cent. on all of one thousand and under and ten per cent. on all salaries of eleven hundred, the minimum of a second class clerk, and over. It is even said that the ministers propose to commence at the top and reduce their own salaries by one thousand dollars per year, which would put them back to $6,000 per annum, from which they were raised to seven thousand by the Mackenzie administration. It is safe to say that a reduction of expenditures will be welcomed by the taxpayers, and equally safe to say that they will be unpopular at Ottawa. The Finance Minister seems to be determined to make revenue and expenditure meet, and it is pleasing to note that he will try reduction of expenditure before putting on more taxes.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Department of Fisheries anxious to do anything in nature to meet the requirements of the fishermen, has given instructions, we understand, that when requested by the packer the license which all are obliged to take out need not be paid for in advance. This will help the small packer whose every dollar is put to immediate use.

Mr. Gordon in Vercheres presents himself as an opposition candidate, who favors federal interference in behalf of the Manitoba Catholics in the school matter. In Hamilton, Mr. Joseph Martin, author of the law taking away from the Catholic schools, comes to support Mr. Jeffrey McCarthy, who opposes anything to help the Catholics of the West to recover their lost privileges. Mr. Gordon, in 1891, was Mr. Laurier's election fund treasurer. Mr. Martin is the member for Winnipeg to whom Mr. Laurier sent a special message of congratulation on his election. Where, between the attitudes of these two supporters, stands the Montreal Gazette, does Mr. Laurier stand?

FIRE AT SIDMOUTH.

Fire was discovered in the garret of the residence of Hon. Fred Peters on Saturday evening between nine and ten o'clock. An alarm was sounded and the firemen hastened to the scene. The roads were as bad as they could be, and the night very dark. But our gallant firemen were soon at work with their apparatus. Members of the Salvage Corps took charge of the interior and assisted in making the furniture ready for removal while the Hook and Ladder Company operated upon the roof, through which fire was bursting in two places. As quickly as possible, in the darkness, holes were cut in the roof and a strong stream of water turned upon the fire. Though the flames were quickly put out, it was difficult to wholly quench the fire, which had spread greatly and was reached with difficulty, owing to darkness, smoke and steam. The house was extensively damaged by water as well as by the fire and will not be habitable until thoroughly repaired.

WAR IN THE EAST.

Officials in China ignorant of the Situation. The London Times has a despatch from Peking stating that the officials in the Chinese capital are largely ignorant of the situation in respect to Japan. Discussion of war-like questions is limited. The war office, especially the grand council, has been asked to advise the minister of the foreign powers. These consultations are now fewer than when Li Hung Chang was in Peking. The Manchus people strongly resent the presence of "alien" Manchuria to Japan. The former war faction is still strong and argues the danger of creating disaffection among the people. This faction is unwilling to yield to Japan and fears that resistance is impossible. Prince Kung, the leader of the peace party, who has control of the foreign office and the military and naval forces of the empire, is still in feeble health and his sick leave has been extended.

The unmistakable threat against Japan held out by Russia in the short notice in its semi-official organ, the Nova Vremya, has caused much surprise in diplomatic circles at Washington. It was supposed that Russia had a good understanding with Japan as to the terms of peace to be held out to China, that there was an entire agreement upon the proposition touching Korean independence, the acquisition by Japan of Formosa and Port Arthur, and in the execution of an indemnity. As to Great Britain, which appears to be re-proached with failing to maintain a stiff front against the demands of Japan, where they involved accession of territory, it has all along been understood that she was the one power which was disposed to resist these demands, and would not be prevented from actual interference through inability to secure the co-operation of Russia in such a movement.

Russia's Japanese agreement was understood to include the concession to Russia of a right of way through Corea for the Siberian railroad to afford a winter terminus, and it is suggested that the change in her attitude may be accounted for by the possible failure of this part of the programme by the Japanese undertaking to guarantee the absolute independence of Corea, thus preventing the acquisition of the needed territory for the right of way and the terminal facilities.

NEWS NOTES.

A Boston despatch says: The Norwegian liquor bill was rejected in the House today by a vote of 128 to 65, after a debate occupying the greater part of the session.

A cable message was recently received stating the possibility of Mr. Ward, postmaster general of New Zealand, returning home by the Canadian route. In that event he would visit Ottawa and discuss with Sir Mackenzie Bowell the possibility of a preferential trade arrangement between the two colonies.

From September 21 to March 8 the Japanese armies in China are reported to have lost 542 men killed in action, 131 who died from their wounds, and 981 who perished from disease. This is not by any means the first war in which the camp has seen more deaths than the field. The soldier's worst enemy in a campaign is rarely the one that fires bullets at him. Beef in New York has reached the highest price in twenty years, and people in the business who should be able to judge express the opinion that good rates will be the rule for some time. High prices for beef in New York will reduce the U. S. export movement to Great Britain, and both directly and indirectly tend to strengthen the market in this country. The farming man may have a chance to raise again in 1895.

United Ireland recently stated that John Dillon, Member of Parliament for East Mayo, after the last election was offered the position of Chief Secretary for Ireland. Editor William Dillon, of the New World, the organ of the Catholic diocese of Chicago, is a brother of John Dillon. In the course of a recent interview respecting the statement made by United Ireland, he expressed the opinion that his brother would never accept the post until Home Rule is conceded to Ireland, and then only from an Irish government.

