Warning Against Used Bags For Potatoes

Wellington and Vicinity

The following warning to potato growers has been issued by the Provincial Department of Agriculture:—
The practice of gathering potatoes with used bags is a very dangerous practise. These bags, irrespective of what they may have been used for previously, may carry diseases which constitute a serious menace to the potato industry. Bags are collected by those who are engaged in this form of business over very wide areas. They may come from centers where Ring Rot is abundant, or many other serious diseases.

A boat of a foreign nation, loading at Charlottetown about a year ago, carried thousands of used bags which were to be disposed of in this area. This disposal was promptly checked and prevented. One could not tell where they were gathered—possibly some from Europe, or from other disease infected areas. If these bags had been distributed there was a serious danger of outbreaks of disease in our potato industry. Montreal is a particularly fruitful center for the accumulation of used bags. Many of them are employed in the feed industry, but one cannot tell just what they may have been used for previous to the carrying of feeds.

Incurring Grave Risk
In any event farm people are warned that they are playing with fire when they are taking bags that come in from outside this Province, which have been utilized for other purposes, and using them for the handling of their potato crop. We have experience in this Province already with outbreaks of Ring Rot which could be directly traced to used bags. An outbreak of Ring Rot means a heavy loss to the potato producer; the necessity of indemnification if there is money to indemnify; and a lot of hard, careful, detailed work and cost in the eradication of the disease. At the present time there is a statutory law which prevents the importation into Prince Edward Island of used potato and turnip bags. A few of these have filtered through, but this year, but this year, they are taking them in have been duly prosecuted and proper penalties applied. Used bags for other purposes are not under these stringent regulations, but nevertheless should not be used indiscriminately unless they are under proper disinfection. Do not risk the health of the potato industry by the careless use of utensils in handling the crop.
