LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Dr. McGlynn's Position.

SIR,—The writer of "Varia" in THE EXAMINER of the 16th inst., has something to say in reference to the position of the Rev. Dr. McGlynn, and the views of Henry George. His remarks thereon are somewhat misleading.

With the exception of the remark, "Dr. McGlynn has been excommunicated and cut off from the church," which is proved by the fact of his excommunication; his other statements in reference to that affair, convey little more than his own impressions, and are little more than a set of bare assertions, which must simply go for what they are worth.

Would it be too much to ask the writer of "Varia" to let the readers of THE EXAMINER know the whole truth of the affair. It is certainly necessary that he should give some proof for his description of the character of Henry George's theory on the land for the people question. It might not be amiss either to give some proof for the assertion in reference to Dr. McGlynn, that "latterly his eloquence and his principles have greatly degenerated."

I am perfectly well aware of the language used in the letter of excommunication, as to the cause of Dr. McGlynn's cutting off; but there has been something more given as a reason, in previous letters by the same Archbishop of New York and by the ecclesiastic called Simeoni, the Italian Prefect of the Propaganda. "Varia" would be considerably improved by a recital of the whole facts. In a case of such importance, a partial, one-sided statement can only mislead, and is open to a charge of prejudice or ignorance, or both combined.

The whole paragraph beginning with the words "Dr. McGlynn" and ending with the word "excommunication," betrays more of the spirit of looseness or recklessness than of justice and truth. In fact, there is very little truth in it. Inasmuch as it has fallen short of the whole truth—in this case—it is misleading, and a writer who wishes to instruct the public upon a circumstance or question of such vital interest, and which has attracted almost world-wide attention, should deal in something better than loose generalities and curt assertions. I presume the readers of a respectable and influential journal would prefer a full, impartial statement to a declaration of personal opinion, and that opinion evidently clouded.

Meeting the writer of "Varia" on his own ground, I shall simply content myself for the present by using assertion in reference to some of his statements. However, this much I will say, that when he furnishes proof of the truth of said assertions, I shall be most happy to yield. My present opinion is, such proof cannot be given; but I await the sequel.

1st. I assert that the adoption of the views of Henry George by Dr. McGlynn are directly connected with the position in which the priest now finds himself.

2nd. While Henry George may be an "arch-agitator," endowed with as much sense and religion as some archbishops, his "panacea for all ills" is not, "that every man's land is to be taken from him without any compensation whatever."

3rd. The adoption of Henry George's theories, would strike a death blow at corner loafing and idleness, and advance the interests of true labor and honest work.

4th. The Henry George movement, as it is called, is not a "conspiracy to deprive people of their property;" it is rather in favor of everybody owning property, and Dr. McGlynn is not the only man of note who has joined in with Henry George. Some of the greatest minds of the age hold to the same views.

5th. That almost every successive day gives proof that neither the eloquence nor the principles of Dr. McGlynn have degenerated.

6th. That there is abundant proof of the fact that something more than the mere refusal of Dr. McGlynn to go to Rome, has been the cause of his excommunication; and that while Rome has given no ex-cathedra pronunciamento on Henry George's land theories, Dr. McGlynn at the same time has been asked to both deny the doctrines and withdraw the theories he had advanced.

For convenience sake I will classify "Varia" as an individual and simply add that the other individual who now writes, has met his assertion by assertion. He started the ball. If he chooses he can take the assertions in dispute, and let us have his proofs, and I am quite content to enter in the race. His "proofs" shall be examined, but mere assertions will not entrap men of mind and judgment. The readers of THE EXAMINER should be treated to sense, not nonsense.

The Australian Exhibition.

To celebrate the centenary of the founding of New South Wales, the Government of Victoria have determined to hold an Exhibition of arts, manufactures, agriculture and industrial processes, and products of all kinds, during the year 1888. This centennial exhibition is to open on August 1st, 1888, and to remain open for six months. Governments intending to take part are asked to forward an intimation to that effect by the 31st of August of this year, and applications for space are invited as early as possible. Should the government of any country decline to appoint a representative an intending exhibitor can communicate direct with the Secretary of the Exhibition Commissioners, whose name and address is George T. A. Lavater, Secretary Centennial International Exhibition 1888, Melbourne, Australia. No charge will be made for space, but the Commissioners reserve the power to reduce any space allotted. Notice of a requirement of space must be made not later than the 31st December, 1887, and applicants are requested to state whether their exhibits are of a kind requiring special space, and to give a description of their nature and bulk. Intending exhibitors can send their exhibits to correspondents in Malbourne or, as we have said, to the Secretary, with specific instructions as to their disposal.

Exhibits will be admitted free of duty, and the railways will transport them free of charge, but all other charges will be at the exhibitor's expense. The goods must remain in their places till the close of the Exhibition.

