'SOUTH OF ST. LOUIS' AT CAPITOL, SUMMERSIDE

An action-jammed historical adventure yarn set in the lawless period of the Southwest following the Civil War, the States "South of St. Louis," filmed in Technicolor, comes to the Capitol Theatre screen today headed by a four-star cast including Joel McCrea, Alexis Smith, Zachary Scott and Dorothy Malone. The picture is a United States Pictures Production released by Warner Bros.

Besides the quartet of stars, Victory Jory, Alan Hale, Douglas Kennedy, Art Smith, Bob Steele, Monte Blue and Paul Maxey are featured. Ray Enright directed. Milton Sperling produced.

South of St. Louis was the no-man's land of the Civil War. It was that vast area of Texas and the Southwest in which, for the most part, the war was fought on a guerrilla basis, although there were organized army groups on both sides. The film depicts the last personal drama of three hard-riding men of the range, set against the violent background of the open spaces. Smuggling was rampant then and the reckless tempo of the time made life exciting and dangerous.

McCrea plays Kip Davis whose purpose in the lusty tale is to restore the ranching land burned and pillaged by guerrillas in Union hire. Miss Smith departs from her usual roles to that of a flamboyant entertainer.

Mr. Frank Murray, Chelton, was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Affleck. He accompanied the Afflecks to Charlottetown on Monday.
