The owner of the plant, Mr. MacDougall was born in O'Leary and moved to Vernon River in 1938 as an employee of Dillon and Spillet's. Four years later he went into business for himself when he set up his own egg grading station.

In 1943 he built a combined warehouse and egg-grading station on the railway siding at Vernon

Bridge and five years later he purchased the Union Dairy Butter Factory and converted it into a feed mill.

This mill was destroyed by fire last March. Since last June Mr. MacDougall has been building his new plant.

He also deals in farm produce such as potatoes and turnips. His warehouse has been used in that pursuit since 1943.

Mr. MacDougall is married and has one son, Noel.
