Thoughts For Our Time

By His Eminence Cardinal McGuigan (Copyright)

NATION'S DESTINY The first thoughts that come to us, when the day comes around when each year we celebrate the founding of our modern Canadian nation, are feelings of the gratitude we owe to a provident God.

Edmund Burke, the great statesman of nearly two centuries ago from whom we have drawn much to enrich our own store of political wisdom, wrote that "history is the ordered march of the providence of God."

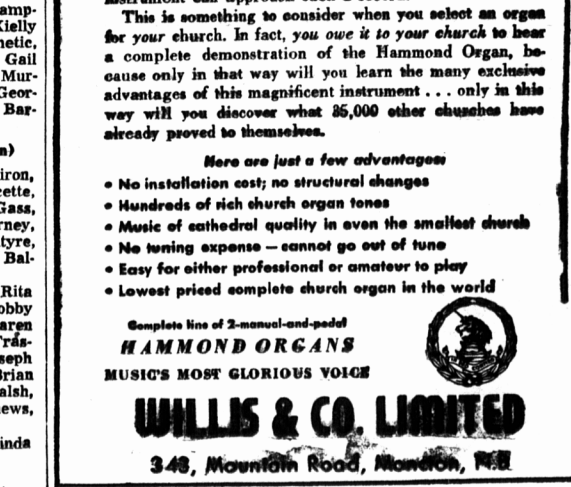

and Alan Doucette; Oral Reading, Heather Dignan and Joan Marie Gass; Art (drawing), David MacPherson and Bobby Stull; Writing, Linda Gauthier; Arithmetic, James Irving.

Each nation, willingly or not, the role which God's Providence assigns it, Rome unwittingly at first, and later unwillingly, prepared for the triumph of Christianity in the Western World, first by the system of Roman law, and later, by the series of persecutions which served only to strengthen and inspire the Christian Church.

In our own day we see nations consecrated to God's will, struggling.
