Parliament At A Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS Thursday May 29, 1958 The 10-day throne speech debate ended with speeches by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Opposition Leader Pearson. Mr. Pearson proposed that a fund for long-term loans at reasonable interest rates be set up to help financially-troubled municipalities. Mr. Diefenbaker said Liberal governments had given municipalities a "stone-cold rebuff"; his government had helped municipalities through tax concessions to provinces. The Progressive Conservatives defeated the combined Liberal-CCF opposition 167 to 37 on a CCF non-confidence motion calling for federal aid this session to municipalities.

The Assembly studied the reassuring letter de Gaulle sent to former president Vincent Auriol. Auriol had asked specifically for de Gaulle's attitude toward the military insurrectionists on Corsica and Algeria. De Gaulle's reply avoided specific answers, but said: "The beginning and developments (in Algeria) were accomplished in invoking my name without my ever having been at all mixed up in them. The situation being what it is, I propose to form, by legal roads, a government which I think could restore unity, re-establish discipline in the state, notably among the military, and promote the adoption by the country of a renovated constitution."

Furthermore, the active fishing and removal of oysters from these over crowded beds will tend to improve the quality of the oysters growing on these beds in future and provide additional marketable stock. The first phase of the rehabilitation plan was carried out during May and June 1957 when 1,500 barrels of oysters were fished from Summerside Harbour by Oystercrats Inc., Sonier Brothers and Fred L.D. Arsenault, for sale by tender to the Federal Department of Fisheries. 1,000 barrels of these oysters were transplanted in the Shipigan area of New Brunswick and 500 barrels in the Wallace-Malagash area of Nova Scotia.

The results of these transplants made in 1957 were so encouraging that in 1958 the Department of Fisheries plans to transplant 4,500 barrels to supply these 4,500 barrels will be called for early in 1958. The major portion of this 1958 transplant will go to the Miramichi area in New Brunswick.

P.E.I. Oyster Transplant Underway in N.B. Waters

OTTAWA CP — Transplanting of 1,000 barrels of Prince Edward Island oysters to New Brunswick waters is under way, Fisheries Minister MacLean said Wednesday. Mr. MacLean said the project, started May 1, is part of a program involving 4,300 barrels of oysters. He was replying in the Commons to Herve J. Michaud of Kent, N.B.

Last year, 100 barrels of oysters had been transferred from P.E.I. to New Brunswick's Kent County on an experimental basis. The transplanting, made necessary by contaminated or diseased oysters in New Brunswick beds, had proved successful. The Federal Department of Fisheries is presently engaged in transferring 4,300 barrels of disease-free oysters from Summerside Harbour to oyster disease-depleted beds in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The oysters are being bought by tender and fishermen receive $3 a barrel for them.

The epidemic oyster disease now active in the waters of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick is considered to be the same disease that devastated the Prince Edward Island oyster fishery from 1915 to 1940. Oyster stocks now growing in Prince Edward Island waters have developed a resistance to this disease. It should be emphasized that the disease is definitely not injurious to humans.

In January of 1957 Mr. George R. Clark, Deputy Minister of Fisheries, announced that a plan for the rehabilitation of the depleted oyster fishing grounds of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick with P. E. Island disease-resistant oysters had been put into effect. Years of research by Fisheries Biologists and experience gained during the 1915 to 1940 epidemic of the disease in P. E. Island waters had shown that if an area depleted by this disease was left to itself it would require at least 15 years to rehabilitate whereas if planting of disease-resistant oysters were made to such an area the rehabilitation period could be cut approximately in half. Based on this devise the rehabilitation plan now being carried out by the Federal Department of Fisheries will transplant 10,000 barrels of disease resistant oysters from Prince Edward Island to the depleted areas of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia over a period of three years. The shape of the disease-resistant oysters to be transplanted is immaterial. They are required only as breeding stock and their progeny will acquire the usual marketable shape of the area to which they are planted. THE POORER TYPE

Thus only oysters of too poor a quality for market are being used for the transplant. There is an abundant supply of these poor quality oysters growing in P. E. Island waters. They grow in such crowded conditions on soft bottom that their market value has been destroyed. The purchase of these oysters by tender by the Federal Department of Fisheries thus provides oyster fishermen with an additional source of income.

Furthermore, the active fishing and removal of oysters from these over crowded beds will tend to improve the quality of the oysters growing on these beds in future and provide additional marketable stock. The first phase of the rehabilitation plan was carried out during May and June 1957 when 1,500 barrels of oysters were fished from Summerside Harbour by Oystercrats Inc., Sonier Brothers and Fred L.D. Borden Made Fine Showing At The Musical Festival

On Saturday morning May 10th, shortly after 8 A.M., a motored of 21 cars carrying 44 children and their 6 teachers, together with several parents and other interested folks left Borden to attend the Musical Festival in Summerside. All during the fall and winter months the pupils under the supervision of the music teacher, Mrs. Phyllis Newman, worked hard to prepare the 10 musical entries. But their efforts were well rewarded as they captured 2 first placings, 2 second placings and 2 third placings with 6 choruses. The other 4 entries were "Rhythmic Band" selections, 2 Junior entries and 2 Senior entries.

Mr. George Smale made special mention of the fine spirit of these boys and girls and their teachers in participating in this very important part of a child's musical training. "The Glow Worm" an original instrumental was played very well by Grades 8, 9, and 10 and was highly commented on by Mr. Smale.

A three part chorus "Shepherds O' Say" by Senior grades also received great praise from the adjudicator. "It is fine to see those older boys singing a part", stated Mr. Smale. A chorus consisting of approximately 50 pupils from Grades 3 to 10 placed first with the very good mark of 85.

The music teacher states that her work was greatly aided by the teachers who at all times co-operated fully with her. The teachers are very grateful to all the people who made their cars available not only for that day but for the evening the first prize entries performed again at the "Stars of the Festival" concert. Mrs. Irene Easton and Mrs. Annie Bryant are principal and vice-principal of the school. Miss Myrna Green, Mrs. Kay Dorsey, Miss Vilma Cousins, and Miss Patsy Hammill make up the remainder of the teaching staff.
