

CHURCHES TOMORROW

CHURCH of ENGLAND

S. PETER'S CATHEDRAL
Anglican
Rochford Square
Reverend Canon G. E. Moffatt
M.A., B.D.
Rector
The Reverend W. G. Hogg
Honorary Assistant Priest
Organist and Choir Director
Miss Suzanne Brenton, Lic. Music.

First Sunday in Lent

7.30 a.m.—Matins
8.00 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
9.00 a.m.—Church School
10.00 a.m.—Choral Eucharist
11.00 a.m.—Evensong.

S. PAUL'S ANGLICAN CHURCH

The Parish Church
Established 1769 by Royal Foundation.

The Reverend Canon J. T. Ibbott
Rector
Organist and Choir Master: Paul Cudmore.

First Sunday in Lent.

8.30 a.m.—Holy Communion.
10.00 a.m.—Sunday School.
11.00 a.m.—Morning Prayer and Sermon.
8.00 p.m.—Evensong.

PRESBYTERIAN

THE KIRK OF S. JAMES
The Reverend T. H. B. Somers
M.A., S.T.M.
Minister.
Miss E. Lillian McKennie
Mus. B., F.M.C.M.
Organist and Director of the Choirs.

8 a.m.—Church School
10 a.m.—Divine Service and Sermon: "Managing Personal Antagonisms."
Anthem: "Seek Ye the Lord" (Roberts).
11 a.m.—Quiet Vespers and Meditation: "We Journey to the Homes of the Prophets—II. With Amos at Tekoah and Micah at Maresha."
Hymn: "Youth of the World, Arise" (Naylor).
Anthem: "A Child's Prayer to the Shepherd" (France)—Girls and Boys' Choirs.

Visitors Cordially Welcome.

ZION PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Prince and Grafton Streets
Rev. G. Carlyle Webster,
Minister
Organist and Choir Director
Mr. Frank Johnston, A.T.C.L.

MORNING WORSHIP
11.00 a.m. Theme: "Which Way Shall I Take?"
The Guides and Brownies, Scouts and Cubs of the Congregation will attend the morning service.
Anthem: "Thou Will Keep Him in Perfect Peace" (Willis /)
11.30 p.m.—The Church School—Your attendance is appreciated.

EVENING WORSHIP
7.00 p.m.—Theme: "Morning and Evening."
Anthem: "As When At Evening" (Roberson).
"Return unto the Lord, and forsake thy sins; and He will lead thee out of darkness into the light of health."
You are cordially invited to worship with us.

GOSPEL HALL
Upper Prince Street

Order of meetings for Lord's Day
Sunday School 10.00 A.M.
Breaking of Bread 11.00 A.M.
Gospel Meeting 7.30 P.M.
"The Coming of the Lord Draweth Nigh" (James 5-8)

DENY NOT CHRIST
Will be the subject of a talk by
MISS ELLEN LEE SIMMS followed by discussion at
THE QUEEN HOTEL
FEB. 22 - - - 8:15 P.M.
BAHA'I WORLD FAITH
All Welcome No Collection

THE BIBLE SOCIETY
specializes in the printing and the translating of the Bible.
"THE PEACE OF THE WORLD
THE PROSPERITY OF NATIONS
THE SAFETY OF MANKIND"
depend on men and women living their lives in harmony with the Bible. It is a Book that confronts the people of the world with God, and calls upon nations of the world to do justice to one another. It confronts mankind with God, and the special values of life, on which the world depends.
Remember by your prayers and support the British and Foreign Bible Society through the Prince Edward Island Auxiliary, with its Bible House at 100 Fitzroy Street, Charlottetown.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND HOSPITAL ANNUAL MEETING
Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the Act of Incorporation a public meeting of all contributors to the Prince Edward Island Hospital will be held in the class room, new nurses' residence, Charlottetown on Thursday, February 26th, 1953, at 8 P. M. for the purpose of electing trustees for the government of the institution in accordance with the by-laws and for the transaction of such other business as may be brought before it.
J. ANDREW LIKELY,
Secretary, Board of Trustees.

