

Shot His Wife and Himself.

J. B. MACKENZIE, A DRUNKARD, TAKES A QUICK WAY OF ENDING ALL HIS TROUBLES.

(New York World of the 15th inst.)

John H. Mackenzie, forth-three years old, of No. 96 Grove street, shot his wife Mary Ann, aged forty, twice at about 11 o'clock last night and then shot himself. Both were removed to St. Vincent's Hospital. The man is fatally wounded. Mackenzie is the general agent for the Equitable Mercantile Company, having offices in Temple Court, on Beekman street. He had been a very hard drinker and for many months past had been given to periodical sprees of a fortnight to a month each. During such seasons he was very abusive to his wife and did little for her support.

The Mackenzies are well connected and are related to the parties of that name who went bail for H. B. Claffin some years ago, when the house was sued by the Government for Custom House frauds in undervaluing their importations. The couple, who are childless, are natives of P. E. Island, and occupied for the past two years the lower southerly flat of the Grove Flats. Last summer Mackenzie became so much addicted to liquor and threatened his wife, that the latter was compelled to have her husband confined in the inebriate asylum at Fort Hamilton, where she paid his board regularly until he was discharged as cured.

He soon afterwards again returned to his old habit, and, if anything, became more of a slave of the cup, until eleven weeks ago he left home and did not return until two weeks ago. Then a stormy scene ensued and a separation took place. Yesterday afternoon at about 3.30 o'clock, however, Mackenzie again went to the house, but his wife was out. Mrs. Jane S. Davy, the house-keeper, prevailed upon the man to leave, but he returned about 9.30 o'clock. Mrs. Mackenzie having meanwhile returned, the man went to the rear door of his apartments and knocked, but got no response, and then proceeded to the front stoop, where he rang for admission. He stood on the stoop, his wife opened a window to enquire what he wanted. The moment he saw his wife he fumbled in his coat pocket and spoke a few incoherent words, which she could not understand. "What is it you say, John?" asked the wife sympathetically.

Quick as a flash he pulled from his pocket a revolver, and, pointing it at his wife, ejaculated: "That's what!" and fired twice before the unfortunate woman could withdraw from her dangerous position. He then turned his back on his wife, placed the muzzle of the revolver in his right ear and fired.

Where the Czar Can Get Funds.

England has very grave doubts about Russia's financial ability to carry on a protracted war. As Russian bonds go down British confidence in the power of gold goes up. "Russia," she thinks fondly to herself, "will soon be unable to pay her soldiers, and then where will she be, when she can't borrow any in Europe?" Misleading reflection; for it must not be forgotten that the printing of ruble notes is a highly developed art in Russia; that the monasteries are still in a flourishing condition, and the Russian people are in that happy stage of civilized development where enthusiasm for the Czar makes them forget easily scant rations and poor pay.

There is a good story told in connection with one of Czar Nicholas' loans from the wealthy monasteries. The patriotic fathers of the Petsherskaia Laura, the renowned cloister built over the catacombs at Kiev, lent His Majesty five millions of rubles, for which they received a bond entirely written by the imperial hand, and which for twenty years they reverently preserved in a jeweled casket. One day Nicholas' successor, Czar Alexander, visited the famous cloister, desirous of looking at the documents relating to Russian history treasured there. The prior, thinking that a favorable opportunity had come for obtaining payment of the loan, took the precious bond from its casket, and, with a profound obeisance, handed it to the Czar. Alexander so the story goes, pressed the precious parchment to his lips and exclaimed, "In this you possess indeed a treasure worth ten times the sum it represents," and gazed fondly on the lines traced by his father's pen. The prior's heart pounded with joy. He hoped that the Czar would immediately order the payment of the bond, but to his crushing sorrow the Emperor handed it back to him, "his voice shaken by emotion," with the words, "No, no; I will not rob you of your priceless treasure. Keep it as a sacred object. It is my father's own handwriting—you have not purchased it too dearly." Se non vero, ben trovato. The monasteries exist to-day and are in many cases possessed of vast wealth, which in case of war would in all probability be placed at the call of the government.

MORRIS & IRELAND'S

NEW IMPROVED PATENT EIGHT-FLANGE FIRE-PROOF SAFE.

THE only Eight-Flange Safe in the world, and containing more improvements than ANY SAFE made, such as: 1st. THE PATENT INSIDE BOLT WORK, which is placing the bolt work with the whole of the filling (six inches) between it and the outside, that is, as far from the fire and thief as it can be. 2nd. THE PATENT HINGED CAP—the back plate of the door being on hinges, enabling the owner, by turning a thumb-screw, to have easy access to the lock and bolt-work. He can thus easily change the lock, clean, oil, and keep the bolt-work in good order. 3rd. IRON INSIDE LINING, stronger than wood, and which retains the moisture in the filling for an indefinite time. Wood is thicker and weaker, and after a few years absorbs the moisture and requires filling over again. 4th. FOUR-WHEEL COMBINATION LOCKS, the simplest, strongest, most efficient and easiest to change of any in use. 5th. SOLID ANGLE IRON FRONTS, BACKS AND CORNERS, which prevents warping or injury to safe from falling, or falling walls or timbers. 6th. EIGHT FLANGES—the most important improvement ever made in fire-proof safes, providing eight laps, thus preventing the passage of heat, it having to pass over twelve inches, no injury arises from this source, as in other safes containing one, two or three flanges. THESE SAFES have stood the test of years, and the greatest fires in this continent, and have the CHAMPION RECORD in the Boston, Chicago and Haworth Fires. We are selling these safes as low as any good safe, and are disposing of large numbers throughout the Dominion. BANK WORK AND VAULT DOORS are specialties of our firm.
