There were 16 Canadians aboard the Erria, and the rescued included Miss Marjorie Hazlewood of Victoria, and her aunt, Miss E. M. Powley of Winnipeg. Miss Hazlewood is a former Winnipeg resident. Miss Hazlewood said a courageous crew member saved her life and the lives of eight others. "We were awakened by a steward wearing a gas mask. He told us to follow him as quickly as possible."

Scott, whose husband is among the missing, has given up hope of seeing him alive again. She was brought ashore in a lifeboat, but there was no trace of Mr. Scott. "I don't think I shall see my husband again. I'm afraid he has burned to death."

The only passenger from East-ern Canada was James C. Watt of Toronto. He was taken ashore by a Coast Guard boat. The six other missing included three passengers and three crew members. The passengers are Mr. and Mrs. Holst Andersen and Mrs. Valborg Sorensen of Copenhagen, Denmark, who were on a round-trip voyage from their homeland. The ship, operated by the East Asiatic Lines, was under the command of Capt. M. Agge. The Coast Guard reported her a total loss.

FARM & FISHERY

compare in assisting the poorer class of farmers, as does the country exhibition.

Commercial Feeds

Today feeders of livestock are purchasing imported and commercial feed mixtures, mineral and protein formulas that can and should be mixed on the farm to supplement our home grown cereals, to the end that the farmer will benefit to the greatest possible extent from the investment of capital and labour. Through clever advertising and propaganda, commercial firms are making unwarranted profits off the producers. They are like vultures, ready to leap on their former prey whenever they see a new dollar that may be grasped from the farmers.

Some examples: They promote feed finance plans, mineral mixtures that are advertised as something like patent medicines in the store; yes, appealing packages of advertising will sell the mineral mixture composed chiefly of equal quantities of salt, ground limestone and bone meal, at magnificently enhanced prices. The farmer is led to believe he is purchasing a miracle food, when he could mix it at home on his farm at very small cost.

In this, the Department of Agriculture should place conveniently before farmers the necessary formulas as a guide to all livestock growers, giving the exact quantities of protein and mineral supplements necessary in various stages of growth for production in the various classes of livestock, and varying with age and weight to insure the correct nutritional balance in the essential food elements, namely carbohydrates, fats, proteins, mineral compounds and food accessories. Direction in this should be provided by the Agriculture Department through some medium of dissemination, which is their field to explore and advance.

Weed Control in the Province

Under weed control, the Department should make an attempt to eradicate all weeds. Encouragement has already been provided in this field in that the Department pays for one half of the cost of weed control deterrents purchased. The ragwort tansy weed is endangering a period of development unhampered, particularly on abandoned and neglected farms. This weed is not relished by tourists and others, who claim that it disseminates hay fever, coupled with its ugliness. It should be vigorously eradicated. This could possibly be effected by supplying the demonstration stations throughout the Province with the weed control deterrent and paying for the labour involved in spraying infested areas. It should be possible by this method to eradicate this weed pest entirely after a time.

In conclusion, may I say that I am presenting these suggestions to the Department of Agriculture and to farmers generally, casting no disparaging reflections, but only in the hope that I may have offered some suggestions which might lead us all to further progress and advancement, in the interests of all.

Calls Landing

a few yards from the Wilson home. One propeller was bent, the wings were dented and the undercarriage was twisted, but there was no other damage.

A foot of snow cushioned the shock of landing. With the passengers taken by bus to Trenton, 30 miles east, to await continuation of their flight, air line officials pondered the problem of getting the big plane out of the Wilson pasture. It will be towed to the R. C. A. P. station at Trenton for repairs.

Barely Misses Lake

In landing in the 50-acre Wilson pasture, the plane barely missed dropping into Lake Ontario, less than a half-mile to the south. Frank Staples, who lives across the road from the Wilsons, said the plane could hardly be heard as it dropped over his house and into the field.

One engine "conked out" as the C-45 was flying across Lake Ontario, Smelser said. Just as the second engine "conked out" the second engine failed just a few minutes earlier, the plane would have plunged into the lake.

"I never knew that land could look so good!" exclaimed one passenger, Leo J. Wilson of Plainfield, N. J., as he told of flying over "the ocean" with the aircraft rapidly losing height.

Long Wrangle

mas, moved that the house skip lunch and dinner periods and sit indefinitely tonight to clean up the sessional business.

The Prime Minister, St. Laurent, responded to a challenge from Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto-Eglinton), announced that he intends to apply "closure"—the rarely-invoked device for limiting debate—if the anti-price-fixing bill has not been disposed of by tomorrow night.

The Progressive Conservatives then moved an amendment which would have had the effect of nullifying the C.C.F.-Social Credit motion only to see the chamber reject it by a vote of 101 to 27.

The Progressive Conservatives introduced a second motion—described as a "compromise" offer—to the effect that the chamber extend today's sittings by two hours from the usual adjournment hour of 10 p. m. to midnight.

Threatens Closure

Mr. St. Laurent, in his surprise announcement, said he intends to give notice tomorrow, if the business has not been concluded, that the closure rule will be applied Thursday, Dec. 27—the date the house was to be asked to return anyway if the order paper was not cleared.

The announcement sent parliamentarians scurrying to the history books to find out when this drastic and rarely-used rule was last put into effect. They found it has been invoked only a handful of times since it was adopted in 1913. The last occasion was in 1932, when the former Conservative Prime Minister, R. B. Bennett, used it to ensure passage of contentious unemployment legislation.

If it is applied this time—and Mr. St. Laurent has asserted that it will be—it means that the debate on the price legislation must end by 2 a. m. Friday, Dec. 28. The rule operates this way: Once closure is in effect it limits speakers to one speech of 20 minutes each. Then, if the discussion has not ended by 2 a. m. the following day, all debate automatically ends and the issue is immediately put to the house.