CENTRAL GUARDIAN

This column is reserved for news of local interest, but advertising of a newsy nature may be inserted at five cents a word, strictly payable in advance.

JIMMY'S TAXI—Phone 528.
COOK'S for Perfect Pictures.
"WE TREAT THE SICK WELL."
Gigey's Pharmacy.

KEROSENE Refrigerators in stock. Bryenton and MacKay.
GRASWELL for Better Photographs.

BELANGER RANGES for coal, wood or oil. Bryenton & MacKay.
LEHIGH HARD COAL is always the best. Arnfast Coal Co.

TICKETS available at the door for Trinity Bean Supper tonight.
MILK FOR HEALTH—Milk for Beauty. Milk for Strength.

"YOUR DOLLAR BUYS MORE" at the HUGHES DRUG STORE.
GUIDE-BROWNIE RALLY—Community Centre, Monday, February 23rd, 6.30 P. M. Parents and friends invited.

CAKE SALE—Moore & McLeod's this afternoon, 3 o'clock. Group one Trinity Junior W. A.

ICE CREAM by the cone, by the brick or in a sealer is the answer for good eating.
DONUTS are good food. Everybody likes them. Get some at Stewart Bakeries today.

MACDONALD RADIO SERVICE Radio repairing. Amplifiers and sound systems. Disc and tape recording. 180 Kent St. Phone 1207

SACRED CONCERT Central Christian Church, Sunday, February 22nd, 8.30. In aid of Victims of European Flood Disaster.

BEAN SUPPER, Pie and Ice Cream, Central Christian School Room today, 4.30-6.30. Admission 60 cents.

STEWART'S home style breads are now enriched at no extra cost. Don't delay starting your family on this improved white bread.

HEAR DR. R. C. WALLACE deliver the Samuel Robertson Memorial Lecture on "Education for Living" at Prince of Wales College, Thursday, February 26th, at 8.30. Public cordially invited.

GINGER SNOW CAKE—A delicious ginger cake, frosted with apple sauce icing, something different. Special today at Stewart Bakeries.

CORRECTION—In the "In Memoriam of the late Mrs. Edward MacEwen it was incorrectly stated that the funeral service was conducted by the Rev. W. I. Green and the Rev. C. D. Matheson. The service was conducted by the Rev. G. Gough, who was assisted by the Rev. W. I. Green and the Rev. C. D. Matheson.

Card Of Thanks

I wish to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to Dr. MacKenzie, Dr. Murchison, Hunter River Nurses and staff of the Prince Edward Island Hospital for their kindness to me while a patient there. Also the many friends who visited me and those who sent cards, letters and treats.
Signed
Mrs. Louis H. MacPherson.

Thanks

I wish to extend my thanks and appreciation to the Doctors and Nurses of the P. E. Island Hospital, Adj. Titcombe of the Salvation Army, the Management and Employees of Bruce Stewart Co., and to all you dear friends for your numerous acts of kindness, visits, letters, cards, treats, gifts and money while I was in the P. E. Island Hospital and later during my recuperation at home.
Neil S. MacDougall.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Joseph Walsh, Souris, who passed away February 21st, 1952.
God knows how much I miss him, Never will his memory fade, Loving thoughts will always wander To the spot where he is laid.
Remembered by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dunphy.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Joseph Walsh, Souris, who passed away February 21st, 1952.
They say time heals all sorrow And helps us to forget, But time so far has only proved, How much we miss you yet.
God gave us strength to fight it, And courage to bear the blow, But what it meant to lose you, No one will ever know.
Lovingly Remembered by His Wife Agnes and Vivian.

Have Your Clothes
DRY CLEANED PRESSED ONLY
at
RITE-WAY
CLEANERS
Phone 2387

Thoughts For Our Time

By His Eminence Cardinal McGuigan
(Copyright)
THE VIRTUE OF SELF-DENIAL

If today we were to present a drama of the type popular in the Middle Ages, in which morality was personified, some virtues would be easily recognized and understood, but others would appear very strange, indeed. Justice, for example, would be quite at home, and Honesty would be appreciated, even if not always accepted. But Penance, I am afraid, would have a hard time with a modern audience to make himself understood.

