

Maximize Your Test Taking Ability!

I am conducting research at UPEI this semester to complete my honors thesis in Psychology. The title of my project is "Marching to the Beat of a different drum: Aboriginal Students speak out about challenges faced while attending university". I will be conducting interviews in February and am eager for your participation. If you identify yourself as Aboriginal (Inuit, Indian, or Métis) and are attending UPEI, I would like to interview you. The purpose of this research is to create a description of the stressors that are faced by self identifying Aboriginal students at UPEI, and to get an understanding of the means by which this stress is managed by these students. All participants will be entered in a draw to win a $50 gift certificate from the UPEI bookstore. If you are interested in participating or would like more information, please contact Julie Bull at 393-6049 or jbull@upei.ca

Aboriginal Research Participants Needed

Maximize Your Test Taking Ability! Are You Stressed? Do you find it difficult to recollect information though you've studied, and think you're well prepared. If you have answered "yes" to either or both questions, be pleased to know that we have a solution for you. You might be interested in attending a series of 3 workshops designed to address this need. The Department of Student Services is sponsoring these FREE workshops to be held on the following Mondays: February 27, March 6 & 13/06 from 7:00pm - 9:00pm in the Sports Centre Boardroom. To sign up contact: Patsy Myers at Student Services, 566-0488 or email: pmyers@upei.ca Space is limited. Sign up early!!

Research Plan Consultation

The Research Advisory Committee (RAC) has initiated a Research Plan Consultation to update and revise UPEI's existing Strategic Research Plan. As part of this consultation, the RAC will be holding two open meetings: Monday, February 20th 3:30-5:00 pm AVC lecture theatre "A" and Friday, February 24th 12:00-1:30 pm KCI room #104. The RAC invites Faculty, staff, and the greater campus community to participate in these important open meetings.

Centre For Christianity And Culture Free Lecture Series

Careful readers of best-selling author Anne Rice were not surprised when her Christ the Lord: Out of Egypt appeared in November 2005, along with a promise of more "Jesus" novels to follow. Her return to the Catholic Church in 1998 was well publicized in the popular press, but her vampires had by then already thought seriously about their religious options. This turn in Rice's writing provides a useful base for understanding the relationship between fiction and faith, "authorial intention," and some recent questions concerning the historical Jesus.

Dr. Erb will be familiar to many of you as visiting professor at the Centre for Christianity and Culture. A gifted teacher and scholar, he is the author of numerous books and articles on (among other things) literature, Christian mysticism, Pietism, and Anglo-Catholic thought. Everyone is Welcome, Admission is Free!

The Yearbook Grad Photo Deadline is May 11, 2006. We advise that you take these pictures with Heckburts, because they submit the photos to us. If not, then depending on the Photo Studio, you might have to submit them yourself. Please have these photos taken in advance to ensure that your photo is submitted by the deadline. Feel free to contact us at nexus@upeisu.com or 566-0708 with any questions.
