

Mr. Justice Saunders Denounces Misspending Of Relief

In Addressing King's County Grand Jury He Analyses the Unemployment Situation and Asserts 40 Per Cent of the Money Goes to Those in Reasonably Good Financial Condition. Outlines Proposal to Take Relief Out of Hands of Provincial Politicians.

In the course of his address to the Grand Jury at Georgetown yesterday, Mr. Justice Saunders made an important suggestion re unemployment in Prince Edward Island.

For many years I have been in close and constant touch with our people in all parts of the Province. I naturally should be in a position to describe conditions here as they actually exist.

We have a population of about 88,000 people. The City of Charlottetown has a population of a little over 12,000, and the Town of Summerside about 4,200. The villages of Tignish, Alberton, O'Leary, Kensington, Montague, Georgetown, and Souris have a combined population around 4,000 and upwards.

We have no manufacturing industries save and except Bruce Stewart & Company, Ltd., who manufacture Marine Engines, etc. The Hall Manufacturing Company who manufacture threshing machines, etc., a canning factory, biscuit factory and some three or four lumber and flour mills, Schurmanns and Duchemin's sash and door factories.

About eighty per cent of our people are engaged in agriculture, about two per cent solely engaged in fishing, with another three per cent who fish and farm and as a rule do not make a success of either.

We have in the City of Charlottetown, and the town of Summerside, and the villages mentioned, some very fine stores employing a fairly large number of clerks. These employees in the factories and stores I have mentioned seldom vary in number, that is they are as many so employed today as in 1928 or 1929. We have not and never did have any residents who lost their jobs.

Farmers Drift Cityward

It goes without saying we have the same number of farms as we always had, and the same sea for fishing purposes. How does it happen then we have more unemployed today than we had in 1929? I think the answer is simple. When the Government started giving relief, we had many farmers who were unable to make ends meet on their farms; men whose farms were mortgaged for more than they were worth, and with many unpaid store bills. How were these men under such circumstances going to support their wives, children and themselves? They took the road of easy approach, and came to Charlottetown and Summerside where they hoped to get some work and at least feel sure of Government relief. The result indicates this very conclusively because the population of these two places has increased by about five or six hundred each during the past three or four years. If these men with their wives and families are sent back to their farms, the unemployment situation in this Province should be fairly well solved. We would then at least have conditions in this Province exactly similar to what they were in the prosperous years of 1928 and 1929.

"Soap Box Orators"

I realize, however, that during these happy years, we had a number of poor and indigent persons—every province, every country has, and always had their poor the same as they have their blind, halt and infirm. But charitable societies and the churches to which these unfortunate belonged looked after their welfare. That day seems to have passed. A new order of things now prevails. Relief and more relief. I fear this cry for assistance is so great that it will be next to impossible for any Government to discontinue. I do not wish to cast any reflections on our labouring men, the great majority are worthy men of our best consideration. It is only too true, however, there are too many today who would not work if work was provided. They are obsessed with the idea that the world owes them a living. They are now the soap box orators who make the most noise if the Government fails to find employment for them.

I see only too clearly that all politicians will continue to give in to their cry for relief. Such being the case, the return to the farm of those who came to Charlottetown and Summerside will not completely solve the problem. It will, however, go a very long way in that direction, and I am hopeful that by degrees we will get back to normalcy.

Government Urged to Exercise Care

It is evident then that some form of employment, and some relief must be continued even if the Government in the wisdom agrees that it is best to place the farmers now in our towns back on their farms. I am unalterably opposed to any system of dole. If a man is physically unfit, or too old or infirm to work, he naturally should receive relief. But giving relief to any strong vigorous person is only encouraging idleness and idleness. It is bad for the State and for the man himself. Make every man work. There is much any man can do, and he should be made to do, and thereby be of some benefit to the Federal, Provincial or Municipal Government.

There is always plenty of work to do, even if one has to break stones, saw wood or lumber, or dig ditches along the road side.

But let the greatest care should be exercised in their selection of men to be employed for any work furnished by the Government. It is only too well known that in the past many men of independent means have been given employment on relief projects to the great injury of those in actual need.

I am not blaming or finding fault with one party more than another. All parties unfortunately have their benchmen, who insist on getting some of the Government spoils—those who must be satisfied for what they regard as services rendered. I know men myself who were working on relief projects and the same time having savings accounts in our banks. I have seen men on relief' time and again attending hockey matches, movie shows, and other places of amusement.

40% Misspent

We know politicians, whether Federal, Provincial, or Municipal men are in a very unenviable position when pressed by those vamps who are constantly demanding to be given a share of the relief work. They regard a refusal as very often meaning a loss of a vote at some future election. Very often too these very men get the major share of this relief work to the great loss and injury to the poor and needy. These things simply cannot and must not be continued. If they are left as they are in the hands of the local and municipal Governments, this condition is positively bound to prevail. I am sure I am speaking conservatively when I say that as a result of this unfair and unsatisfactory method forty per cent of the money intended for the unemployed, goes to those in reasonably good financial condition.

