

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

JULY 23, 1888.

Editorial Notes.

The United States consul at Victoria, B. C., reports to the State Department that there was a renewed influx of Chinese into British Columbia, the arrivals from May to July 8th numbering 2,854 persons.

There has been some discussion of a proposal for an exploration of the Antarctic regions, the cost to be borne jointly by the Australian and Imperial treasuries.

There is a curious coincidence about the duel fought between Gen. Boulanger and M. Floquet. It appears to have followed almost the precise course of the duel between Paul Astier and the Prince d'Athis in Daudet's new novel.

The Montreal Gazette in congratulating Mr. John Lowe on his promotion to the position of Deputy Minister of Agriculture, made vacant by the resignation of Dr. Tache, alludes to his long connection with the press.

Little has been heard recently from the United States authorities relative to the proposed survey of the frontier line between Alaska and British Columbia.

Prince Street Methodist Church.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY SERMON.

This anniversary sermon was preached last evening by the Rev. John Read, the children conducting the singing.

1. The transmission of spirit: A great life bequeathes its splendid contributions to the cause it served, and makes the age rich with its benefactions.

2. The perpetuation of spirit: The child often resembles its parent, not only in outward form and voice and manner, but in intellect and moral qualities.

3. The providence of God we are now associated as pastor and people, and in order that the whole work of this Church may be reasonably furthered, it would be well for us to take each other into our confidence.

The rev. gentleman made an excellent impression on the large audience which had the privilege of listening to him, and the service was made exceedingly attractive by the singing of the little ones whose voices were of more than ordinary sweetness and pathos.

A biography of the late Emperor Frederick is to be compiled by Baron Roggenbach. It is expected that Empress Frederick, Queen Victoria, the Emperors of Austria and Russia, the King of Italy, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha and a large number of scientists, artists, statesmen and army officers will contribute articles to the work.

Sir Henry Tyler, President of the Grand Trunk railway, will probably visit Canada in August.

OUR TEACHERS.

Interprovincial Convention.

SOME OF THE NOTABLES PRESENT—ADDRESS BY SIR WILLIAM DAWSON—RETROSPECTIVE AND PROSPECTIVE VIEWS—DR. SCHURMAN ON UNIVERSITY EDUCATION.

(Special Correspondence of The Examiner.)

When we arrived at the Institute, which by the way is a fine building, we were ushered into a room to enter our names, pay our fee of membership and receive the certificate necessary to ensure our free return.

Sir William Dawson was the first to speak. His voice, though perfectly audible, was not loud, and his manner most unpretending.

DR. SCHURMAN'S ADDRESS.

Dr. Schurman was the next speaker. His subject was a Canadian University Curriculum.

The colleges of Canada, as was natural, have been imitative. We had taken Scotch colleges for our model and followed them perhaps too closely.

History was shamefully neglected. We knew comparatively nothing of the history of our own country.

This session was closed by the reading of an admirable paper by Mr. Ray Greene Houghling, of New Bedford, Mass., on "Current Educational Problems in New England."

Boston Markets.

The official market report of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, July 19, gives the following quotations:—Eggs.—Receipts for the week 26 boxes, 89 bbls., 10,147 cases; last week 27 boxes, 111 bbls., 14,980 cases.

vinces, and men of enterprise and capital would come from abroad to aid in their development. The public schools could prepare for that time by educating those who were to be the men of the succeeding generation.

DR. SCHURMAN'S ADDRESS.

Dr. Schurman was the next speaker. His subject was a Canadian University Curriculum. He commenced by expressing his gratification at seeing such a large body of teachers in convention, the results could not but be good.

All learning was divided into three classes: knowledge of nature, knowledge of man, and knowledge of God. He would deal with the two first, as his province now was not to speak of theology.

So far as the study of nature was concerned, he did not find much fault with the curriculum, except in the matter of technical education.

History was shamefully neglected. We knew comparatively nothing of the history of our own country. The other day an Oxford man had to be brought out to fill a chair of political science in Toronto.

Your correspondent regrets exceedingly the impossibility of giving a decent abstract of the splendid address of the learned doctor, and wishes it were possible that every teacher on the Island might hear or read the whole of it.

(For The Examiner.)

Absent.

Among the streets of the quaint old town The sea breeze wanders up and down, The scented breeze from the sandy bay, Where the great waves toss and mingle spray.

I am severed from these by road and rail, By steam and hurry and outspread sail; But this longing heart, with a leap and a bound, Hastes back to that happy pleasure-ground.

Among the streets of the quaint old town, O'er its causewayed alleys, and up and down, Goes, like the wind with daintiest feet, She who is dearest of all that is sweet.

I envy the very birds that fly, White-winged and free, 'twixt sea and sky, Wherever they will, over field or foam, They may turn their heads; and I long for home.

I envy the very lumbering train, With its puff and whistle and heavy wain. For the strain and struggle and engine brown Will rest when they enter the dear old town.

It is not the sea, with its tossing spray, Nor the yellow sand in the sunny bay; It is not the scented breeze that beats Its light, loose wings above lanes and streets, That makes the glory of sea and shore More precious and dear than in days of yore.

O, the scented wind is fresh and sweet At the corner of every lane and street; But what were the sweetness of sea and spray If you, dear love, were away, away?

The song is sweet of the tarrying breeze, As it hums and harkens by towers and trees; But the voice that is sweetest in every tone Is yours, dear mother—my own—my own.

O, hasten along, ye creeping years, Keep from the dear eyes all trace of tears; Haste by with each fulfil up and down, And bear me back to my quaint old town. M. A. J.

A St. Anne Miracle.

A reliable gentleman informed a Halifax Chronicle reporter of a most impressive miracle witnessed at the church of St. Anne de Beaupre, Quebec, on Thursday morning of last week.

Among the 800 pilgrims who visited this now famous church this year was a French woman named Aubron, belonging to the Joggings, Camberland Co. The woman, who is about fifty years of age and quite corpulent, had suffered a severe affliction which deprived her of the use of her legs, and from which she had been bedridden over ten years.

She was induced to visit St. Anne de Beaupre by friends, and was taken there by the pilgrims from Memramcook. On Thursday morning last she was carried into the church from the cars, and immediately on receiving holy communion was wondrously cured.

Her malady had in an instant been miraculously cured. Those who were acquainted with the woman's condition and witnessed the cure were visibly affected, and so much so indeed that tears were seen in the eyes of many present including a number of priests, one of whom, it is at present in Halifax, vouches for the veracity of the statement.
