ELLEN'S DIARY

Exceedingly Wise He Was And Faithful To The Last

So yesterday, morning was timeless.

This afternoon as yesterday's was no one or two or more hours on a clock. It was sun rolling westward, stealing in at another window of the room, patterning another wall in a bright lattice-like design. And now the gleaming birch leaves and the baring white-barked branches were strikingly beautiful against the deep sunny blue behind.

Evening? No time-piece is needed in a sick room to indicate the silver drift of the night. The gentle flame of sunlight withdraws from the walls. The blue of the afternoon sky becomes inlaid with silver and against it the leaves hang breathlessly as does the day, awaiting the miracle of night. And that peace which attends the passage of sunset and the onset of dusk's filling tide, comes in softly to bless and to heal.

In the reflections of the sick room, incidents come back to mind, items of the beautiful days. Interesting and warmly human. We recalled such a one today.

"So the Pope is 'one to rest' a man who came by the other day to service a kitchen appliance of late out of repair. Commented: 'He opened his kit and selected an instrument. "He was a fine man... a good man" he offered.

"Yes" we nodded "and an exceedingly wise man. Always one

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Lorne Ferguson. Previous to the ceremony Mrs. Stirling MacLeod sang "O Perfect Love" and during the signing of the register "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride's mother chose a sheath dress of embroidered silk organza over taffeta with a matching cluster of heavenly blue, sheer silk organza. She wore a white tulle hat with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

The groom's mother was attired in a dress of navy silk crepe. She wore a white hat and matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink rose buds.

Miss Alberta MacLean, cousin of the groom, was in charge of the guest book.

A reception was held in Hampton Hall where the Women's Institute canopies ordered for one hundred and fifteen guests. The bride's table, flanked with lamp-like decorated three tier wedding cake flanked with pink rose buds.