Agricultural depression has often been played as a winning card in an election campaign, but never, perhaps, in quite the same way as it was recently used on behalf of Mr. Rider Haggard, the famous novelist, and now Conservative candidate for the East Norfolk constituency in the British House of Commons. Mr. Haggard was introduced to the first time as "a gentleman who had earned a large amount of money by his pen, and lost it by farming in Norfolk. Thereupon (the report continues) the Norfolk people accepted him as a savior and a brother."

According to late advices from Washington, counsel for the appellants in the recently-decided income tax cases have prepared a petition to be submitted to the United States Supreme Court, asking for a rehearing of the case before a full bench. The motion for a rehearing will be made upon the ground that the questions involved in these cases are as to the constitutionality of an act, and that the Supreme Court early in its history adopted the practice of requiring constitutional questions to be heard by a full court in order that the judgment might be the decision of the majority of the whole court.

The Oriental expedition has practically achieved its purpose. Not only has Umra Khan's men retreated before the advance of the British forces, but he has withdrawn his men from Chitral, so that the British garrison is virtually relieved. Umra Khan's personal following has dwindled to 600 men. As there are 200,000 fighting men in the district, and Umra Khan had a trained army of 4,000 riflemen, it is clear that the British have recognized the power of the British Government, and have gone over to the stronger side. Now that Umra Khan has been taught the useful lesson, he will probably become a useful tributary of the British Crown.

Norway is independent of Sweden as to its internal affairs, having its own parliament and its own ministers, but as to external affairs it is a joint partnership, the two countries having the same consuls and one foreign minister. The Norwegians want to alter this arrangement, and apparently they will be satisfied with nothing less than complete independence. King Oscar is not willing to grant the Norwegian demand, because he does not see how he is to drive two horses unless they will consent to pull together. Just now the situation is very near a deadlock. The radicals refuse to take office unless the King grants them their own terms, and they threaten to impeach the Conservatives if they attempt to remain in power without a majority in support of them.

TAXATION.

Reply to Ephraim Bell and the Guardian. Sir,—In the Guardian of the 8th inst. a letter appears from Mr. Ephraim Bell, of Cape Traverse, boldly headed "Provincial Tax Act, vs. Equity and Justice." In another column the subject matter of the letter receives the greatest measure of support, which the genius of its philosophical editor could devise. Their general tax theories I have no desire to discuss. These questions belong to the country, and as such should be left to the owners for solution. I take issue with them in their reference to cities and towns. They plead for "Equity" and in the same breath for "Justice" they attempt to substitute piracy. Mr. Bell asks "is there no revenue to be derived from towns?" Why should there be? Why should a city corporation be expected to maintain their own public works at a cost of $30,000 or $40,000 per year and then put their hand in their pockets to maintain public works throughout the country? Why support a municipal justice department at all whatsoever, and then provide funds for a similar service in other parts of the province? Why defray the expenses of our own Board of Health (costing in the small-pox year over $5,000) and then expect to have the support of Health Boards of Cape Traverse and other places? Why expend thousands of dollars keeping our streets, roads and bridges in repair, and building our own streets, works, and other public works, and then pay for roads and bridges throughout the province? Why spend thousands of dollars building and repairing our wharves and then meekly subscribe our quota to all wharves for the country to ship their produce by? Why provide officers for carrying out of the functions of our different public departments, and then in addition provide a similar service for the administration of the same works in country localities? Is this the kind of "equity and justice" aspired after by Mr Bell and worshipped as the very climax of perfection by the Guardian editor? Instead of contributing to the public works in the country, the city of Charlottetown and the town of Summerside should annually receive from the local Government their just proportion of the Dominion subsidy and other monies coming under the head of natural revenue, which has been in the past appropriated to the maintenance of public works throughout the province. Apart from the special expenditure for public works and other services in the country and county villages—services which the towns provide for their own expense—the ordinary revenue of the province would be sufficient to carry out the public works in the country, and in other words if the country would tax themselves as the towns do, for what Mr Bell designates as "municipal expenditures," the business of the provincial government could be conducted with the least possible direct taxation of any kind. It is because "Smith and Jones" do not "live in towns as benefactors of the race" that they object to being made the feeding ground of remorseless vultures. There is a point beyond which patience ceases as a virtue. What if "Smith and Jones" were to reach that end and throw up the corporation? Then, with the administration of city affairs vested in the Local Government, and its expenditure provided for out of the provincial revenue, the question of taxing city and country alike would be a live issue, a reasonable proposition—equitable and just. Such a proposal would be hailed with pleasure by tax-cursed citizens, for there would be no "difference between $5,000 and $10,000 invested in buildings, machinery, etc., and a similar amount reduced to about $25, while the farmer's $8 or $8 tax would advance sufficient to establish an equilibrium in revenue derivable from any scheme of taxation. The city of Charlottetown, representing about one-tenth of the population of the Island, pay annual real estate taxes amounting to about $5,000 more than is paid by the whole Province (exclusive of Summerside), and yet Mr. Bell and the Guardian would ask them to contribute to a scheme of taxation for the benefit of the farmer, whose own taxes are less than one-tenth as much, and this under the plea of "equity and justice." If this is "equity and justice," let us pray for immunity from it, and rather let injustice prevail.
