for Matthews Wells Co. plant in Charlottetown on Aug. 17th this year. This date is one day later than last year's first collection. The vines are growing well with comparatively small amount of seed missed at the time of planting; cut-worm damage was negligible, so the prospects of a good crop seem quite promising at present if the right weather conditions prevail.

Inquest Into Traffic Death Is Concluded

At the concluding hearing into the death of Mr. Edward MacEachern, New Glasgow, N. S., held at Belle River last evening, the coroner's jury found that Mr. MacEachern came to his death on July 30th, at Belle River, as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

The jury also found that no blame was attached to either driver, and recommended that proper highway markers should be placed at all such points to prevent future accidents.

The session last evening was a continuation of the adjourned hearing held August 2nd before Coroner Duncan J. Riley. Mr. J. F. Nicholson acted as crown prosecutor. The first witness was Cpl. Allen M. Johnston, R. C. M. P., Charlottetown detachment. Cpl. Johnston presented and explained photographs taken at the scene of the accident. He also stated that he was led to believe that neither vehicle had been moved prior to the taking of the photos.

Tells Of Accident

Mr. Hugh Fennell, New Glasgow, the next witness, stated that he had come to P. E. I. with the Messrs. MacEachern. The car, he said, was driven by Mr. James MacEachern, and that Mr. Edward MacEachern was sitting on the outside of the front seat, while he was seated in the middle. They arrived on the island about 5:30, and were proceeding towards Charlottetown via the detour. On the boat they had met a doctor in a Philadelphia car, and when leaving the boat had told him to follow them. On the way they passed two cars, the last one containing five girls. He said that he had no indication that they were approaching an intersection, and turned to speak to Mr. Edward MacEachern, when the accident occurred. They were travelling about 35 m. p. h., he stated. At no time did he see the other car until a moment before the collision. The car, he said, was under the complete control of the driver, and its brakes were in good condition. He remembered someone helping him out of the car through the roof, and then walked around for some time before being taken to a nearby farm house. The doctor, who had arrived immediately on the scene told him that Mr. MacEachern had been fatally injured. Mr. James MacEachern, he said, was lying under him in the car, and was also removed through the roof.

Mr. Warren Buchanan, Eldon, garage mechanic, stated that he had examined the Ford car, and that it was badly damaged. The rear wheel brakes were in good condition, but that there were no brake rods to the front wheel. However, he said, that on such a light car the rear wheel brakes would be sufficient to stop the car. Miss Jean Nicholson, Melrose, Mass., said that she had come to P. E. I. the day previous to the accident for her vacation. She had spent the night at relatives in Fowal, and on the day of the accident was driving to Wood Islands with Mr. Lloyd Murdoch. They were driving slowly and she was taking note of the surrounding country. They left Fowal in the afternoon. She said that she did not remember the intersection, and could not remember the other car. She could not remember seeing any signs indicating an intersection and remembered nothing of the accident. She said that she regained consciousness in the hospital.

Driver's Statement Mr. James MacEachern, the driver, gave the following statement. He said that his party had arrived at Wood Islands in the afternoon, and left for Charlottetown. He spoke of talking with the doctor from Philadelphia, who was to follow behind them. He said that he was not familiar with the roads in that section, and was driving about 35 to 40 miles per hour. He passed two cars on the detour road, the last containing five girls, and shortly after noticing a cluster of houses and thought that he was passing through a settlement. Since the road continued straight ahead, he intended to take this route, not realizing that he was approaching an intersection, since there were no signs indicating such. He slowed to 30 miles per hour passing through the settlement, and did not see the other car coming down the main road. His first indication was when one of the passengers shouted to him, and he then tried to turn the wheels to avoid the accident, but it was too late. He regained consciousness in the car, he again recovered, and was lying on the road. He was later taken to the hospital. He said that there were no signs present which might indicate the presence of an approaching intersection, and had intended to drive straight through on the highway.

TOO MUCH VITAMIN

VIENNA, Aug. 22—(Reuters)—Three children have died and 14 others are seriously ill following overdoses of a highly-concentrated vitamin D medicine, the Austrian Ministry of Social Affairs announced today. Only three drops of the medicine should be given daily the Ministry said, but "owing to misunderstanding and neglect," children in a lower Austria district were given spoonfuls every day.
