Veitch Claims Pro League Retarding Native Talent

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — The trouble with growing good Canadian football players, says Denny Veitch, is the temptation to cheat.

It's too easy for a professional football team to talk a boy into signing a pro contract when he should pack off to college instead.

As long as members of the Canadian Football League rob the cradle, says Veitch, they fail a commitment as basic as winning games and they seriously retard the development of native talent.

If that's overstating the case, the minor football co-ordinator of the British Columbia Lions is happy to stand corrected. But Veitch points to half - a - dozen rookies in the Western Conference this year alone who he thinks came to the pro game too early. Among them is Billy Cooper of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Veitch believes they could be at college, increasing their education, their long-range earning power, and their football ability, by using athletic talent as a lever for scholarships to pay their way.

"We have six men in U.S. schools who could make our club right now," he says.

MOST HANDICAPPED

The co - ordinator believes that Lions face a greater handicap in their development program than any other CFL club.

Alone among provinces between here and Quebec, the B.C. government offers no leadership or finances for high school athletics. Lacking support of any kind for their programs, not a single city has appointed an athletic director. School boards take a haphazard, penny pinching approach to football.

"We're 20 years behind Ontario," says Veitch. "There are only 31 schools playing football in B.C. and hundreds more would be if everyone played who wanted to."

Lions have spent about $300,000 in the province trying to fill the gap, mainly in developing community programs.

But the administrators of a local system that will send 3,000 small-size football players onto the Empire Stadium field Sept. 10—to draw attention to Minor Football Week in Canada —agree they would rather have their community program run within the school system.

Veitch says a physical education co-ordinator is needed in every city with more than six high schools. Part of the co-ordinator's job would be to help find teachers qualified to instruct in major sports.

ASSISTANCE MATCHED

Until co-ordinators are appointed and money made available to schools, all Lions can do is to step in when asked. They match student contributions of up to $1,000 per school to buy protective equipment, and grant $200 a year to keep it up. They supply coach's aids, instructional films and texts, promote safety projects, and conduct training, coaching and officiating clinics.

It's an uphill task, but Lions knew that when they signed up their co-ordinator for fulltime work 2½ years ago.

Veitch, 32, has had to do everything the hard way since he lost his right arm as a five-year-old playing in the Vancouver railway freight yards. He played soccer to the age of 16, and switched to football where he became an all-star junior at centre. When he was too old for junior he coached championship teams at junior, juvenile, intermediate and high school levels. He took up rugger and became a star wing forward in a province dominant in the game.

But Veitch was uncomfortable with star ranking. He has always preferred a good team, and he says good teams come only with guaranteed, capable leadership. Working for a continuity of this leadership is his job.

Russia To Invest Heavily In Poultry And Egg Plants

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said here the Soviet Union is investing "billions of rubles" in large scale, Western style production of poultry and eggs.

The Kremlin chief, visiting a Czech chicken farm said to be the biggest in the world, said Communist chicken famers can learn a lot from "the capitalist countries."

He announced he had signed a document Wednesday on the development of Soviet poultry farming between now and 1970. "We will build a few hundred large poultry farms in order to produce billions more eggs and hundreds of thousands of tons of meat," he said.

"We are investing billions of rubles in this branch since we would not satisfy consumption of the Soviet people by producing eggs the old way. We must go over to the industrialized way of producing eggs and poultry," Khrushchev said.

Khrushchev is in Czechoslovakia on a 10-day visit scheduled to end Saturday.

"I am not afraid of being criticized for praising capitalism for the production of meat and eggs. It is achieving good results in this with a small consumption of fodder," he added.

Russia Plans Conference Despite China

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev made clear the Soviet Union plans to go ahead with its call for a world Communist conference in spite of China's refusal to take part.

He said the holding of the conference next year and of preliminary talks in December is the only correct course to follow.

Khrushchev, speaking on radio and television, said Russia's decermination to stage the conference had the support of a majority of the world's Communist parties.

The Soviet leader was reporting to the country on his nine-day visit to Czechoslovakia, from which he returned Saturday.

Stanleyville Rebels Plan New Republic

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Congolese rebels occupying Stanleyville, third largest city in The Congo, have announced formation of "the People's Republic of the Congo," reliable sources said here.

A Stanleyville rebel broadcast heard here said the People's Republic is headed by Christopher Gbenye. He was minister of the interior in the Congolese government formed by Patrice Lumumba In 1960.

Gbenye was named premier and Gaston Soumialot, who has been leading the rebellion in North Katanga and Kivu, was named defence minister.

U.S. Air Strikes May Be Ordered In S. Viet Nam

SAIGON (Reuters)—U.S. air strikes against Communist facilities and supply routes in southern Laos may soon be ordered, informed sources here said here.

The air strikes would centre around Tchepone, about 25 miles by road from the South Viet Nam border, in order to hamper the activities of Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

It was believed that this was one of the subjects U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor went home to Washington to discuss with administration officials.

Taylor recently told a press conference here that the United States would have to take improved steps to bring Viet Cong infiltration to an end.

FIND HEADLESS BODY

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP)—The headless body of a Dutch Roman Catholic missionary, Rev. Willem De Meels, has been found in the bush near Nangollo Mission in Mozambique's northern tip close to the Tanzanyika border, the South African Press Association reported Tuesday. The priest's head was found later on the altar of his mission. The news agency gave no further details.

Opening lead—king of hearts.

Holmes and Watson were reminiscing before the fireside at Holmes' Baker Street lodgings, "Watson," said the famous detective, "did I ever tell you how I happened into the employ of the Prince of Bosnia, whose case we concluded several fortnights ago?"

Watson shook his head.

"One evening I was playing at the club with the Prince, whom I had never met before, and became the declarer at four spades."

The smooth showed Watson the North-South cards and continued: "West led the king and then the ace of hearts. How would you have played the hand?"

"I'm afraid I see no problem at all," replied the doctor. "I would ruff, proceed to draw trumps, and make five-odd."

"Aha, and you would then lose control of trumps and go down to defeat," retorted Holmes. "You should recognize that only a poor trump division can stop the contract. . . and therefore take steps to prepare for it. If you were to ruff and then draw trumps, you would fall utterly in your quest. What you should do is discard a diamond on the ace of hearts and then discard a club on the heart continuation!

"You would lose the first three tricks, but would then take the remainder. In fact that is the way I played the hand, and no sooner had I finished than the Prince, who had seen the diverse hands and thought I would go down, exclaimed: 'You are exactly the man to undertake a most important mission for me. It is precisely such logic and extreme care which a matter deeply concerns me requires'."

"And I am equally impressed," said Watson. "You did indeed show rare foresight as well as restraint in refusing the first three tricks. I can see now that my impetuous play at trick two was clearly wrong and that I failed to perceive the danger lurking unsuspected in the deal. Your sense of discernment is most extraordinary."

"Elementary, my dear Watson," replied Holmes. "Elementary."