FROM John F. Wyman, formerly Postmaster, South China, Me.: "Too much cannot be said of Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, as it is the best remedy for coughs, colds, etc., that I have ever seen; and to its wonderful effects I owe my recovery. It is well worthy of praise, and I would advise all to use it who are afflicted." Trial bottles 10 cents.

Intensely Bitter Feeling

BETWEEN FRANCE AND GERMANY—WHAT RECENT VISITORS TO EUROPE HAVE TO SAY.

A Washington special to the Chicago News says: "People who have just returned from Europe, after sojourning in France and Germany, unite in saying that we cannot properly realize in this country the bitter feeling that exists between the people of those two countries, and which is exhibited in numerous ways in the affairs of every day life." A gentleman who is a close observer said: "At Vichy I saw a young Prussian officer hooted out of the town simply because he was a German. This pent-up bitter feeling must some day break out in a war such as civilization has never yet seen. Its beginning will find France united like one man. It needs but a very limited residence in Germany for one to see and recognize that to-day the Germans are far ahead of any nation in Europe in everything which relates to the art of war. The country seems to be thinking of nothing but its army, and thought is always that the army shall soon again find its way to France. When it does it will find different material to cope with from what it met at the last visit."

Talk About Bulgaria.

WHAT PRINCE FERDINAND AND KING MILAN SAY OF THE COUNTRY.

The Times correspondent at Vienna has had an interview with Prince Ferdinand, of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. The Prince said he had not decided whether he would go to St. Petersburg to personally request Russia's recognition of his election to the Bulgarian throne. He would not allow himself to be inticed into taking any course that would be likely to further estrange Russia and Bulgaria. He said he was disappointed that Prince Alexander of Battenburg had omitted to congratulate him on his election. King Milan, of Servia, in an interview with the same correspondent, expressed the belief that Russia would never sanction the occupancy of the Bulgarian throne by Prince Ferdinand. Alluding to the idea of a federation of Servia and Bulgaria under himself (King Milan,) he was willing to enter into such a project, but only under Turkey's protection.

Wolff's Folly.

A blue book has just been published, giving the particulars of the Egyptian mission of Sir H. D. Wolff and the text of the Egyptian convention. The despatches show that the Italian and Austrian representatives at Constantinople cordially assisted the British Commissioner throughout, and that Lord Salisbury thanked both governments for their friendly services. The French ambassador, it appears, protested that France could in no way take part in the negotiations. In Nelidoff, the ambassador informed the representative of Great Britain at an early stage of the negotiations that Russia's policy as regarded Egypt was to maintain the Sultan's sovereign rights and prevent their being infringed. He further said that Russia regarded the status quo with less disfavor than the convention scheme. Lord Salisbury in his despatches to the Sultan effusively thanked him for approving the convention, which he said, would powerfully uphold the integrity of the Turkish empire. The text of the convention agrees with the forecasts that have been made. Lord Rosebery speaking at a liberal banquet to-night declared that Sir H. D. Wolff had made England's name and honor a laughing stock in the back quarters of Constantinople.

Swept by the Flames.

Disastrous forest fires have been ravaging Cape Breton. A tract of at least one hundred square miles of country between Sydney and Cow Bay, has been completely devastated. It is said to be the worst fire known in the island. At one time the Reserve Mine was in great danger. It was entirely surrounded by roaring flames. Work was suspended in the pit, and for three or four days all hands were engaged fighting the fire fiend. What made the situation all the more serious was the fact that a water famine prevails at the Reserve. Every well, brook and stream in the place is dried up, and all water for steam purposes in the mine and for domestic purposes for 1000 people, is hauled by train from Black Brook, a distance of eight miles. This is an unprecedented state of affairs. Coal cars have been made water tight by oakum, etc., and converted into tanks, in which the water is conveyed from the brook to the mines, and distributed to the people in carts. In order to supply the demand, the train is kept running day and night. Unless a heavy rain fall soon takes place even more serious inconveniences than those already experienced, are predicted. The miners by hard work and strategy succeeded in preventing the forest fire from reaching the settlement, but were unable to prevent its continuing its devastating course.

A Good Augury for the Future.

One of the very best auguries of the future greatness of agriculture in Alberta is found in the large quantity of land that is broken this year for the purpose of seeding next season. All the way between Calgary and High River, a distance of nearly 40 miles, the traveller is hardly ever out of sight of the ploughman, busily engaged turning up the rich black soil everywhere to be found. The whole prairie is dotted over with stretches of ploughed land, and it is apparent that the acreage next year will be three or four times greater than that from which crops will be taken this year. The successful operations of the past four years have given the farmers the most thorough reliance on results.

MRS. SHEPHERD will be glad to meet Christians and others in the Athenæum Hall, Prince Street, on Monday evening, the 25th, at 8 o'clock, to speak to them on a matter of importance, connected with herself. All friends interested are cordially invited.
