

Heffell - Ryder Wedding Is A Happy Summer Event

A pretty wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends took place at the Union Corner United Church in a setting of summer cut flowers on Thursday, July 10, at 2 o'clock p.m. when Olive Fern Ryder, R.N. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Ryder, St. Nicholas, became the bride of Linus Alden Heffell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Heffell, Freetown. Rev. B. MacPhail officiated.

The wedding music was under the direction of Mrs. Charles Allen, who accompanied Mr. J.T. Waldron of Guys, County, N.S., as he sang "Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white embroidered nylon net with fitted bodice. The skirt had a wide whirl and the bolero had long sleeves. Her veil of embroidered silk illusion with scallop edge was held in place with a tiara cap of solid sequins. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses with true lover knots.

Miss Beulah Ryder, her sister's bridesmaid, was gowned in light blue ruffled nylon net over taffeta with matching bolero. She wore a matching headpiece and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Mr. Waldron Heffell was his brother's groomsman and Messrs Alden Ryder and Westie Heffell ushered the guests to their pews.

Mrs. Ryder chose for her daughter's wedding a pink flowered glazed cotton dress with white accessories and a corsage of white roses. The groom's mother wore a beige-two piece dress with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

A reception for fifty guests was held at Mulberry Lodge where the bride's table was centred with a three tier wedding cake, summer flowers. Mrs. Graham chose for her daughter's wedding a blue brocade taffeta dress with white picture hat and accessories. Her corsage was white roses.

A reception, catered to by the Presbyterian Young Women's Guild, was held for fifty guests in the church hall.

The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Tea was poured by Mrs. Wellington Campbell, aunt of the bride. Miss Lorraine Henderson, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

For a honeymoon trip to places of interest in Prince Edward Island the bride wore a grey suit, a hat of orange ice color and white accessories. Her corsage was roses in orange ice color.

Upon return Mr. and Mrs. MacInnis will reside in Toronto.

MacInnis - Graham Wedding Has Double Ring Ceremony

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Montague, P.E.I. was the scene of a very pretty wedding on June 28, 1958, when Judith Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Graham, Halifax, became the bride of Everett Gordon MacInnis, son of Mrs. Eletha MacInnis, Toronto.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Donald Campbell.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a white floor length gown of nylon chiffon over satin with Chantilly lace bodice fashioned on princess lines. Her shoulder length veil of Chantilly lace was highlighted by the portrait use of pearl and paillette embroidery.

father's view, when the latter has a job to do. On the contrary, Paul is painfully conditioned to stay out of the picture if possible and hereby avoid stinging criticism (voiced or implied), and the emotional discomfort of being "weighed and found wanting."

You mention that dad is always ready to help Paul. But that is a very different matter. Dad is sure of himself in his role of handyman helper, confident of his contributor-value — and probably eager to execute details, on Paul's behalf. And when it is a case of accepting dad's help, Paul mostly stands by numbly. I suppose — with mingled sentiments of respect, appreciation and inferiority feelings.

MARY HAWORTH Son Sidesteps His Dad's Exactness And Criticism

Dear Mary Haworth—We live next door to our only son, who is married and has two lovely children.

When Paul built his house, dad helped him every spare minute; and whenever Paul has anything that needs repair, dad is always ready to help him.

However, when dad has something to fix around our house, Paul never offers help, although I make sure that he knows about it. Often I have had to lend a hand even when the work was too heavy for me, while Paul sat in his house watching TV; or else had gone fishing.

Dad is a perfectionist in all that he does; very handy with tools and rather quick-tempered. Paul is slow, easy-going, sensitive and rather clumsy with tools. He was always a model son except when it came to helping dad in anything. And dad was always a wonderful father and husband, but rather strict.

DAD THREATENS LEAVE

Although I don't like or approve Paul's attitude, I can see both sides; and I try to live with it. But dad broods about it all the time. Occasionally I try to discuss it, to help him understand how different they are—but it only makes matters worse. Dad will say I am siding with Paul against him.

Now dad is talking of selling the house and moving far away from Paul. He says we were happier when we lived a long distance from each other. I always tell him to go ahead if it will make him happier; but I hope he won't, as I love our house, and I for one get along fine with our daughter-in-law. She is a very nice girl, always ready and willing to give a hand in anything.

Thanking you for your kind attention, and hoping to hear from you soon, I am, sincerely, S. L.

Dear S. L.—As I get the story, your husband with his perfectionist bias, his manual skill and his quick temper, is invariably impatient — in manner if not in words—with Paul's performance in getting things done.

Thus it simply isn't in the cards that Paul would feel that he has any help worth giving from the

PERSONALITIES DIFFER

Your husband has an aggressive personality, whereas Paul's is more passive. And it is possible that the father's pressure attitudes, throughout the history of their association, have stymied the son's development — keeping him awkward, uncertain, negative; a taker rather than a giver, in the family relationship.

When a father rules strictly, with a firm hand, and appears in all situations to rate himself more effective than his son, he is killing the chances of teamwork ease between them, on a teamwork basis, in later life.

I suspect that something of the sort is back of dad's difficulty with Paul. And that dad has a

Dad Dons A Chef's Cap To Barbecue A Chicken

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"A good outdoor barbecue grill with an adjustable rack that can be raised to suit the height is what I call a fine Father's Day present," announced the Chef.

"With our latest easy-do barbecue chicken recipe in today's column, Father can barbecue chicken perfectly on the first try. But somebody else should assemble the rest of the dinner makings."

"And Chef," I added, "this is a celebration dinner, so let's make sure there are no dishes to wash by serving it on sturdy-styled paper plates in the brick-oven pattern men like."

"Father's Day Dinner: Tomato-greens salad, barbecue chicken with cranberry jelly, corn on cob hot garlic bread, mixed melon-pineapple bowl, chilled soft drinks."

All measurements are level-recipes proportioned to serve 4 to 6.

Barbecue chicken with sauce: In saucepan, combined and heat 1/2 c. corn oil, 1/4 c. vinegar, 1 c. water, 2 tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp. each rosemary, thyme and savory, 3 tbs. unsulphured molasses and

1 1/2 tsp. Tabasco to make sauce. Indoor oven method: Use 2 broilers or frying chickens, halved or quartered. Rinse with cold water, blot on paper towels.

Place skin-side down in shallow baking lined with aluminum foil. Bake generously with sauce.

Bake 25 min. in a very hot oven, 450 degrees F., or until lightly browned. Reduce heat to 325 degrees F. and bake. Turn skin-side up and baste.

Bake 25-30 min., or until golden brown and a drumstick twists easily out of the thigh joint.

Outdoor method: Hook wingtip behind the shoulder joint into the back. Brush with barbecue sauce.

Place skin-side up on grate; set 12 in. or more from heat.

Slow-cook until tender; turn and baste every 15 min. Allow 1 to 1 1/2 hrs. total cooking time. Test for doneness as described above.

Before serving, brush over any remaining sauce.

dim sense of having taken the wrong course. Yet, longing to find the right way, he feels injured and resentful because Paul isn't co-operating. But it's no fair blaming Paul on that score.

For advice: It might be better for Paul if his parents lived at some distance. But such a move won't make dad happier if he leaves in anger; it will help him only if he takes peace of heart along. To gain healing insight, he ought to have a few talks with a psychiatric counsellor — say, on the staff of your local Family Service Agency, M. H.
