ELLEN'S DIARY

Western Cattleman Pays Visit To Former Home

Now the freedom of the out of doors is lost in part to the children entered into the routine of the school-year. Granddaughter fitting a heavy and bulging schoolbag into the carrier on her bicycle this morning (More books it came to mind than took mother or grandmother to P. W. C.) commented "There are not many years of school left to me now!"

"And how and you will feel when you step for the last time as a schoolgirl away from its threshold?" we said. "And when you look back in the after-years you will realize then what a pleasant part of your life, the school days had been."

"That's for the birds!" Mack grinned. "Though," he sobered, "all in all, do you know? I find it a pretty good place to be."

They have a new teacher, as also has Gage in his school in the district adjacent. For a time there will be a period of adjustment which we know will be trying but a halcyon for teacher and student. And then as they learn to know each other better, all will gather many happy memories to treasure up through the years. May all have only pleasant and profitable days together, teacher and pupils now into this new term in our rural Island schools.

One who learned his "three R's" and more, in such an Island classroom (and college) and later adventured to the wide open spaces of Canada's ranchland in the West was, with his wife and other loved ones a visitor to this old house this evening. These summer days return many such to visit kin and friends and proudly to hail them our successful Islanders abroad. It is true we suppose, since mankind is a mixture; the Island bears and rears and exports sometimes the careless and indifferent. It is also true as history has proven, she has sent out in most instances those of the flower of her flock—clever, honest, industrious, and dependable sons and daughters to gain their livelihoods and make their lives away from her shores. This was just such a lad. And nurtured on the lore of good farming, particularly in regard to the selection and breeding and care of fine cattle, he found an ideal place for his talents in this line in the West. And has done well—and only young yet will make his name known one day among Canadian cattlemen. Picked and nicely too, a western maid for a wife. Has a pair of lads, in a mixture, the greatness of the west the peculiar charm of the east, in the blood that runs gram will be in charge of Mrs. George Shaw, Mrs. Fenton McLure and Mrs. Howard Cummore. Everybody in the district welcome. Collection was $2.75. A delicious lunch was served and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.