Ottawa Administration

Relief and work for the unemployed should be administered entirely from Ottawa.

My suggestion is that in Charlottetown and Summerside a representative from each church should be an investigating committee. They should find out in their respective churches those deserving of help and assistance. If there are those outside the church, these too could easily be ascertained in a small place like this Province. This committee could make a very careful canvass—approaching the matter of their inquiry from every angle. They could then make up a list, giving the name and address of each person they considered entitled to relief or employment; with such additional information as they might consider necessary. This list could then be turned over to the Board of Review under the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act for them to inquire in a judicial way into the merits of each man so recommended by the committee. The Board of Review could institute a thorough and complete inquiry. The said Act is to be amended to give them full power to take evidence, examine all documents and records. This Board could then adopt a regular system of questions to be answered fully by each applicant. The Board could find out if the applicant is married or single—if married, how many children, his physical condition, age of himself and family; how many a family dependent on him, the age of each dependent, the address and occupation of those members of the family at work. If the applicant is out of work employed; the difficulty since last work he has been engaged in, the period of time at each, the cause of change of occupation following the changes of work from the beginning up to date etc. A full and complete detailed statement of everything the Board deemed necessary. A stenographer would take down the entire evidence. This would then be transcribed and filed on record in this Province and also in Ottawa.

Board of Review to Function

The Board would then send in its report in each individual case, either allowing or disallowing the applicant's claim.

If need be, an appeal could be made to the Minister of Finance. The record would be available for him to inspect, or for that matter, for any other person, and his decision would be final. No mistake regarding a deserving person could possibly happen. The record is there to open for itself, and naturally, this would end any waste of relief money. The Government would no longer be working in the dark, but would know exactly where the money was going.

This would not mean more than thirty days' work for the Board of Review and they would be glad to contribute their services free of charge. The other Provinces would be divided into districts and the same system adopted.

I am reasonably sure if we placed these men who left their farms back on the land, our employment problem would soon be at an end. It would then be a matter of dealing with those who never did have any occupation. Slowly but surely these could easily be made self-supporting to a degree equal to conditions existing in 1928 and 1929.

What It Would Mean

What would it mean to the Government to place our farmers back on their farms? If the Government purchased 250 fifty acre farms and put stock and farm implements on each farm, and gave the farmer easy terms to repay, I repeat I believe our difficulties here would be over.

And what I say in regard to this Province could be accomplished in a more limited degree in every other Province in Canada. I know there are many men in the large cities who are not farmers, never having worked on a farm, who are unemployed. It would be useless to give farms to such men. Other schemes of active employment could be adapted or these. If the Government adapts the housing scheme, and builds highways without using too much machinery, simply using manual labour, I am reasonably sure conditions should be equal to the years 1928 and 1929. It would simply mean limiting the employment of road machines. This could easily be arranged by experts. However, my chief comments or suggestions are designed to remedy the troubles we are experiencing in this Province.

You can at once see, if any complaints were made to the Government regarding any person who was an applicant for relief or employment, the complete history of his case is at all times available. Again, if any criticism is made regarding any person receiving assistance his record is immediately available and the criticism can be intelligently and satisfactorily answered.

Initial Outlay

I realize carrying any suggestions into effect means considerable outlay in the first instance, but would unquestionably be money saved if we are to continue spending money in the future in the same way as we have been doing in the past.

I am satisfied the average fifty acre farm here in this Province can be purchased for $1,200. You have some idea of values of farm stock in my previous recommendation sent to you for the benefit of needy farmers. My further suggestion is to amend the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act and make it apply to farmers who are returned to the land. The Board of Review could then make in their proposals every reasonable safeguard to protect the Government so that if a farmer failed to carry out the provisions of the proposal the Government could repossess the live stock and farm implements.

It might possibly be unfair to ask Commissioners of the respective Boards of Review to act gratuitously as suggested, but I see no reason why a Judge who already receives a reasonable salary should not be asked to serve without cost to the Government. And I think a Judge alone could make all necessary inquiries without asking the other members of the Board of Review to assist him. There is no doubt, however, a Board of Review who has had so much experience in dealing with such matters would be of great assistance in making proper recommendations.

For this Province we should have:

250 farms @ $1,200 each $300,000

500 horses @ $180 each 90,000

500 cows @ $30 each 15,000

250 hogs @ $5 each 1,250

750 sheep @ $5 each 3,750

The necessary farm implements, harness or traps, waggon, etc., in the value of $300 each 75,000

$480,000

The farms and live stock and farm implements &c. are all provided by the Government until paid for by the farmer.

