

"In Memoriam."

OF THOSE KILLED IN THE NORTHWEST.

Growing to full manhood now, With the care lines on our brow, We, the youngest of the nations, With no childish lamentations, Weep, as only strong men weep, For the noble hearts that sleep, Filled where they fought and bled, The loved and lost, our glorious dead.

Toil and sorrow come with age, Manhood's rightful heritage, Toil shall only make us stronger, Sorrow make our hearts bear longer All the sufferings of time; Honor lays a wreath sublime,— Deathless glory,—where they bled, Our loved and lost, our glorious dead.

Wilder the prairie grasses wave O'er each hero's new-made grave, Time shall write such wrinkles o'er us. But the future spreads before us glorious in that sunset land; Nerving every heart and hand, Comes a brightness none can shed But the dead, the glorious dead.

Lay them where they fought and fell, Every heart shall ring their knell, For the lessons they have taught us, For the glory they have brought us; Tho' our hearts are sad and bowed, Nobleness still makes us proud, Proud of light their names shall shed In the roll-call of our dead.

Growing to full manhood now, With the care lines on our brow, We, the youngest of the nations, With no childish lamentations, Weep, as only strong men weep, For the noble hearts that sleep, Where the call of duty led, Where the lonely prairies spread, Where for us they fought and bled, Our loved, our lost, our glorious dead.

FREDERICK GEORGE SCOTT.

Montreal, 1885.

England's Victory.

There is little sense in all the talk to the effect that Russia has gained everything and England has yielded everything in the arrangement now proposed. What did England really want? Nothing but the establishment of a defined limit of Russian advances toward India. She insisted that the northern boundary of Afghanistan should be that limit. The dispute was as to where the line to be recognized as the boundary of Afghanistan should be drawn. On this point there were no early surveys to be appended to, nothing but opinion and opposite desire to base action upon. There was a strip of country varying from fifty to one hundred miles in width between the lines which were claimed. Commissioners were to be authorized to establish a line; England's commissioner was sent, but Russia did not send one. Meantime there was a battle and Russian soldiers advanced into the disputed territory and beyond it at one point.

Now it is agreed that representatives of the two governments meeting in London shall determine a boundary line, or line of demarcation, which is to be well defined by monuments. Is not this the precise thing which England desired, and which, up to this time, Russia has refused and avoided? Whether the line is where England claimed it should be, or where Russia claimed it ought to be, is of comparatively little importance. The essential thing was to get Russia to acknowledge a limit to her empire before it reached the borders of British India. This done she may not cross the limit unprovoked without appearing to all the world to be an aggressor and to menace England's possessions.

Therefore, Mr. Gladstone seems to us to have won the substantial object which England has long sought, hitherto unsuccessfully. That he has done it without war, by patience, tact and skillful diplomacy, is greatly to his credit. If he has yielded a portion of England's initial claim, that is a small matter compared with the cost and horrors of a great war, which, after all, might not have resulted in securing all he claimed. Besides this substantial victory, he has secured the hardly less substantial incidental advantages of establishing friendly relations with the Government and people of Afghanistan, and the right to keep a resident agent at Herat, which are almost equivalent to a protectorate over that country, and has brought Russia to submit to the great principle, itself the strongest possible security of peace, of arbitration as a means for settling international differences.

If Russia has secured a few miles, more or less of territory to which her right was disputed, what is that, compared with the great advantages by England? If the settlement proposed is consummated, England will have no just reason to be disappointed, but rather great reason for satisfaction and congratulation that her part in this business has been managed with so much wisdom and success, and that the prolonged period of wondering how far Russia could advance without provoking war, is ended. No long time will elapse, we venture to say, before the fierce politicians who are now clamorous for a war with Russia will be in the same plight as the mistaken patriots who, a few months ago, were fiercely demanding that Gordon should be avenged by the destruction of Khartoum. —Boston Advertiser.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites IS INCIPENT CONSUMPTION seems to possess remedial powers of great efficacy. It heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Makes pure blood and builds up and fortifies the system against further invasions by disease.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the Vigor is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHES writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGIS FAIRBAIN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scotland, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give away I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the Vigor, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.