Penance? It is a word which is shunned as offensive, and ignored as very much out of date. But the words of Our Blessed Lord could not be clearer: "Unless you do penance you shall all likewise perish." It would seem to be necessary for salvation. It would seem, further, to be the particular duty of everyone. Everyone, after all, is a son of Adam, and who of us can stand and say, "I am guilty of no sin?"

One has only to open a magazine to realize how foreign is the idea of penance. The advertising on every page is the luring, attractive fruit of hours of careful artistry. And all the ads have the same message: "Be comfortable!" Wouldn't it be strange to turn a page and find an advertisement in full color demonstrating the advantages of penance, and showing the absolute necessity of possessing this commodity in a generous portion? We will not lose our soul if we do not have the latest car; we might lose it if we refuse to do penance.

In penance, as is all He told us to do, Christ first gave the example Himself. What need had He to fast for 40 days in the desert? The God of all, how could He have offended, or been guilty of sin? Yet He went to some length to teach us the lesson of penance. It must be important.

Why? Why should we deny ourselves the good things of the world? Why should we make ourselves suffer? We cannot say that anything God has created is bad in itself, or that pain of any kind is good in itself. For everything that is, is good, and pain is the result of sin. But within us, the creatures who crown creation, there is the serpentine power to use proportion and order in our relationship with things and people. It is to steady and control the power to abuse, that we restrict even legitimate use. Penance is like the governor on a motor; it prevents it from going too fast and burning itself out.

Take, for example, the use of liquor. There is a phrase in the Psalms "God gave wine to delight the heart of man." But can you single out another of God's gifts to men which is more universally abused than strong drink? Some citizens as he walks down a busy street. The chances of seeing someone drunk are too good. The average family in Ontario spends $199 a year for beer and liquor. Is this the proper use of intoxicants? Does this not cry for some to abstain? Should not everyone be more temperate, do some penance in this regard lest we become a nation unrestrained, a people lacking will, a country forgetful of God and His laws?

Paradox though it may seem, we learn the proper use of things by depriving ourselves of them. Food always tastes better, and is better for us, when we are hungry. But we are not hungry all day; nor do we eat all day. We practise a certain natural penance when we say "I will not eat this; it will spoil my dinner." So with the athlete. He denies himself rigidly, even painfully, so that he may, play the game as well as possible. Women undergo many hardships to preserve beauty. Are there none to be found who will do penance to gain the Kingdom of Heaven.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Lenten Meditation

From The Columns of The Times, London
EASTER

To a greater extent than other Christian festivals, Easter, a central event in the Christian calendar, emphasizes the differences between professing Christians and the rest of the community. The challenge which it presents is inescapable, for Good Friday and Easter contain in their barest and most startling form the essence of the Christian religion.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

In his recently published book, "In an Age of Revolution," the Archbishop of York has analysed the relationship between Christianity and other systems of belief that now compete with it. What emerges most clearly from the book is the intense realism of the Christian approach to politics. Alone among the great intellectual forces of the day it recognizes the imperfection of man and refuses to put unlimited confidence in any form of human contrivance. It offered to be God, or it was the political scepticism founded on religious faith.

Christians and non-Christians alike are more conscious than they used to be that there are only two possible views of the crucifixion. Either it was the bitter end of the career of a Man who falsely pretended to be God, or it was the decisive event of human history. Christianity is far more than the foundation of European civilization, but it is as this that the historian and the politician must consider it.

The Salvation Army

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I.
BRIGADIER and MRS. C. KNAAP
(Divisional Commander for N.B. and P.E.I.)
To Conduct
67th ANNIVERSARY SERVICES
February 21st-23rd

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every Need"

Tonight at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting
Tonight at 9:00 p.m.—Public Reception and Birthday cake ceremony.
Sunday—see church page for services
Monday at 8:00 p.m.—Public Meeting.
"Christ Is The Answer To Every