DEADLY RATTLE FOUND IN CARGO

GLASGOW, July 19 (CP)—When the steamer Gibraltar, with a cargo of scrap metal, was being unloaded here, an unusual rattle from the heap of a scrap was heard above the noise. A startled workman leaped back as a five-foot rattlesnake emerged.

The docker was about to handle a pile of scrap when he heard the rattle and saw the snake wriggle back with a hiss and come out about a foot from him. It then disappeared into a tube.

Reception Tendered Mrs. Arthur Henry

On Friday evening, July 10, the members of the Mt. Herbert Dramatic Club, and their coach Mrs. Arthur Henry, were very delightfully entertained at the Protestant Orphanage by Miss E. A. Beer. Special intercourse was followed by a dainty repast, served in Miss Beer's intimate style.

Mr. Russell Driscoll, the President, then called the meeting to order. In a brief but pleasing speech he paid tribute to all who had made "The Irish Millionaire" such a success. Miss Beer, who loaned the assembly hall for practice, Mrs. Henry who so skillfully coached the players, the cast, for so generously sacrificing other pleasures in the interests of the play, and last but not least those who so kindly gave the specialties.

He made special mention of the leading gentleman, Mr. Austin Coady, complimenting him on his wonderful co-operation he had given. Mr. Coady fittingly replied, Mr. Driscoll also read letters received from the following: Miss Beer, acknowledging $40 received; Sister M. Faustina, superintendent of St. Vincent's Orphanage, Charlottetown, acknowledging $10; Mrs. Harry Wood, secretary Mt. Herbert Dramatic Club; and from the Mt. Herbert Women's Institute acknowledging $5.

He then explained the chief aim of the gathering, which was to do special honor to Mrs. Henry, and called upon Miss Helen Driscoll, who read an address, and Mr. Spurgeon Jenkins, who presented Mrs. Henry with a purse. Mrs. Henry replied in her usual gracious manner, expressing her thanks for the gift and complimentary address. The assured the cast that it was a pleasure for her to be with them in the past, and she would look forward to being with them again.

After all had joined in singing "Should Auld Acquaintance be Forgotten," the meeting dispersed. Following is the address: Mrs. Arthur Henry, Charlottetown: Dear Mrs. Henry:—It is with feelings of pleasure mingled with regret that we, the Mt. Herbert Dramatic Club of 1936, have assembled here tonight. We are pleased to have you once more amongst us, but we cannot but regret that, after tonight, we, as a Dramatic Club, and you as our coach, no longer retain those pleasant relations. We have passed through a strenuous time, and we fully realize, dear Mrs. Henry, that but for your hearty co-operation, very capable assistance and splendid encouragement, we would not have realized the success that we feel we have achieved.

We know that it has cost you a very great effort to share your valuable time with us—by your deep appreciation of dramatics, your excellent ability as instructor, and your sincere desire to be of every assistance in the work for which you are so aptly fitted—has made you overcome difficulties which otherwise would have been insurmountable, and you consented to add to your already numerous duties, that of our coach.

We feel that we have learned that which will be of real value to us in our personal lives. When we accepted a part in "The Irish Millionaire" we assumed rather a grave responsibility, realizing that success depended not on certain ones, but on each and every actor. We have tried to master the correct expression of our lines, and have learned that it is not always what one says that counts, but rather, how it is said. And from another standpoint, we have derived real pleasure from social contact with each other, and a better feeling of fellowship now exists amongst us. Words fail to express what we so deeply feel towards you, but yet do we say with all our hearts, "We thank you for all you have done for us."

As an outward token of our appreciation, affection and good will we ask you to please accept this small token. Again, Mrs. Henry, we wish to assure you that wherever we go, we shall carry with us pleasant memories of our association with you. The Mt. Herbert Dramatic Club of 1936.

Visual Art Aids Hard of Hearing

BOSTON, July 21 (CP)—Lecturer-clip reader in the Metropolitan Museum of Art is the title of Mrs. Jane Walker. She addressed delegates to the recent conference of the American Society for the Hard of Hearing. Lacking one of the greatest avenues for aesthetic pleasure, they should turn to the forms of art that appeal to the sense of sight.

Those with impaired hearing are deprived of music, lectures, and theatres, but they still have that visual art, which they may share with the hearing world, and on the same footing. Miss Walker became interested in art appreciation when she was at boarding school in the middle west.

With the gradual loss of her hearing, Miss Walker took up the study of lip reading. Since 1915, she has been combining lip reading and art with audible results. Her first lecture to lip readers was about Emerson's poetry. It was given at a New York school, the principal of which suggested a course in art for advanced pupils. The deafened love to use their eyes, Miss Walker discloses. She does not believe in merely reading off a lecture bristling with dates, but gives them facts about the subject and shows objects to illustrate it.

American art is of great interest to her listeners. She has found the new wing of the Metropolitan, with its early American interiors, of great value in explaining the growth of taste among our ancestors.
