The producers of the film offer us a script filled with teenage shenanigans, a popular theme for recent movies. The difference here is that they have actively involved the teen's parents in this comedy as to interest adult movie goers. The story centers on a number of anonymous love letters which cause confusion and a comedy of errors.

The film is a harmless fun comedy which was appreciated by all age groups that saw its debut. It is very much toned down compared to the onslaught of teen films which have graced the screen this year. The producers obviously felt that enough time has passed since "The Graduate" and present us with a very similar type ending.

U.P.E.I. Business Society

By Michael Zinck

At any rate, OFF THE WALL has no desire to "buy a bus just yet" they laugh at the thought. The band has no desire to get into that type of unnecessary expense.

As John says you know he is saying what the members all feel. On this Thursday night at the Business Pub, with wives and children at home, the OFF THE WALL band knows they are not here for the fame and stardom, but; yes, for the money, and especially for you the customer.

It's 9:30 and the boys head for the student union office door. John says, "Listen, if you do it and like it, great. And if you can make some money at it, all the better." Sounds reasonable to me.

Taking a break from the front door ticket selling and stamping of hands, Colleen Bolger of the UPEI Business Society is pleased with the Thursday night turnout. "It looks good so far and this is just our first pub of the year."

But it really is more than that. As a tenth anniversary event for the Business Society, they want to show the university, in Colleen's words, "that their pubs turn out to be a good time for everyone from all disciplines."

The Business Society has always worked toward this goal, to have your involvement regardless of the faculty you are in. The Business Society welcomes all students to its events. For pubs, Colleen states, "we try to get good bands for the money and charge the student a better admission price." Also Business Society members get the usual free beverage ticket when they sponsor a society function.

Attendance at a few events will soon recoup your $5.00 society membership. Colleen is quick to point out "it's open to all students."

Aside from pubs, the Business Society holds a wide variety of activities designed to appeal to a cross section of UPEI students. From golf to curling and even deep-sea fishing, the business society works hard to provide something you would want to attend.

Colleen feels participation is what the society is all about. "We want the whole school to participate, and we like to get all students involved, from first year frosh to graduating fourth year seniors," she stated.

Because of its aim for participation, the Business Society can be proud to boast of its' record over the last ten years at UPEI. With 2 pubs left this year and the Businessmen's Dinner early in the new year, plus a full slate of events yet to be announced, its tenth year will turn out to be one of the best yet.

Happy Anniversary
