4 Whoopers Are Spotted

SUPERB, Sask. (CP)—A family of four whooping cranes—the rarest North American bird—has been sighted in this west-central Saskatchewan area.

Three Edmonton men hunting geese spotted what was believed to be four adult cranes in the area Monday, John Stark of Edmonton said Wednesday. The cranes flew off in a southerly direction.

R. H. Mackay, Western region operations supervisor at the Canadian Wildlife Service, said the birds likely were migrating from their northern nesting grounds to the Aransas wildlife refuge off the coast of Louisiana. The whoopers only known nesting ground is at Wood Buffalo Park on the Alberta-Northwest Territories border.

But many a silent tear is shed
While others are asleep.
Ever remembered by the family.

Smallwood Reveals Nfld. Gov't To Pour More Money Into Schools

By DAVE BUTLER

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Smallwood has announced the government will pour an additional $5,000,000 in 1966 into the education of elementary and vocational students and retarded children.

The premier told a meeting of schoolteachers here the program was the second half of an announcement he made last week at Memorial University of Newfoundland. He said then that all students at the university up to and including the fifth year would receive free tuition.

Mr. Smallwood said Monday that all children in Newfoundland will receive $15 a year to help finance their education. He said the money—at the rate of $1.50 per student per month—would be paid to the parent or guardian of children in elementary and secondary schools at the end of each school year.

Mr. Smallwood said the grant is needed to offset expenses parents face in the form of fees or taxes in different areas. He said there is no consistency throughout the province and payments have placed "a grevious burden" on the parents.

Newfoundland now has 150,000 school children in 56,000 families. The premier said the extra expense to the province under this part of the program would be $2,250,000.

HELP RETARDED

Mr. Smallwood said the provincial government would contribute an additional $230,000 a year toward the education of retarded children.

The amount the province spends on operation of schools for retarded would be increased to $40,000 from $10,000. In addition, $200,000 would be made available to churches for the setting up of classrooms for the retarded in existing schools.

Mr. Smallwood said every retarded student who had to move from his home to another centre for training would receive a bursary of $500.

The premier also announced substantial increases in the amount of money to be paid those attending the province's 12 vocational schools and the college of trade and technology here.

Students now at the school—including unemployed persons trying to improve their education, generally are paid $30 a month.

PAY MONTHLY SUM

Mr. Smallwood said this would be increased along a scale from $70 a month for an unmarried student who lives at home to $215 a month for a married, unemployed man who attends a vocational school not near his home.

Mr. Smallwood said this would bring the government assistance to vocational students in 1966 to $2,000,000, an increase of $1,300,000 from 1965.

In the same announcement, Mr. Smallwood said the amount granted to the churches each year to build new schools would be increased to $4,000,000 from $2,000,000 on the stipulation that the increase be applied especially to communities with special problems, such as serious overcrowding.

Mr. Smallwood said the total cost of the aid to university students and the program announced Monday would be more than $8,000,000 and said part of it would be paid by "uncle Ottawa"—the federal government.

NO TAX INCREASE

He said earlier there would be no new or increased taxes brought on by aid to education.

However, Mr. Smallwood said earlier anyone who had attended the study conference on Newfoundland here last month would have "an idea" where the money is to come from. There was speculation he was referring to a speech by Revenue Minister Benson which said certain monies would be remitted to the province under the Canada Pension Plan.

B.C. Pulp Co. Takes Steps To Minimize Labor Problem

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — A union, a pulp company and the British Columbia government have teamed up for a program aimed at minimizing the effects of a continued shortage of skilled labor in the province.

Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., which pioneered an apprenticeship program for employees in 1960 at its Castlegar, B.C., mill, has launched a similar effort at its Watson Island operation near here.

Company co-ordinator Reuben Epp says it will be the largest apprenticeship program in B.C. with 46 workmen in eight maintenance trades participating.

Under the training schedule, Columbia employees can enter and upgrade themselves as millwrights, garage mechanics, welders, instrument mechanics, electricians, machinists and pipefitters. The pilot program in the Celgar Pulp Mill at Castlegar qualified men for journeymen's certificates in some of the same fields.

NO AGE LIMIT

When the Prince Rupert program was announced, 100 employees applied — among them laborers, semi-skilled workmen and even operators. There is no age limit for the training, although most of the men are in their mid-20s.

Mr. Epp said it will be four or five years before the company gets full benefit of the program. However, he said benefits will be just in time to meet the labor requirements of the new Skeena Kraft mill being built here by Columbia Cellulose in co-operation with Svenska Cellulosa of Sweden. The mill will turn out upwards of 270,000 tons per year of sulphate kraft pulp.

