EMPLOYEE CHECKS PEAS ON INSPECTION BELT

New Annan Plant Processing Peas

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

The processing of peas at the Seeman Bros. (Canada) Ltd. plant, New Annan, from the time the vines are unloaded from trucks to the moment the packages emerge in a quick frozen state is mainly one of automation with an assist from employees who see that the peas are of the proper quality and color.

The vines are loaded into the three huge pea-viners, located outside the plant. These machines separate the peas from the pods by means of beaters. The pods remain attached to the vines which are transported to one end of the machine and taken away in trucks to be used for feed.

The peas drop through screens, which eliminates much of the unwanted material, on to a conveyor belt which takes them to a large hopper.

The hoppers are emptied by an employee into the first of several cleaning machines, which dry cleans them and removes more of the extraneous matter. From there the peas go into a de-stoning flume which takes out any little stones that may be present. They are then pumped into overhead pipes which carry them into the plant to a washer which cleans off any dirt.

The process continues into a floatation washer, then to a blancher. The peas are then graded as to quality in a brine solution, in which the tender peas float and the hard or tough ones sink. They then go to the inspection belts where employees pick out any matter that still remains as well as remove any discolored peas.

From here they are spread out on trays to dry before entering the quick-freeze vault and the final packaging process.

Plant Manager Murray MacEwen said yesterday approximately three-quarters of a million pounds of peas have already been processed at the plant and the operation is expected to continue for another four weeks.

Most of the peas were grown by farmers under contract with Seeman Bros. (Canada) Ltd.

Palmer Is Top Winner In History

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Powerful Arnold Palmer has won more money with a bag of golf clubs than any other man. $343,528.

And six cents, if you wish to be ultra correct about it.

The Pensylvania strong - man won $9,000 Sunday with his victory in the American Golf Classic in Akron. That brought his season's winnings to $80,198, a record.

It topped the old one-season high of $75,262—which Palmer set in 1960. With 4½ months to go, he seems destined to give the old mark a compound fracture.

In the list of top money-winners released Monday by U.S. Professional Golfers Association headquarters, Palmer stands $19,000 ahead of second-place Gene Littler.

And a tabulation of his season's winnings so far with those of past year places him in first place among the PGA's "composite modern era official money winners."

Riders Place Two Players On Waivers

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders announced Monday they have placed two injured players, Dick Desmarais and Bob Beattie, on waivers without recall.

The action came after an Ottawa law firm threatened the club with legal action unless the club offered a better salary settlement to the two import halfbacks. The Riders were given until Aug. 20 to straighten out the situation.

A few hours later Riders' general manager, George Terlep, announced that Desmarais and Beattie had been placed on the waivers list of the Canadian Football League at the usual price of $350.

Both Desmarais, a graduate of Boston University in his second year with the Riders, and Beattie, a graduate of Northern State College in his first year at Ottawa, are through for the season.

Beattie suffered a torn knee cartilage and Desmarais a broken left leg in exhibition games.

The Rider club is reported to have offered each player about 10 per cent of his salary in settlement for this season, with the understanding they will be available for play next season.

Desmarais' contract was understood to have called for more than $8,000 and Beattie's more than $7,000. Desmarais is single. Beattie is married and has two sons.

Highland College Proving Popular

One of the most popular tourist attractions in the province this summer is a new event in Prince Edward Island—the Highland College of Piping and Dancing which opened recently in North Rustico, three miles east of Cavendish on the Gulf Shore Road.

Hundreds of tourists from all parts of North America have already attended the daily concerts staged every afternoon and evening on the large outdoor platform. On rainy days the show has been held in the large recreation hall on the premises.

Fifty pipers, dancers and drummers from all parts of the Island, Nova Scotia and Maine are registered at the summer school and their performances are being acclaimed by visitors who come back for several concerts. The group also includes two pipe bands, the MacDougall Girls Pipe Band from Glace Bay, N.S. and the Lovat Scots Pipe Band from Prince Edward Island.

The Lovat Scots dancers, one of the finest groups of Highland dancers in the Maritimes, are seen daily in the newest Scottish dances. They also put on Irish and tap dancing for a well-rounded out program.

These daily concerts continue until Saturday of this week but will not be held Friday due to the fact that both bands will be taking part in the big Gold Cup and Saucer parade in Charlottetown

The Lovat Scots band and dancers will put on a special outdoor concert at the Lord Selkirk Park in Eldon on Wednesday afternoon, August 22 at 2:30 p.m.

Sentence Is Deferred On Window Smasher

SUMMERSIDE — Vincent Joseph Gallant, 19, Summerside, was given a three - month deferred sentence yesterday by Magistrate R.S. Hinton in Summerside Town Police Court having pleaded guilty to a charge of smashing a plate glass show window at Burma Propane Ltd., Water street, Summerside.

Police evidence showed that Constables Newsome and Sharpe saw a man trying the doors of business establishments on Summer street in the early hours of Saturday morning. The officers, upon closer observation, recognized the man as Gallant. They then saw Gallant try the door of Burma Propane Ltd. and go around to the parking lot at the rear. He returned with a stop sign which he heaved through the window, shattering it completely.

The window was valued at $170 and installation estimated at $35. Defence lawyer George R. MacMahon suggested that a suspended sentence be meted out. Police Chief Don Wannamaker objected to a suspension because he said last year there was an epidemic of window breaking because suspended sentences were being offered. The chief asked for a severe sentence so the accused may be made to realize his responsibilities to the citizens. Chief Wannamaker said Gallant stated he was drunk, but that it was "no excuse" because he was under age to be drinking.

The case was adjourned to Nov. 5 so that Gallant could get work and raise the $205 required to repair the window.

Joseph Ivan Arsenault, Summerside, charged with break and entry into Frasers Shoe Store, Summerside, yesterday was released from custody on bail pending trial later this month.

A Summerside man was fined $50 and costs or 30 days in Prince County Jail on a charge of public intoxication. Rev. Pierre Arsenault, Summerside, last week spoke to the court on accused's behalf when he appeared on a similar charge, indicating that he wanted a chance to get work and "straighten out." He was at that time given a one-month suspended sentence.
