

Former Army Nursing Head Dies In Hospital

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Lt. Col. Emma F. Pense, matron-in-chief of Canada's 2,000-member Army Nursing Service during the Second World War, died in hospital here Tuesday. She had been in hospital for several months.

Col. Pense was a nursing matron in the First World War and served most of the war in France. It was there that she was awarded the Royal Red Cross for outstanding service.

She was born and educated in Kingston, but received her nursing training in the United States. She joined the militia in 1911 and served continuously with the army nursing division from 1914 to 1942.

Among her survivors is a niece, Mrs. J. R. Neil of Kingston, the former Elizabeth Pense, Canadian nursing sister who received the Royal Red Cross during the Korean War.

His passing was a shock to his many friends and relatives.

He was born at Albion Cross, December 12th, 1905, where he lived until seven years ago, when he and his family moved to New Perth, where he made many new friends.

He will long be remembered by his loved ones, his departure has left a vacancy in the home that can never be replaced. The funeral which was largely attended, was held from Dundas United Church on July 4th. The service was conducted by the Rev. Basil Lowry assisted by Rev. M. R. Pocklington. The hymns, "Unto The Hills and Nearer My God To Thee," were sung beautifully by the Brooklyn Trio, accompanied by Mrs. Robin Clay, organist.