"We tried to put successful applicants into trades they desired to be in," Mr. Epp said. "Fortunately, in the trades where we anticipate the greatest shortage, we got the biggest response."

For some of the apprentice trainees, the $2.49 an hour starting pay for trainees is a drop in pay. But the chance to earn $3.49 an hour is more than enough incentive, he said.

LOSE NO WAGES

The trainee also receives full pay during one month per year while he attends a B.C. government vocational training school. The department of labor pays $72.00 to a single man and $144 to a married man, with Columbia paying the difference, to assure that no loss in wages is suffered.

The program, put into operation in September, 1964, has already qualified four apprentices as third-year men and eight as second-year trainees.

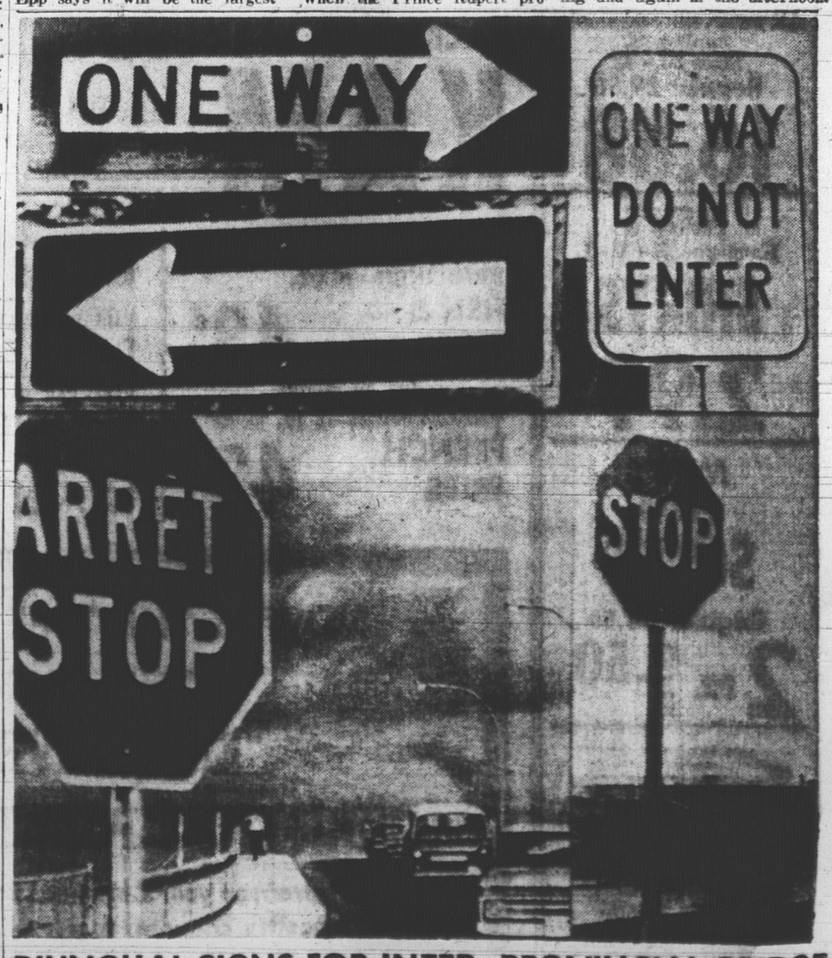
The first three apprentices to attend vocational school have completed their courses and 15 more will attend this year.

Union and management reached agreement on the program, which was acceptable to the provincial government, in 1964.

Columbia says positive action, like these training programs, are the only answer to the shortage of skilled labor in all B.C. industries and that the co-operation between unions, companies and governments work to the "long-term advancement of all concerned."

U.S. AGAIN WARNED

PEKING (Reuters) — China Tuesday issued its 393rd serious warning on alleged U.S. military provocation, charging that an American warship twice intruded into China's territorial waters. The Chinese said the warship intruded into Chinese water east of Matsu in Fukien province early Tuesday morning and again in the afternoon.



BILINGUAL SIGNS FOR INTER-PROVINCIAL BRIDGE

The Ontario department of Highways has made a concession to bilingualism by announcing Wednesday it will erect bilingual traffic signs on the Ontario side and approaches to the new MacDonald-Cartier bridge linking Ottawa and Hull, Que. The picture here shows English-language signs on Ontario side which were erected recently for the Friday opening. The bilingual stop sign (lower left) is on the Quebec side as is the "one-way" arrow without any writing on it. Ontario statues make no provision for bilingual traffic singns. (CP Wirephoto)
